By VIVIAN TURNER

Administrators, fellow teachers and friends paid tribute to Miss Guilelma E. Jones, last week, at the M. M. Washington Vocational High School, the occasion of her retirement, after thirty four years of active service.

Mrs. Dorothy J. Miller, principal of the school, served as mistress of ceremonies and Walter E. Fauntroy gave the invocation and benediction.

Mrs. Maude Washington, a member of the choir of New Bethel Church, of which Miss Jones is a member, gave a solo while other music in the form of parodies to familiar songs, composed by Mrs. I. H. Pinchback and played by Mrs. B. E. Coleman, extolled the virtues of honoree.

Speakers included:

Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, Miss L. C. Randolph, Dr. Harold A. Haynes, Francis A. Gregory, Dr. Madeleine W. Kirkland, E. P. Westmoreland, Dr. Gladys Peterson and Mrs. W. A. Dodson.

Presentation of the faculty gift was made by Mrs. V. T. Turner with a response from Miss Jones. Miss L. C. Randolph presented a basket of flowers to Miss Jones from herself and family and Mr. Westmoreland presented a book to her.

PEREGRINATORS

The Armstead Jenkinses entertained last week in honor of Ruth Greene who left for Europe on July 3.

About to bid her bon voyage were the O. Robert Campers, Theodore Johnson, Ransome Lancasters, Miss Evelyn Greene, Leroy Banks and Emmett Lee of Washington.

The Campers and Jenkinses accompanied Miss Greene to New York to see her off on the Italia.

Marian Webb Waters, counselor at Douglass High School, has given up her position in the Baltimore Public School System to join her husband, Dr. George F. Waters, who lives in Jacksonville, Fla.

Friends have been particularly lovely to her during her last days here. Among the groups that surprised her with beautiful gifts were Douglass High School Faculty, eta Phi Beta Sorority, Pot Pourri Club, and the Baltimore Branch of the National Vocational Guidance Association, of which she has just closed a term of presidency.

An old very harmful fallacy, still widely promoted, is that raw milk is better than pasteurized milk. Milk loses very little nutritive value in pasteurizing. But pasteurizing safeguards health by destroying dangerous bacteria that may be in raw milk.

Needless Cost

Among the fads that are misleading and add needless cost and labor to meals are those that advocate fresh home-ground whole wheat—with a special grinder—as more nutritious and healthful than commercially ground whole wheat, or those calling for a liquid vegetable diet, prepared with an expensive liquifier or juicer.

Vegetable juice may be good to drink but has no miraculous health powers. Then, there's the old superstition against aluminum cooking ware, still continuing despite research which has shown that it is harmless and has cooking advantages.

Most Food Fads Costly Many Harmful To Health

Most food fads—good, bad or indifferent—add unnecessary expense to eating, food economists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture say.

Promoters usually have something to sell, either special food products or special cooking utensils or devices for preparing foods. Before falling for a fad, the specialists suggest considering what you are getting for your money.

—Variety Necessary

The thriftiest way to meals that meet nutritional needs of the normal person is to choose a variety of foods, as outlined in the Department's National Food Guide. No one food or food product offers all you need. It's the wealth of variety that makes meals nutritious as well appetizing.

Some food fads or superstitions are harmful because they cheat the body of needed nutrients. For example, there are the diets that rule out milk. People of all ages need milk, research has shown.

Milk Needed

Rapidly growing bodies need more than mature bodies, but even the elderly need milk for best health. You can choose between fresh pasteurized milk, evaporated milk or dry milk, for example. Buttermilk or other specially fermented milks are good foods, too, but are no more nutritious than the whole or skimmed milk from which they are prepared.

An old very harmful fallacy, still widely promoted, is that raw milk is better than pasteurized milk. Milk loses very little nutritive value in pasteurizing. But pasteurizing safeguards health by destroying dangerous bacteria that may be in raw milk.

Smooth Care For Hosiery

Watch the girl who sells them for tips on saving hosiery, clothing specialists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture say.

The salesgirl knows that smooth handling pays to avoid snags that lead to runs and runs. So she keeps her hands and fingernails polished and avoids wearing rings that might catch and pull the delicate fabric.

In stores, hosiery is kept in smooth boxes, each pair separated by smooth paper.

Such stress on smoothness may seem extreme unless you count the cost of casualties from contacts with rough surfaces. Probably no other item of women's wear needs such care as hosiery.

