Kellie Heath, Jones Give Summer Recital

Scores of local music lovers nearly filled the auditorium of Turner AME Church Sunday for the summer recital by Killie R. Heath, soprano, and Washington C. Jones, tenor.

The event was sponsored by the Past Masters Council of Pythagoras Lodge of Masons. Irving J. Smith, president. J. D. Barnes was chairman of the committee on arrangements. Proceeds went to the charity fund of the council.

Reginald Parker was accompanist for both singers. Washington C. Jones sang Jerome Kern's "Old Man River."

Duke's Driver Gets 4 Years

Manning Held For Violating Dope Law

NEW YORK—(CNS)—Duke Ellington's secretary and chauffeur, Willie Manning, was sentenced in Federal court this week for four years for violating the narcotics law.

Manning had been working for Ellington for 19 years when arrested at the wheel of his employer's car. The convertible was seized when Manning admitted using it to arrange drug sales but the Duke has since recovered possession.

According to Assistant U.S. Attorney James E. Branigan Jr., Manning arranged sales for Horace Murphy, $150,000-a-year leader of the gang, which brought marijuana from Mexico to New York.

Murphy has been sentenced to 8 years and five others in the gang have received sentencing with five more awaiting verdicts.

Art, Science Play Stellar Roles At Teachers' Workshop

SALISBURY, N. C.—'Art, science and physical education played stellar roles last week in activities of in-service teachers attending a general workshop for teachers at Livingstone College.

Designed to assist teachers to cope with various teaching problems and for teachers to share experiences with other teachers, the workshop which had been in progress for five weeks closed Friday.

Consultants and specialists taking part, last week were Miss Helen Stewart (physical education), State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh; John W. Nicholson (science), instructor at Price High School, Salisbury; and Leon D. Mead (art), American, Crayon Company, Sandusky, Ohio.

Other Consultants

Other consultants appearing during the session have been:

S. G. Crater, Scott, Foresman and Company; Mrs. Addie O. Williams, John C. Winston Company; Dr. Rost B. Brown, North Carolina College; Miss Cora Bomar, State Department of Public Instruction;

Miss Daisy Walker, supervisor of N. C. elementary schools; Dr. R. M. Fink, State Department of Health, Raleigh; W. H. Hill, instructor in Durham schools; Jack Henderson, Row, Peterson, and Company; Dr. S. E. Duncan, supervisor of high schools; and James E. Gerow, Houghton-Mifflin Company.

Arnold E. Hoffman of the State Department of Public Instruction appeared Monday as music advisor. Open House was held Thursday. Mrs. Nell B. Baldwin, supervisor of Wayne County schools, directed the workshop.

'First Run' Films of The Week in Review

"The Captive City," an expose of organized gangsterism, now at the Regent, has the endorsement of Senator Estes Kefauver.

The Senator, calling the story "courageous and honest," also spoke in the epilogue. Proceeds from his appearance was donated to the Cordell Hull Foundation for World Peace.

The film co-stars John Forsythe and Joan Camden, the former as a crusading newspaperman; the latter, as his wife.

Senator Kefauver put his O.K. on the film because it "courageously, honestly and accurately shows for the first time the real cause of organized crime, racketeering and gangsterism in this country."

'SALLY AND ST. ANNE' COMEDY AT THE HARLEM

"Sally and Saint Anne," now at the Harlem, co-stars Ann Blyth and Edmund Gwenn and tells of the tribulations of a robust Irish-American family beset by the machinations of an unscrupulous enemy.

While comedy is the basis of the plot, true-to-life "touches" abound in the telling and account for the warmly human feeling imparted by the film.

As Sally O'Moyne, Miss Blyth draws upon her own Irish nature and background in maintaining her mood. Gwenn is seen as her grandfather.

As a mortal enemy of the O'Moynes, John McIntire earns the nomination of "Meanest Man of the Year" in Hollywood.

'KING KONG' RETURNS IN AMAZING CLASSIC

A giant 50-foot ape brought from a tropic isle, wages an epic battle in "King Kong," now at the Met, with Fay Wray and Bruce Cabot co-starred.

"King Kong" returns to the screen after a retirement of several years to thrill the public again as vigorous and awe-inspiring as ever.

The huge man-made ape made his debut a few years ago to crash to a spectacular death from the highest building in New York after finally releasing a beautiful girl to her rescuers.

The daring deception which made a studio "prop" a thing of such realistic animation, made theatre audiences all over the world gasp.

ROD CAMERON IN ROLE OF LEADER

Rod Cameron plays the adventurous role of a wagon master in "Wagons West," his latest starring vehicle, now at the New Albert.

In the early days of the west, the leader of the wagon trains carrying migrants across the dangerous Indian plains were regarded as heroes.

In "Wagons West," Cameron is confronted with danger when he learns that two of the wagons are loaded with contraband arms: rifles, being smuggled to the warring Cheyenne tribe.

His life as well as the lives of others are threatened many times before he can get out of his difficulties, which lead to suspenseful action.
