Road To Attack Site

Shown is the side road which leads to the site of the criminal attack on a 16-year-old girl on July 15. The main road is 500 feet away, and its access is completely hidden by the foliage of the surrounding trees. Anne Arundel County police searched the area and found beer and soft drink bottles which the girl stated her assailant threw out of the car.

Soldier Held For Attack

police court hearing was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate DeAlba on an assault charge.

NAACP Lawyers Present

At the hearing Wednesday, NAACP attorneys John Hargrove and Juanita Mitchell assisted in the prosecution of the case.

Witnesses charged that the mad-dog tactics of the soldier terrorized women living in the twin communities of Severn and Harmon, Md.

Allen lives in a small cottage near Severn, with his wife and two children.

When notified of the attack, Anne Arundel County police, under direction of Capt. Wilbur Wade, scoured the area in a search for the suspect.

Identifies Suspect

Accompanied by Captain Wade and a patrolman, the attack victim and her mother were placed in a police patrol car and driven to Fort Meade. As the police car neared the Army camp, the girl saw a soldier walking on the road and screamed:

"Stop, that's him."

Quickly reversing the patrol car, Captain Wade stopped the soldier. Later identified as Allen, and asked him whether he recognized the girl.

When the man admitted taking the girl out, the police placed him under arrest.

Residents At Trial

At the hearing, Wednesday, spectators began filing into the tiny courtroom almost an hour before the 10 o'clock hearing.

Although the seating arrangements aren't segregated, the many white and colored spectators sat on different sides of the room.

As the soldier, dressed in civilian clothes — floral shirt and brown pants—was led into the courtroom by Captain Wade, the spectators excitedly whispered to each other.

As he stood at the rail in front of the magistrate, Allen—balding, bespectacled, and bewildered — twitched nervously.

The girl, quiet, and very small for her age, gave her testimony in a weak, quavering voice. Several times Magistrate DeAlba had to ask her to speak louder.

After the man left her house, he rode her around for quite a distance, the girl said, and finally went up a side road and parked in a spot hidden from the main road.

The young pupil said she resisted his first advances, but Allen forcibly continued to molest her.

When her assailant awakened, he went to the rear seat again and renewed his advances. When she resisted, Allen "cut me for about five minutes," the young high school pupil charged.

After beating the girl, the man reportedly attacked her again.

Girl Cites Fear

When the frail, 100-pound girl reached this portion of her testimony, Magistrate DeAlba incredulously asked:

"Why didn't you leave when he was asleep?"

She timorously answered: "I was afraid."

"Fantastic!" declared the magistrate.

Allen is a six-footer, weighing at least 200 pounds.

Paul Yeager, attorney for Allen, then interjected: "You thought it was good to have a white boy, didn't you?"

Using the loudest tone she employed throughout the hearing, the tiny victim said: "No Sir!"

Spectators Insulted

At the lawyer's question, a swelling murmur came from the colored spectators and the court bailiff had to admonish them against the outburst.

Although subjected to persistent questioning by the attorney, the girl stuck to her story that Allen forced intimacies with her.

On advice of his attorney, the soldier did not testify.

On the basis of the attack victim's testimony, Magistrate DeAlba held Allen for the grand jury. When the man's lawyers asked for bail, the magistrate refused, saying he had no authority to set bail in such a serious case.

The community where the criminal attack occurred is just a few miles from Freetown, the home of Thomas Edwards who was convicted of killing a white couple in 1948.

Although originally sentenced to hang, Edwards' death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor McKeldin.

Community Residents Discuss Attack

Some of the Severn, Md., residents who attended the trial of the white soldier charged with attacking a 16-year-old high school pupil. Although the woman on the steps seems to be elated over the soldier's arrest, the other women typify the outraged feeling which permeated the entire community when news of the attack spread. The soldier reportedly lured his young victims from their homes with the promise of a high-paying baby sitting job.

Say He Couldn't Be That Foolish

No man would be so foolish to flee a cop who has broken up one dice game in the street and lead him to another in his house reasoned Judge Herman M. Moser in Criminal Court, Tuesday.

With such logic he found James Sturdevant, 29, of the 900 block E. Madison Ave. not guilty of disturbing the peace.

—Sturdevant, however, was found guilty of carrying a deadly weapon a knife, and fined $37.90.

Broke Up Game

Officer Howard J. Bayne, of the Northeastern District, had testified that around 1:40 a.m. on July 12 he broke up a dice game at the corner of Etting and Madison.

