Construction Worker Charged In Pikesville Hammer Case

Charges of assault, in connection with the May 23 hammer beating of a Pikesville woman, were placed against a South Baltimore man Wednesday in Towson.

The accused, Henderson Ware, 38, of the 100 block of N. Aisquith St., was arrested at his home Tuesday by county police officers.

An employee of the Lawrence Construction Company, Ware was supposedly working in the Reisterstown area on the day of the attack, Mrs. Daisy Hemlin was beaten with a sledgehammer.

Not At Work

His employers told police that he had not reported for work since the day before the attack upon the woman.

Ware is in the county jail at Towson pending Mrs. Hemling's release from the hospital.

According to police, he was identified by her at least five times this week during a lineup at the hospital. Four residents within the Aisquith St., area have stated that Ware was at home at the approximate time of the attack.

Police found a gray tweed coat in his room which they say is similar to one described by Mrs. Hemling.

Known throughout the community as "Wineo Ware," many of his neighbors voiced the opinion Thursday that they were "shocked" to hear of Ware being charged with the crime.

More than 40 neighbors headed by David S. Freedman, a local tavern owner, have signed a petition in his behalf.

Can't Afford Lawyer

Ware's landlady, Mrs. Marie Evans, stated that he is without funds to get an attorney. His family she said, is now living in Philadelphia and does not know of his arrest.

A preliminary hearing has been scheduled for Saturday.

Grocer's Slaying Ends With Sentencing Of Pair

The case of four men, a dog and the slaying of an elderly Riggs Ave. grocer was closed, Tuesday, with the trigger man being sentenced to six years for manslaughter.

At the same time, Judge Herman Moser slapped a one-year sentence upon Brice Atkinson, 36, whose attempt to cheat the grocer out of 28 cents set off the chain of events that ended with the slaying.

Used Victim's Gun

The longer sentence went to Bruce Johnson, 23, of the 1300 block Calhoun St., who said the grocer was shot with his own pistol which went off during a struggle.

Testimony was that these two men, with Johnson's twin brother, James, a fourth man identified as James Perry, and Atkinson's big dog, entered the store of 72-year-old Robert Banks on April 19.

Ordered Clams

Atkinson ordered 25 cents worth of clams, and by a sleight of hand trick, gave the grocer a nickel instead of a quarter.

When Banks discovered the ruse, he grabbed his gun and chased James Johnson and Atkinson from the store, thinking it had been an attempted robbery.

When the grocer re-entered the store, he and Bruce Johnson then grappled with the gun. Banks, however, was shot four times.

Atkinson was trac. through the big dog, and the other men later were rounded up.

Red Cross Needs Volunteer Drivers

Volunteer drivers for day and night assignments with the Red Cross Motor Service are now urgently needed, Mrs. Philip Valentine, chairman of the Provident unit announced this week.

The drivers, who must be at least 18 years old and holders of a Maryland driver's license for two years, will transport other volunteers to Crownsville State Hospital, take clinic patients to and from hospitals, and transport summer camp youth.

Work Explained

They will also transport all Red Cross supplies and handle special expeditions.

Mrs. Valentine explained that the Red Cross summer program has greatly stepped up the activities of the motor service.

Driver applicants should telephone the motor service at Hopkins-9905 for further information.

Local Man Charged With Overpriced Spuds

The Government on Tuesday filed a complaint for injunction in U.S. District Court against Joseph Brocato, 3726 Eastern Ave., a produce retailer, for alleged violations of over-ceiling sales of new potatoes.

Hugo R. Hoffmann, Maryland OPS Director, said his office is "determined that the law shall be upheld and we propose to take prompt action within the provisions of the law to see that the blackmarket in potatoes is out."

Ground Broken For New Cherry Hill School

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, center, is shown as he heaves up the first shovel of earth signalling the official beginning of work on the new million dollar Cherry Hill Junior High School. When completed next year, the school will relieve overcrowdedness in South Baltimore's long existing junior high school. Surrounding the mayor are school officials, parents and children. The new school will be in the 500 block Cherry Hill Rd.

Jury Convicts Cicero Police

CHICAGO (Special) — A Federal court jury Wednesday night convicted the Cicero, Ill., police chief, two policemen and the village attorney on charges filed against them as a result of last year's race riot.

Police Chief Erwin Konovsky was convicted on two counts — violating the Federal rights statute and conspiracy. He faces a possible maximum sentence of two years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

Judge Walter J. La Buy set June 23 as date for hearing defense motions for a new trial and postponed sentencing until after he rules on the new trial motions.

Cops Face 1 Year

The two convicted policemen were found guilty of violating the statute and face a possible maximum punishment of one year in prison and $1,000 fine each. They are Sgt. Roland Brami and Frank A. Lange.

The village attorney, Nicholas Berkos, faces a similar punishment on his conviction of conspiracy. He was acquitted on an indictment charging violation of the statute.

The Cicero rioting occurred when Harvey E. Clark Jr., a 20-year-old colored bus driver attempted to move his family into a 20-apartment building in the all-white suburb with a population of 70,000.

Rioted 3 Days

The rioting lasted for three days and only ended on July 12 when five companies of National Guardsmen were sent to the scene.

Clark's apartment was set afire and some of his furniture and crowds of 5,000 milled around the apartment. Nearly a score of persons were hurt and more than 100 eventually arrested.

