her. Then the floors must be swept and the dust taken up, the walls thoroughly wiped down by using cloths or brooms or mops, then the windows and woodwork should be cleaned next. Lastly, the floors should be well washed up with hot water and soap; a mop may be used for this purpose. While the floor is drying I would clean the pictures, draperies and ornaments, if ornaments there must be, and the furniture, and have these all ready to be replaced as soon as the covering is back on the floor. I would follow this plan throughout the house and by not overtaxing one's strength in trying to do too much in one day, the next day will find you fresher and better prepared to go on with the usual cleaning.

Where rugs are used, by all means use a mop—the O'Cedar is a most excellent one. With one of these you can go all over the polished surface of the floor in about ten minutes, thus preventing dust again and leaving your floors in a thoroughly sanitary condition.

I read an article somewhere which related to the cleaning of the kitchen where the walls and ceilings are painted. It said put on a boiler of water with plenty of soap, and let it boil and boil, thus filling the room with steam, and immediately going over the walls with a cloth and rubbing them while still wet with the steam. This seems very good logic.

Now that the house is clean the next most important thing to do is to keep it so, and it can be done by each and every member of the family helping. Mud is often tracked into the house; this is all unnecessary if the men would only think how much work and worry they could save the wives and mothers by scraping their shoes before entering the house or taking them off and have slippers or sneekers at the door to slip their feet into while in the house. This carrying mud and dirt in the house is due only to thoughtlessness on the part of those who do it. Just a little thought and consideration will cause all of this to be avoided, and the little time it would take would be time well spent.

Husbands and sons, remember that the future depends upon your homelife of to-day, and don't fail to help lighten the burden at every possible opportunity, then many of the physical and nervous troubles which the wife and mother have been subject to from overwork will be done away with, and there will be peace, happiness and contentment in the home, and the family will be the ones who reap the benefit.

Base Ball Notes.

The Chestertown High School team defeated Washington College Reserves on Washington Field last Saturday afternoon 7 to 2. Usilton, C.H.S. pitcher, had the Collegians at his mercy, and his pitching was largely responsible for his team's victory.

St. John's College team defeated Washington College at Annapolis last Saturday morning 5 to 3. Bowen pitched the first five innings for Washington, and aside from his wildness, he did well. Biddle went on the mound in the sixth, and not a St. John's man reached second base.

Frank Jarman pitched Wilmington Tri-State League team to victory on Saturday, letting the strong York team down with three hits. If we are not mistaken, Jarman will set the Tri-State League afire this season.

Baby Chicks to Go Long Distance.

Mr. R. Snowden Thomas, the well-known breeder of Rhode Island Reds of the finest laying strain, filled two orders for 25 baby chicks one day old this week, one flock to go to North Dakota and the other to Connecticut. He fixed the little fellows up in fine shape, and started them on their long journey. North Dakota is a long distance for baby chicks to travel, and if they are over five days in transit they will take great risk in reaching their destination alive, unless they fall into the care of a kind-hearted expressman like our John E. Matthews. Mr. Thomas also has several orders for eggs for long distance shipment, some going to Louisianna. He receives 40 cents apiece for the finest day-old chicks. If you tell that to many people in Kent county, they would say it's "a you know what." But just try for yourself and see. Does it pay to raise good stock? Well, we should worry.