Here's How

Here's how to smooth the way for stockings and save money:

Keep stockings in a smooth container, each pair separate, instead of tumbling them together in a drawer where they may catch on rough wood or something else in the drawer. Satin-lined hosiery boxes are for sale.

Stores advise rinsing new stockings before wearing and then washing after each day's wear. This helps keep them in shape for a good fit and prevents possible damage from perspiration. Expert Tackles Problem Of Laundering White Nylon

How to launder white nylon—to keep or restore its whiteness—is an important home laundering problem, judging from the number of queries on the subject that come to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, according to Miss Margaret Furry of the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics.

To give practical aid to homemakers in response to this demand, Miss Furry, a textile chemist, conducted research on (1) the cleaning efficiency of 10 different soaps and synthetic detergents on retail stores, (2) effects of these detergents on the fabric, and (3) home methods of restoring whiteness to nylon garments, discolored after wear and repeated laundering.

As a result of laundering solled samples of white nylon in the laboratory, Miss Furry reported that all detergents do a better cleaning job in soft than in hard water. Soaps and one synthetic detergent built with alkaline salts proved most effective in removing soil from white nylon, but the unbuilt synthetics showed little soil-removing ability with this fabric.

Tests of the effect of detergents on white nylon showed that no detergent tested caused shrinkage or weakening of the fabric after 25 launderings. However, white nylon, like other fabrics, became dingy or yellowed by repeated washing with soap in hard water.

Wash Separately

Miss Furry advises washing white nylon separately from colored clothes, soaking before washing, washing with soap in soft or softened water, or with a built synthetic detergent, and, finally, thorough rinsing.

In searching for home methods to restore whiteness to discolored nylon, Miss Furry worked with 20 slips and blouses that had been worn and laundered many times. She reported success in removing soil and hard-water "soap curds" by soaking garments in four changes of water softened with sodium hexametaphosphate, a product that sells at retail under brand name.

Bleach Used

To remove grayness or other discoloration, Miss Furry added different household bleaches to the suds, according to directions. Though chlorine bleach proved most effective for whitening, it has the disadvantage of weakening nylon favric. To stop this as much as possible, Miss Furry rinsed the bleached garments in a solution of photographers' "hype" and acetic acid.

She reported that sodium perborate, a milder bleach, ranked second for whitening and may be safer and easier to use. Sodium perborate, for sale at drug stores, also is included in some packaged bleaching preparations.

Miss Furry tested two of these products, one containing 84 percent and the other only 8 per cent perborate. The latter was no more effective than washing in soft water and soap.

Add Bluing

To give a white appearance to yellowed nylon garments, bluing in the final rinse water was the only method Miss Furry found effective. The bluing disguised the yellow tinge.

Butterscotch Pecan Chiffon Pie

There is no more delicious way to end a summertime meal than with iced tea and butterscotch pecan chiffon pie.

Indulge Moppets In Drinking It's Good For Their Health

When your moppets ask you for a tall fruit drink these warm days they're being smarter than you thing.

They need extra amounts of Vitamin C in hot weather. We all need it. This tricky vitamin is lost in perspiration so we should take special care to get our full quota in summer months.

We know, by this time, that both oranges and lemons are extra rich in Vitamin C so we turn to an easy and delicious way of using them. Those little six-ounce cans of Minute Maid Fresh Frozen Juice make it simple, quick and economical to serve our families all they want. Lucky us!

Punch To Fore??

For a crowd, there's nothing better than a good punch. Fix it any way you like, but we're fond of Hawaiian Punch, teaming fresh frozen lemonade with a good hint of banana and fresh pineapple. Gives your party menu a new flair.

Then there's the ever popular Orange Soda. An idea you'll find helpful is to use the fresh frozen orange juice, undiluted, then add charged water as you like. A scoop of vanilla ice cream sets it off smartly. And you have a luscious refreshing drink, wonderfully good with the true flavor of orange.

HAWAIIAN PUNCH

1 cup sugar
2 cups water
1 large banana, sliced
½ fresh pineapple
2 cans Minute Maid Fresh Frozen Lemonade colored ice cubes.
1 quart charged water

Place sugar and water in heavy pan. Stir over moderate heat just until sugar is dissolved. Bring to a boil and boil five minutes. Allow syrup to cool. Place sliced banana in punch bowl and add syrup. Peel pineapple and cut in finger-length strips. Add to banana-syrup mixture. Blend Minute Maid Fresh Frozen Lemonade with water following directions on can and add to fruit. Chill with ice cubes which have been colored with 4 or 5 drops pink vegetable colering before freezing. Just before serving add charged water. Serves 15-20.

