was the prosecution's main witness against the short, stocky stevedore. The woman, a resident of the 1600 block Balmer Court identified White as the man who entered her home around 2 a.m. on April 28 criminally attacked and robbed her.

White was also identified by Mrs. Evelyn Goodman of the 1600 block Booker Court as the man she saw looking in her window around 2:30 a.m. on May 22, the morning of White's arrest.

Other Identification

The defendant himself was a resident of the Gilmor Homes where during the early months of this year numerous complaints were made to police about a "Creeper" many women tenants had seen peeping in their homes.

Police also received numerous complaints of a series of burglaries in the project.

Following White's capture, police credited project management, headed by Warren Weaver, with playing a major role" in solving the series of crimes.

Lawyer Praised

White was defended during his trial by Ernest L. Perkins who was appointed by the court. At the trial's end Judge Moser complimented Mr. Perkins for the manner in which he presented his case.

White was prosecuted by Asst. State's Attorneys Henry Blair and Saul Harris.

The defense based its whole case on objection to a statement which White gave to police at the Northwest police station on May 14, three days after his arrest.

Mr. Perkins held that the statement, in which White admitted having voluntary relations with the Gilmor Home housewife, were obtained unvoluntary and only after White had been beaten.

Claims Police Beat Him

White, taking the stand in his own defense, also charged that he had been beaten every time he was questioned at the police station and claimed he wasn't even questioned about the criminal attack until May 14.

Judge Moser overruled the objection to the statement, however, pointing out that the very fact the statement says White admitted having relations with the housewife placed him at the scene when the young woman claimed she was attacked and robbed.

When she appeared on the stand the attack victim said she was home asleep on April 28 with no one else in the house but her daughter.

Stood Over Bed

She testified she awoke around 2 p.m. to find White standing over her !.

"I ran to the living room," the young wife revealed, "and this man follo-- d me and p- -d my gown off.

"He said he would kill me if I screamed."

Speaking calmly but forcebly, the young victim said that following the attack White took a pair of her husband's trousers, $30 and a radio. She said he left the radio outside her door.

Police Find Trousers

After White's arrest police found the trousers belonging to the victim's husband in his home where the defendant lived with his mother.

White claimed on the stand that either he or his mother purchased the trousers for 50 cents from a junkman.

Both Sergeant George E. Andrews of U Northwestern Police District, who took White's statement, and Officer John C. Boyle, who arrested him, denied on the stand that the young man had been beaten or threatened before making his statement admitting he had been in the young wife's apartment the morning she said she was attacked.

Tells Different Tale

In his statement, however, White said the young woman gave herself to him voluntary and that he offered her money. The statement also said the young wife told him to take anything he wanted and to leave.

Although in his statement White said he had been knowing the young attack victim for two months, the young woman testified on the stand that she had never seen White before the night he entered her apartment.

White testified he had been a resident of the Gilmor Homes for eight years.

Sister On Stand

The only defense witness besides White was his sister, Mrs. Esther Cherry of the 100 block N. Exeter St.

She testified that on April 28, the night of the attack, White had spent part of the night at her home.

It was brought out in cfir trial that White made no complaints about police beating him when he had a preliminary hearing in Northwestern Police Court before Magistrate E. Everett Lane.

Had No Injuries

White himself denied that he had any bruises, cuts or injuries when questioned by Judge Moser.

The disturb-ng the peace charge on which he was found guilty was a result of White's trying to enter Mrs. Goodman's home on May 11. He was absent from his attendance away by Officers Boyle and James Colvon who had sped to the scene following a call from Mrs. Goodman.

At White's preliminary hearing another woman testified that White was the man she had seen in her house on April 17. That witness, a resident of 1600 block Booker Court, did not appear at his trial.

Other Witness Absent

Neither did a man appear whose blue suit was stolen from his home in the 1600 block Vincent St. on Feb. 10 appear to testify.

White was convicted in 1947 for disturbing the peace and received a 60 day sentence plus an additional 12 years as an incorrigible minor.

In 1949 he was found guilty of l.-glary and received a 3-year sentence in the House of Correction.