The defendants were accused of depriving Clark of his civil rights by failing to keep the crowds from interfering with his efforts to move into the apartment.

Free One Cop

A third policeman, Frank Janecek, was acquitted on a charge of violating the statute.

During the trial two Cicero town officials, President Henry J. Sandusky and Fire Marshal Theodore H. Wesolowski, were freed of charges of conspiracy on recommendation of Government prosecutors.

Clark testified during the trial that Chief Konovsky had threatened him when he attempted to move into his Cicero apartment.

Soldier Accused In Sex Attack

Baltimore County police are holding a soldier stationed at Aberdeen after an attractive Mt. Winans resident complained he forcibly raped her, Wednesday night.

In Essex Police Court, Thursday morning, the young woman, who lives in the 2600 block Puget St. told Magistrate John M. Maguire that Pfc. Lowell C. Mosley attacked her outside a tavern at Twin Pines.

Magistrate Maquire held Mosley without bail for action of the Baltimore County Circuit Court. Two other young women and another soldier were recorded as witnesses in the case.

Flight With Wine Costly To Man

A desire for a drink of wine, and a three block chase with two police officers in Northeast Baltimore Monday, cost a 23-year-old man $25 and his freedom.

William James of the 1200 block of Caroline St., was arrested and charged with stealing a fifth of wine from a Central St., liquor store.

After the chase with Officers James Drew and Charles Schuler, James was apprehended as he tried to get rid of the wine bottle by throwing it against the patrol car.

6-Year-Old Child Struck By Auto

A six-year-old child was treated at Franklin Square Hospital, Tuesday, after being stuck by a motorist in the 800 block W. Fayette St.

Elizabeth Dorsey, 840 W. Fayette St., was treated for head cuts and released. The motorist, Oakley Hacker, 31 N. Carey St., told police the child ran into his car after darting from between two parked cars.

Police gave Hacker a traffic court summons for reckless driving.

Scarlett Fighting Heavy Sentence Of Seven Years

Struggling under the weight of a seven-year numbers sentence imposed last week, Austin Scarlett filed notice of appeal, Thursday, to the stiff punishment dealt him by Judge E. Paul Mason.

Scarlett, operator of a lavish farm and country club in Westminster, heard himself sentenced to the longest term Judge Mason has ordered for numbers this year. The term, it is thought, also is the longest anybody ever has received for numbers in Maryland.

Terse In Pen

His conviction is being carried to the Court of Appeals with the hope that defense counsel may win a reversal of the guilty verdict, and thus spare the gentleman farmer the ordeal of the penitentiary term.

Scarlett was brought before Judge Mason for sentence after two trials, both resulting in convictions.

The fact that a $750 fine of a numbers prisoner was not paid until after the prisoner "sang" to the prosecutor's office, started the whole thing.

The prisoner, Horace Cann, was sentenced to a jail term and fined $750 for writing numbers last July.

When the fine was not paid, and the expenses of his wife were not cared for, Cann talked to the State's attorney's office.

"Broke Promise"

He said, "Scarlett didn't stick to his promise, so I didn't stick to mine."

According to Cann, Scarlett was his "backer" and had promised to pay Mrs. Cann $40 a week while the husband was at the House of Correction.

The $750 fine subsequently was forwarded to Mrs. Cann, but too late. She turned the money over to investigators.

Added to Cann's testimony against Scarlett was that of Edgar Wilkes of the 600 block Arlington Ave., who said he drove for Scarlett and helped him pick up numbers.

Wilkes's Home Raided

Wilkes's home was the scene of a raid over a year ago, and although Scarlett was arrested on a warrant after the raid, he was freed in that case.

Meantime, he is free under $10,000 bail pending disposition of the appeal which may take the rest of the year.

Heavy Trucking Industry Blamed For Road Damage

Evidence that heavy trucks have been responsible for damage to the nation's highways was released this week in a 17-page report from the Highway Research Board.

For proof, research engineers carried out a test a year ago on a one mile stretch of U.S. highway 301 near La Plata, Md.

For years now highway engineers and truckers have disputed each other over the damage to pavement by heavy loads. Until recently neither side has been able to offer scientific proof.

Summary Shows Results

A summary of the Maryland road test showed the following discoveries:

A 22,400-pound axle load truck carrying exactly 6.4 times more than an 18,000-pound axle load. Trucks with two sets of rear wheels and axles and 44,800-pound loads caused 12.3 times as much cracking as 32,000-pound loads.

The inquiry was plotted and financed by the Highway Departments of 11 states.

Tested For Six Months

During the test trucks ran back and forth along the strip for six months, 24 hours a day in all kinds of weather.

A total of 476,000 trips was made over one pair of test lanes alone. Every crack that showed was photographed and recorded. The color of the paint was changed to show how fast the cracks grew.

Electronic recorders measured stress and strain on the edge of the concrete slabs at the joints. The number of times that it teetered and bent under stress was also measured.

Test Completed Last Year

The job of analyzing the test results was completed by April, although the running test was completed last December.

Most of the test road had a washboard effect when the trucks stopped running. The highway was nine years old when the test started.

After approximately four months of use, the first crack appeared in the lane traveled by trucks with an 18,000-pound axle load. The American Association of Highways now wants single axle loads limited to 18,000 pounds.
