NAACP Surveys School Facilities

At its monthly meeting, Wednesday, the NAACP's Legal Redress Committee authorized a survey of the local school system, intervened in the current "Birth of A Nation" controversy, and heard protests registered by delegates to the Catholic War Veteran's Convention.

The legal action group met in the offices of its chairman, Carl Murphy, publisher of the AFRO.

The committee took cognizance of the pending suit against the Maryland Board of Motion Picture Censors. A Washington distributor has filed a suit protesting the State Board's ban of the film "Birth of A Nation."

NAACP To Intercede

It was formally announced that an NAACP lawyer would intercede in the case as "friend of the court."

The legal committee also heard vehement protests registered by two Chicago delegates to the Catholic War Veterans convention concerning failure of the Lord Baltimore to honor previous accepted reservations.

It was intimated that legal action may be instituted against the hotel because of the snub given the delegates. The annual convention is meeting in Baltimore, this year.

Dr. Ellis O. Knox, member of the Howard University education department, was designated to make an immediate comparative survey of local school facilities.

Mrs. Jackson Present

Present at the meeting were: Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, the Rev. A. J. Payne, the Rev. H. J. Bryant, Donald Murray, Dr. Knox, Linwood Koger Jr., and John Hargrove.

Elks To Meet In Cambridge

More than 5,000 Elks, including Grand Exalted Ruler Robert H. Johnson, will attend the annual convention of the Tri-State Association of Elks which meets at Cambridge for four days, beginning Sunday.

In addition to their new ruler, many other Grand Lodge officers are expected to join Elks fro Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia, at the convention.

A proclamation issued by Dr Bernard Harris, president of the Tri-State organization and Grand Esteemed Loyal Knight, expressed sorrow over the recent death of the former Grand Exalted Ruler, J. Finley Wilson.

To Lay Groundwork

It is expected that groundwork will be laid at the Tri-State for election of a permanent Grand Exalted Ruler. Mr. Johnson was designated temporary Grand Ruler on Mr Wilson's death.

Under the guidance of the Grand Commissioner of Health, a feature of the convention will be emphasis on eye health. Funds are being raised throughout the Tri-State area to purchase eye glasses for needy school children. An eye clinic will be conducted by Dr. Sanders Russell.

Special emphasis will also be placed on the development of John Brown's farm, located just outside of Hagerstown, Md.

Purchased John Brown's Farm

Three years ago, the Tri-State purchased the far mof the noted abolitionist, and desitnated it as a fitting memorial for John Brown. Covering more than 250 acres, the original brick buildings are still in good condition.

A program to eliminate illiteracy among the adult population will also be initiated at the convention. As part of its education program, Tri-State has more than 20 students receiving benefits of its scholarship program.

Other features of the convention will be a dramatic pageant, inspirational breakfast, oratorical contest, and a mammoth parade.