He said he chased one man, Sturdevant, to a house in the 100 block Madison. The officer said he heard names like "Jade" coming from the house and when he finally admitted Sturdevant admitted gambling had been going on there.

But the court ruled Sturdevant couldn't be so foolish as to lead the officer out of the frying pan into the fire.

MARTINSVILLE, Va.—Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wooten and their children of this city spent their vacation in NYC, visiting Mrs. Susie W. Mitchell, sister of Mr. Wooten. They also visited in Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Heat-Hit Baltimoreans Shy On Giving Parties

—with Lula Jones Garrett—

Socially speaking, it was just too hot for Baltimoreans to be bothered, this week.

I can't remember a week on the calendar when the doings were so scarce. Most of the town folks took a cue from Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Alleyne, who had plotted a party for their house guest, Mrs. Ethel Burgess Robinson of Chicago, but reneged when even the guest reneged.

Mrs. Robinson motored here with her brother, Capt. James R. Burgess Jr., who reported for duty at Holabird. Flew back at the week end, after seeing much of this town and Washington, informally.

Sarah Rayne, however, differed . . . and with a very lovely garden party on Wednesday afternoon. But it was at the cool spot of her shore place, and honored two visiting sisters, Mesdames Margaret Rakestraw of Los Angeles, Calif. and Martha Snowden of New York City.

The sisters were as cute a trio as you've seen in many a moon, all wearing clipped poodle cuts as to hairdos, Mrs. Rakestraw in powder blue pongee; Mrs. Snowden in pale butter-colored linen and the hostess in pale beige shangtung, lace-trimmed.

About to share a buffet supper, to watch the sun sink gloriously into the water, were:

Mae Adams, Lillian Parrott, Ethel Bowling, Catherine Mayo, Mildred Seaborne, Verna Gosnell, Agnes Williams, Viola Jackson, Vivian Bundy, Rose Hampton, Lottie Shaw, Eugenia Phillips and Ines Redmond.

PARTY AT BRANDYWINE

But if you are a man with a line, or a gun, the weather is never too unfoward for a frolic.

Hence the Bay Haven Rod and Gun Club held forth at a crab feast at the Brandywine, Md., home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Cardwell.

Organized in March, the group has had a lot of fun and made some nice catches on the Patuxent, Potomac and Severn rivers and the Chesapeake Bay.

Members include George E. Smith, George Gordon, Horace Miller, Griffin Datcher, Oscar Crawford of this town; Perkins Ward of Washington, and E. Monroe Nance, Joseph Jenifer, and John Dotson of Brandywine; with honorary members:

WOMEN PICNIC

The Democratic Women's Club held forth at their annual picnic, at Elktonia Beach, Sunday.

Mrs. Grace Johnson, chairman, and a committee including Mesdames Zelma Johnson, Frances Stafford, Queenie Lane and Lillian Hebrune arranged the affair.

And did they have fun! Rivers Chambers' orchestra members (Samuel W. Speek, Pike Davis and Bobby Lucas) meandered from table to table serenading the group . . . inducing individuals to put on their own dances.

Grace Johnson, always charming and attractive, and particularly so Sunday in blue and white sun-back bolero frock with matching cap and shoes, was voted by all the guests had the proper sipables.

Victorine Adams, club head, who had been ailing, kept close to the sun porch of her cottage, there, but made quite a picture in white jersey play suit, hair tied high with a ribbon. Frances Stafford was smart in sand colored slacks and Vivian Moody in a green cool-le coat and dark slacks.

Among the scores of others about were:

Sue Reddick, who fetched quite a party, Queenie Lane, Zelma Johnson, Nicki Randolph, Geneva Hillien, Anne Blair, Mary Thomas, Rosena Ridgely.

Blanche Day, Grace Giles, Lola Mallory, Juliet Thomas and a couple of brides, Edith Daily in gray denim slacks with matching hat, and Theodora Mortelle Spede, also in smart slacks.

HARRISES HOSTS

The Harrises (Box and Ivy) entertained at their Ruxton Ave. home, recently, in honor of her sister, Leila Logan, who celebrated a birthday.

Showering the honoree with gifts and good wishes were Mary and Clarence Mahler, Richard and Hortense Perkins, John and Genesta Lane, Charles and Veronica Peaco, Osborne and Ivy Carroll, Phenson, and Mattie Chapman, Alphonson and Nellie Huttington, William and Eloise Richardson of Annapolis, Nicki Randolph, Helen Glover, Elizabeth Davage, Mary Dearman, Mary Fernandez, Dr. Broadus K. White of Washington, Dr. Edward B. Wallace, Jack Bonds, Enoch Mason, Dinman Fulton and John Weatherford of Annapolis.

