HOUSE-CLEANING.

The following very interesting article was written by Mrs. Wilbur H. Morris, and should be read carefully by both the men and women:

A good many housewives will be cleaning house soon. How can their work be made easier? Is a vacuum cleaner cheap enough for a farmer's wife to afford? What is the biggest help in avoiding dust? How can men folk be kept from tracking mud into the house without hurting their feelings?

Now that spring is here the uppermost question in every housewife's mind is, when shall I begin my annual house-cleaning and how may it be done to make the work easier?

In these days when help is so hard to obtain, and even when one can get help it is so inferior that we feel like throwing up our hands in despair, the burden of it all seems almost greater than we can bear.

Therefore, every woman should have trained ability in order to manage her house successfully. By trained ability, I mean to become self trained in the greatest of all professions—housekeeping; and though she may not have to do her own work, she will know better how to be the mistress of the work done.

To many housewives the home problem is considered by them the greatest burden that has been placed upon them. If they so consider it, in order to bear this burden, they must be prepared to do so. It is not the work that is such drudgery, but it is, many times, the circumstances and the inconveniences and lack of system which make it so. This can be remedied by using modern science in the home. You say, perhaps, that you are not able, that these modern conveniences cost too much. Well, you are able, for the wife and mother should be the first consideration in every home.

Many times small and inexpensive devices may be so arranged which may mean much to lessen the daily work in the house. The mother has to expend daily an enormous and needless amount of energy. She needs all of this surplus energy that she may be enabled to rest when her day's work is ended with a contented mind and enjoy the pleasures which her family enjoy. She has to work harder than any member of her family, because her work is never done.

But to return to the house-cleaning problem, let us see in what ways this can be made easier. In many homes, now, house-cleaning does not mean what it did twenty or twenty-five years ago, when every floor was carpeted and in most instances the walls were white washed. Now, where the floors are not polished and druggets used, many people cover their floors with mattings which makes the work much lighter. If the floors are stained and only druggets used, why should this general spring cleaning be such an awful burden to the housewife, for it should mean more to look over the accumulations of the year and reject everything which is not essentially necessary to keep on hand. Then my advice to you is "don't." When I say this, I mean don't tear your house up all over to begin with. Clean only one room a day, take your time, with three meals a day to plan and to cook, the children to get ready for school, and in many cases their lunches to pack, besides the numerous other matters which must have attention. One room a day is all that any one should ever think of cleaning.

No matter what kind of floor covering you may have, by all means have a vacuum cleaner. These are recommended by health officials, they remove dust and do not stir it up as in the old way of sweeping with a broom.

I am told a good one may be bought for about $15 or $25. This may seem expensive at first thought, but just think what farmer is there among you who does not want to be classed with the progressive, up-to-date farmers of to-day, and in order to be so, he must have all of the latest improved machanical devices for tilling his farm that are upon the market, no matter what the cost of the machine, he needs it and in order to get his work done must have it. It is just as necessary, and even more so, to have the labor saving devices in the house as it is on the farm.

A vacuum cleaner not only saves energy and strength but it is the most sanitary manner in which one can clean house. Ritchie, in his Primer of Sanitation, says: "Sanity and sanitation mean the same in their origin, that to practice sanitation is to act sanely and sensibly."

These cleaners prevent to a great extent, germs being carried by dust which otherwise could not be carried, and we all know these dust germs spread more diseases than are carried in any other way. Another method of keeping down the dust is by using dustless dust cloths which also brighten the furniture, which can be bought for 25 and 50 cents. There has been dust, and there always will be, but every precaution should be used to keep it down as much as we possibly can. The people on the farms have so many blessings that the town and city people do not have that they do not realize their value, such as having plenty of fresh air and sunshine, large bright and airy rooms and very little dust compared to the cities and towns.

In beginning to clean a room have the father or the boys or the hired man come in and remove all the heavy furniture; if possible, have it carried out of the room entirely, take up the tacks if the floors are covered, and carry the carpets or mattings out into the yard and thoroughly beat or sweep them, then your work will be comparatively easy.

Did I hear some of you say, "But we do not have the time to help around the house, our work has to be done." Yes, you have, and your work will get done. No man should feel it beneath his dignity to help around the house at this time of the year or at any other time, and thereby save the wife and mother this awful nerve-wracking, back-breaking amount of work which can be done for

Chestertown people endorse their work.,

Harry Hodgkin, merchant, High St., Chestertown, Md., says: "I had various symptoms of kidney trouble. There were pains through my loins and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. My supply of Doan's Kidney Pills was procured at Toulson's Drug Store and they made me feel better in every way."

Mr. Hodgkins is only one of many Chestertown people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—If your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Hodgkin had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores.