FRESH FROZEN ORANGE SODA

2 tablespoons Minute Maid Fresh Frozen Orange Juice
Vanilla ice cream
Charged water

Place fresh frozen orange juice in tall glass. Add 1 scoop vanilla ice cream. Fill glass with charged water. Stir and serve immediately. Serves 1.

PINK LEMONADE PUNCH

2 cans Minute Maid Fresh Frozen Lemonade
Water
¼ cup grenadine
1 cup sliced strawberries, fresh or frozen

Blend fresh frozen lemonade with water following directions on can. Pour into large punch bowl over ice cubes or block of ice. Stir in grenadine. Just before serving float sliced strawberries on to the punch. Serves 12.

MINT COOLER

6 springs fresh mint
¼ cup sugar
½ cup water
1 can Minute Maid Fresh-Frozen Lemonade
Green vegetable coloring

Wash and dry mint leaves, reserving 6 for garnish. Chop with a sharp knife and place in saucepan with sugar and water. Stir over moderate heat until sugar is dissolved. Bring to a boil then reduce heat to simmer. Allow mixture to simmer 5 minutes without stirring.

Cool. Strain. Blend fresh-frozen lemonade with water following directions on can. Add to mint syrup. Blend in 4 or 5 drops green vegetable coloring to tint. Pour over ice cubes in tall glasses. Garnish with mint leaves. Serves 6.

Sees Hope For Schizophrenics

NEW YORK—The chances of partial or total recovery from schizophrenia, the most common of the serious mental illnesses, have never doubled in the past twenty-five years, it was reported this week by the National Association for Mental Health.

A study made by the organization based on results in New York State mental hospitals revealed that the rate of improvement or recovery from this illness in 1928 was less than 30 percent, while today it is 55 percent. As hospitals improve their facilities and staffing to make use of the existing methods of treatment, it is expected that the rate of recovery will continue to rise.

Early Care Required

"Mental patients have a good chance of recovery if they get proper care and treatment at an early stage of their illness," the report states. "Insulin, shock and electric shock treatment, which have come into wide use in the past decade, have contributed to improvement and recovery rates running as high as 80 percent for selected groups suffering from certain of the mental illnesses."

The total number of patients in mental hospitals today is 650,000 the Association reveals, "as many as there are in all other hospitals combined." This represents an increase of 20 percent since 1940. There are about 680 mental hospitals in the United States and 97 percent of the beds for mental patients are in public hospitals operated by states, counties, cities, and the federal government.

Chiffon Or Plain Pecan Pie Is Good

You can never have too many pie recipes, and there'll be a special place in the recipe file for a summer party pie as light and fluffy looking as Butterscotch Pecan Chiffon Pie.

Here's the General Electric Consumers Institute recipe:

Butterscotch Pecan Chiffon Pie (Tested in the GE Consumers Institute)

1 envelope plain unflavored gelatin (1 tablespoon)
3 tablespoons water
3 egg yolks
3 egg whites
1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 cup milk, scalded
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 cup salted pecans, coarsely chopped
1 baked 9-inch pie shell

Soften gelatin in water for 5 minutes. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually beat in ½ cup brown sugar, then milk. Add butter and salt.

Cook in 2-quart saucepan on a medium heat, stirring until slightly thickened. Remove from unit. Stir in gelatin, cool. Add vanilla extract. Chill in refrigerator until almost completely firm.

Remove from refrigerator and stir vigorously. Beat egg whites until glossy and stiff. Add ¼ cup brown sugar and fold into egg mixture. Fold with nuts into chilled thickened custard.

Pour into pie shell. Chill in refrigerator until firm. Garnish with whole pecans if desired. Makes one 9-inch pie.

And here's a Pecan Pie recipe for those who like more nuts than the chiffon texture. This one is baked in the oven of your electric range.

Pecan Pie (Tested in the GE Consumers Institute)

1¼ cups sugar
½ cup light corn sirup
¼ cup butter or margarine
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup unsalted pecans
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell

Combine sugar, corn sirup and butter in 1-quart saucepan. Bring to boil on a high heat, stirring constantly until butter is melted. Gradually add hot sirup to beaten eggs, stirring constantly. Add pecans to first mixture and cool to lukewarm.

Add vanilla extract to filling. Pour filing into pie shell. Bake in oven 450 degrees F for 40-45 minutes. Makes one 9-inch pie.