TO TRAVEL

Members of the Lucky 13 club gathered in a group of friends and took off for an arranged tour to enjoy the eternal wonder of Niagara Falls, the beauties and hospitality of Canada and the bustle of Buffalo.

Their reserved coach took them to such points of interest is the Luna and Goat Islands, Cave of Winds, Horse shoe Falls, and Three Sister Islands.

They saw all the wonders of the Falls, traveled over the Whirlpool Rapids bridge and into Canada. They stayed in Canadian homes to be especially thrilled with the hospitality and enjoy Canadian cookery.

On the trip were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Clarence Fairfax and Leroy Bean; Mesdames Mary E. Squirrell, Mamie Parmine, Frances Evans, Margaret Warren, Novella Merks.

Mesdames Theophilla Sorilio, Marie Nealy, Henrietta Fairfax, Mary Heggie, Adele Moody, who is president of the club, Rose White, treasurer; and Estella Fairfax, secretary.

Misses Sadie Brown, Lillian Brown, Elaine Fairfax, Joy Heggie; Glenwood and Alton Warren, Hugh Vascuez, Elmor McClam, Earl Alston, John Heggie, and Jesse Moody, Jr.

MR. MURPHY 82

Dr. George B. Murphy, Sr. marked his eighty-second birthday, Tuesday, but the family got together for the celebration on Sunday, at Brinklow Inn, Ashton.

For the day and dinner with him were Mr. and Mrs. D. Arnett Murphy, Mrs. Mae Dyson, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Murphy and their mother, Mrs. Rose Davidson; Mrs. Emily Orchard and Mrs. Emily Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Murphy and their daughter, Catherine.

MISS CONWAY WED

On Saturday morning at a nuptial mass in St. Peter Claver Catholic Church, Rita A. Conway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Conway, Sr., became Mrs. Matthias William.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Marcella Williams.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Father Cassorly, with the bride being given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister, Mrs. Marie E. Smith. Joseph E. Smith was best man.

WINGORS PICNIC

The Wingors (club of Baltimoreans and Washingtonians) picnicked at Elsie-Crest, the Creston Wolgust's place at Mogothy Park, Sunday.

For the day's festivities, there, were:

The Charles Reids, Jake Avants, Wilbur Jamesee, Howard Burton, Dr. and Mrs. Calvin Johnson, Jerome Richardson.

Erkie Smith, Minerva Welling, Susie West, Herbert Prettyledge, Louise Lara, Charlie Highnight, the Gardner Jonesses, the Earl Stevens, Creston Wolngust of the Monumental City; and

PEREGRINATORS

Mr. and Mrs. Medford Reynolds turned the nose of their car westwards, this week, for a vacation-as-the-whim-visited-them.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal Weaver and their small son are off to Cincinnati to visit his brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jones.

MR. JACKSON FETED

Lee Femmes, husband, and friends gathered Saturday night in the club cellar of W. O. Earl W. Jackson to celebrate his return home after 18 months of service in Korea.

The homoree added to the occasion by presenting oriental fans to all of the ladies.

About to help celebrate were:

Dolly Chester, Tessie Quarles, Melvina Jackson, Nellie Wright, Verna Mason, Virginia Pendleton, Madeline Allen, Suite Watson, Dorothy Jackson, Lillian Scott, Doris Payne, Louise Wallace, Patrica Owens, James Pendleton, Arnold Watson, Richard Willis, W. O. Thomas Owens, Harry Bennett, Millard Scott, Clarence Pullen, Clif Wallace, Lonnie Sprull.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Washington of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Les Femmes, took time out from their plans for their annual vacation jaunt to Atlantic City this week-end to motor down to the Maryland School for the Blind to present them with a check for $100 to help decorate the reception room for girls.

Music Lover Hears New Tune

A chronic record fan who prefers all night jam sessions at her friends home to taking care of her six children, heard a new tune Thursday morning at Pine St. Station.

The song — held for grand jury at under $500 bail.

According to her husband, the woman, Mrs. Audrey Jones of the 1400 block Laurens St. has been staying away from her children at night for several months.

When asked where she stayed, the tall, heavy-set mother finally mumbled out that she visited her girl friends.

And what did they do?

Well, they sat up all night listening to records.

Sometimes the sessions lasted until six, seven, or eight o'clock at night for several months.

