Brilliant Wedding at Centreville.

In St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church Saturday evening Miss Henretta McKenney Holton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Layton Holton and one of the most beautiful society girls of the Eastern Shore, became the bride of John Goshorn Shearer, son of Mrs. Shearer and the late Robert H. Shearer, of Cumberland, Md.

The Rev. Robert F. Gibson, of Williamsport, Pa., uncle by marriage of the bride, and the Rev. A. R. Conger, rector of St. Paul's, officiated.

Because of the number of attendants and the elaborate church decorations this wedding was the most pretentious held in Queen Anne's county for many years.

In the wedding party were 28 participants. The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage. The procession moved to and returned from the altar in a uniquely arranged drill that took in the entire church, including the ailes and the transept.

MRS. GIBSON MATRON OF HONOR.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Robert F. Gibson, of Williamsport, Pa., an aunt of the bride. She was gowned in white crape meteor and carried a shower bouquet of lilacs. The maids of honor, Miss Susan B. Mitchell, cousin of the bride, and Miss Elizabeth Shearer, sister of the bridegroom, were costumed in flowered chiffon, brocaded with yellow satin. They carried long-stemmed red roses. The bridesmaids, Misses Elizabeth Hersch, of New Oxford, Pa.; Hazel Everitt, of Waterbury, Conn.; Elsie Foxwell, of Baltimore, who were chums of Miss Holton at National Park Seminary; Helen Biggs, of Middletown, Del., and Elizabeth Neal Brown and Margaret Spencer Corkran, of Centreville, wore white shadow lace, trimmed with cloth of gold. They carried shower bouquets of red roses. Misses Martha Rolph and Mary Kerr Keating, of Centreville; Eleano Goldsborough, of Baltimore, and Elizabeth Gadd, of Hartford, Conn., wore white gowns with gold sashes, and carried baskets of white and yellow daises. The ribbon girls, Misses Maria McKenney, of Centreville, and Martha Goldsborough, of Baltimore, were garbed similar to the flower girls.

COSTUME OF THE BRIDE.

The bride's gown was an exquisite imported creation of brocaded white satin trimmed with pearls and with duchesse lace that was worn by her mother when she married Mr. Holton. A duchesse lace cap, also worn by Mrs. Holton, caught up the daughter's wavy brown hair. The bride wore no ornaments, but carried a bouquet of white orchids. The wedding music was played by Misses Mary Earle Forman and Jennie Mae Howser, her girlhood friends.

Following the marriage ceremony, for which 1,200 invitations were issued, a reception was held at the Holton home, on Commerce street, at which there were 400 invited guests. At its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Shearer left in a Cadillac roadster, one of the bridegroom's ante-nuptial presents to the bride, for an extended honeymoon trip in sections they refused to reveal. Mrs. Shearer's going-away gown was a duvetyn tango suit trimmed with Roman silk, with hat to match.

BEST MAN AND USHERS.

Mr. Shearer was attended at the wedding by F. F. Metzger, of Bedford, Pa., as best man. The ushers were W. Layton Holton, Jr., of Baltimore, brother of the bride; William McKenney, Jr., and J. K. H. Jacobs, of Centreville, her first cousins; A. B. Brook, of West Chester, Pa.; A. P. Graham, of Hagerstown, Md., and M. Worthington Bordley, of Centreville. Mr. and Mrs. Shearer were recepients of numerous and handsome and costly wedding gifts.

The bride's maternal grandfather was the late Gen. William McKenney, of Centreville, and her paternal great-uncle was the late Hart B. Holton, once Republican candidate for Governor. Mr. Shearer is junior partner of the Vang-Shearer Construction Compnny, of Cumberland, and is well known throughout Western Maryland. After the honeymoon tour Mr. and Mrs. Shearer will make their home in Cumberland.

Among the guests were a large number of persons well known in social circles in Baltimore and other parts of the Western Shore.
