PEOPLE'S COLUMN.

MR. GRANGER. READ THIS.

EDITORS OF THE TRANSCRIPT:

Patrons of Husbandry: A secret society first formed in Washington in 1867, and known as the Patrons of Husbandry. The subordinate lodges were known as granges, hence the party named.

The object was called co-operative among farmers in purchasing supplies from first hands, thereby doing away with middle men. And while declaring not to be political, in order to serve the interest of certain land ends, it became necessary that individuals representative of their interests should be in Congress, and to serve this purpose the combined influence of the grangers was secretly brought to bear in voting, so that in time a strong political party was in actual existence, somewhat on the principle of the No-nothings.

I want to tell you what I remember of the grange many years ago. I was a member, and I recollect a great many of my old associates who were with me, and I think I am the only living one of that band of farmers who lived near Kennedyville. The grange was composed of all farmers, or the tillers of the soil. I remember an instance when the grange appointed a committee to purchase phosphate, and two ef the committee were men from Pennsylvania, who thought they could always do better there than elsewhere. The orders were given by the farmers under a contract, which was to analyze so much. The phosphate was delivered and carried home by the farmers. The committee came to the conclusion that they would have it analyzed by the Delaware College and the Maryland Agricultural College. They found from the report the analysis was not up to the contract. They sent agents down to meet the grange, and they agreed to compromise with them by paying back a rebate of nearly two dollars per ton. We met as a rule about once a month. We had no one in the order at that time who were actually farmers. They formed other orders through the country and on the Shore. It soon became apparent that the committee of farmers was not in it. We had fellows to join the other granges who were phosphate agents, grain buyers, men who had wheat reapers, mowers and fodder twine to sell, and finally nurserymen and commission merchants. Now, you can readily see that the farmer was not in it. So things went on and the farmers gradually dropped out. I believe, even in this day, if the strict letter was carried out that the farmer alone were to control the grange, the order would be a great advantage to them.

Now the question arises, how are you going to get them out? To-day we find that the order is composed of a great many men who have no interest in the farmer except to get up a sentiment as to what he can raise, men in my opinion, who are of no good to him. If he raises a crop of wheat the price is set for him, if he grows tomatoes the country solicitor comes along and gets up a very low price. If he wants anything on the farm he has to sell for what he can get. I believe in our farmers getting close together, keeping their own secrets and letting these people who are not with them and the outside world understand that they want what is fair for what they raise. For instance take the tomato. You will find on the Eastern Shore of Maryland that some canneries pay $8, $9 and $10, while some pay only $7.40 and $7.80. Why should this be?

We all know what the farmer of today has to endure the uncertainty and the unfairness of labor in both the house and in the field. Who is the servant now but the farmer's wife. The result is just this, that the farmer cannot raise the crops which he formerly raised. He breaks his wheat ground and cannot obtain labor to get it in good condition, he buys phosphate, which may be ever so good, but if he fails to put his land in condition he cannot expect to raise his crop. No phosphate can raise a good crop unless the land is put into condition to receive it. Then we know, allowing that our land is in good condition and that we have good phosphate, if our returns are 20 bu. per acre after all expenses are paid, there is very little coming to the farmer. I think, though I may be wrong, that to sustain the Grange would be to have no one belong to it except those who were actually tillers of the soil, those who had to bear the burden in the heat of the day. It may bring back a party feeling in regard to labor that A would not want to hire his neighbor B's man nor say to him, "If you will come and work for me I will give you enough corn to fatten your horse and the same wages my neighbor B gives you." This I am told is a frequent occurrence. In other instances A would hire his man, furnish him a horse and by the middle of the year the horse is pretty well driven down; B says to the hired man, "you should have a better horse. If you will come to work for me I have a nice young horse I will let you have and give you so much." The hired man says, "I cannot get away from Mr. A unless I pay him so much." Well, says B, make the arrangement; I will pay him what you owe him;" so you may know the result.

Now I cannot help but remember well, years ago, our butchers and particularly in Chestertown, did not have to send to Baltimore and Wilmington for their beef as the farmers raised enough right in the county. I have seen some of the best beef which could be had right in our old market house. I have known the butchers here, if they could not get good mutton in Kent county, to go to Queen Annes county, and I think the best mutton I have seen was hanging here in our market house.

Years ago, immediately after the haying season you would not come to town that you did not see hay going or coming. Where do we get our hay now? Very few loads come to Chestertown. Now sum it up and see what we have lost from the cattle, sheep and hay. Could not the Grange revive that and bring it back to our county? Another thing we find, not only do these people who are not farmers set the price for wheat, corn, etc., but everything the farmer raises. There is a committee by which the price of the farmer's wife's poultry, eggs, etc., is determined. She drags through the heat and rain for this little money to clothe her loved ones. A few years ago I had a talk with a prominent Chestertown man who said: "We do not get the produce like we used to get." No; well, the cause was that the poor woman did not have the time to devote to poultry, but had her little ones to care for. I asked how he was getting along, as he had a great many customers who were farmers. "Well, said he, "I can always tell how they are getting along; if they do not take out any more than they are bringing in, I conclude that they are getting along pretty good."

There is somethiug else I hear that our grange people have feasts. Now, this is very well. The husband comes home and tells his wife that they are going to have a feast. "Well, what shall we have?" Not less than four chickens, two old hens, a ham and a batch of biscuits. It takes her and the hired girl a day for this, and it winds up with her doing what the hired girl will not do. Now, this is hardly over before the husband will say: "We must go to the bay shore, the first day, which is Sunday, and you will have to get ready as we may have company from the city." The wife will say: "What will it take; four spring chickens, two old ones, a ham and biscuits." The day comes and they start with their loved ones to see the amusements. The older boys notify their parents that they must have a dollar. We thinned your corn and picked your tomatoes. They go on, buy some ice cream while the older ones go to the shooting gallery, where they get rid of the little money given them.

Now, I am told by reliable people that our farmers spend more money there and that those people receive more money from our people than from any one else. It is not likely that they leave until the last boat comes; it may be that one of their boys is on the boat going up the Susquehannah river and stops at the first town on the left with others to get a supply of the ardent.

PROGRESS.

WHY WEAK LUNGS?

The toll of tuberculosis is claiming more than 350 victims every day in the United States, yet few realize their grave condition until the critical period arrives.

Overwork, worry, weakness after sickness, catarrh, bronchitis, tender throats—all exert the weakening influence that invites consumption.

To guard against consumption, thousands of people take Scott's Emulsion after meals because its rich medicinal nourishment strengthens the lungs, puts vigor in the blood, and upbuilds strength to resist tuberculosis. Scott's Emulsion is nature's strength-builder. Refuse substitutes.

Your Own Porch Better than a Country Cottage

These water-proof shades come in a great variety of colors. They admit just the proper amount of good fresh air yet maintain perfect seclusion to those upon the porch.

They transform any porch into a perfect resting place. The NO-WHIP ATTACHMENT with which these shades are equipped prevent flapping of the shade. The shades successfully keep out the hot rays of the sun and while they maintain the porch cool and comfortable, admit just the proper amount of light.

Call and see our display or a telephone call will bring the "Aerolux" man who will show you color samples and then if you wish, take the measurements of your porch.