Asfor the care of her children, well that was her husband's responsibility, she said.

Young-Jackson Wedding Ceremony In Baltimore

Photographed following the wedding of Miss Inez Jackson and Edward Young in Baltimore, last week, were, left to right, Mr. and Mrs. H. Henry Brown and son, John H. Brown, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Young, the Rev. John W. Lemon, great great uncle of the bride, who officiated, Mrs. Lemon, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson, parents of the bride.

Young-Jackson Ceremony Held

Miss Inez Jackson became the bride of Mr. Edward Young in a double ring ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Driver, 339 Bloom St. The bride's great great uncle, the Rev. John W. Lemon assisted by the Rev. Arthur Lemon performed the ceremony.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of baby blue nylon net and Chantilly lace, and a shoulder-length veil of the same hue. She carried a prayer book adorned with a white orchid.

Miss Williams Attends

Miss Jackson was attended by Mrs. Charlotte Williams who chose a frock of yellow nylon with a matching hat and accessories and carried a purple orchid.

Mr. Young, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown had as his best man Luther Locke of this city.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson, is a graudate of Morgan State College and has spent some time substituting in the secondary schools of Baltimore.

The reception was held on the lawn.

Out-of-town guests included:

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. John W. Lemon, Mrs. Brooks Thompson, William, Albert and Leon Grandison, Mrs. Elias Cooke and her son, Joseph, of Gloucester, Va; Mr. and Mrs. Madison Bluford of Jersey City, Mr. and Mrs. Amos H. Ward, Mrs. Vila Whiting and Isiah Burrell of Philadelphia Pa; Mr. Herbert Schaefer of Pineburst and Mrs. H. C. Richardson and daughter, Claire of Homeland.

Bettye T. McLeod Marks Birthday

In addition to the music of the seventh musicians and the soloist, there will be community singing and the Baltimore City Chorus will join in the program.

The public is invited to attend this outstanding summer concert.

Pearlie's Prattle

By PEARLIE COX

WASHINGTON

Lawyers were all over Collins, Saturday.

The Washington Bar Association, Joel Blackwell head, was holding its annual outing, and many of the guys, their wives, their children, their friends, arrived in droves.

Indeed, if the need for legal aid had come to stay-at-home folks, we wonder who in the world would have answered the call.

Perry Howard didn't show up at the outing. He had to rest up at Highland Beach after his Mississippi committeemen tasks at the recent Republican convention. Dean George A. Parker was busy helping his pretty Alicia check up on nursery rhymes they both will be humming soon, and smart young Austin Ficling was recovering from the shock of having to fly to a Southern town to pick his stricken Julia up, the lovely becoming ill while visiting her son-in-law and daughter and their babe.

But absentees were few and far between.

And how lucky those barristers were! The day was made for just such outings. There was a hint of a sprinkle at dinnertime, but who cared at all, since tables were set inside. And besides, the few cooling raindrops brought still more comfort to guests already enjoying the near-perfect atmosphere.

Not only that. Early in the season, the Shirley K. Hotel heard the lawyers were coming. And what did it do but build up the beach and open "Ye Ole Swimming Hole."

Nor did the lawyers themselves ever work harder at playing hosts. Fearing their followers might hunger or thirst e'er the dinnerbell rang, the affable Harold Hawthorne and his big committee, piled snack-styled items—eggs, potato chips, pretzels, cheese, soft drinks (some a little harder too) on to tables and bade everybody, "Come please, eat."

They brought along cards and other games, and even though of easy chairs that they could fold up and take along.

Among those present were:

President and Mrs. Joel Blackwell, Judges and Mesdames Armond W. Scott and Andrew J. Howard; Ex-President Judge and Mrs. Kinney and Mrs. McKinney.

Messrs. and Mesdames Hubert Pair, Charles Lovett, William S. Thompson, Henry H. Neeley, Richard R. Atkinson, S. Robinson, James M. Leak, Theodore A. Brown, Ambrose Shue, Waylande McClellan, Thurman Dodson, Andrew H. Jackson, Joseph Waddy, Harold Hawthorne (also the he smart Peggy, "Sweetheart of the Ball").

Messrs. and Mesdames Jesse Jenkins, George Woods, Charles Bundy, Richard Stenger, James Laws; also the Beckwiths (she's Irene, writer of church news for the APRO AMERICAN).

Messdames Alma Cunningham, Lena Belle Keith, Mabel Cooke, Lillie Taylor, and Opal Edmonston, Texas guest of the Wayland McClellans
