—Eisenhower Special

the train for a ride—actually the Eisenhower train picks up from 20 to 20 local politicians at every whistle stop. The general pattern is for candidates to ride the train a few stops through their voting area, pose with Ike before various crowds of voters, then leave the train to return to their campaigning.

The Unusual Angle

What was unusual was the fact that Representative Lawrence was a colored man and the first of his race to be given a "lift" by Ike.

It was no accident, however, that Lawrence was taken aboard. In fact, his ride can be taken as part of an overall plan designed by Eisenhower staff member Fred Morrow for increased activity from colored people in the Eisenhower campaign.

Morrow, who was borrowed from the Columia Broadcasting System, boarded with Eisenhower aboard the train Monday and it is known he expressed concern that local committees were not giving enough attention to colored voters' participation in the campaign.

Word aboard the train is that Ike gave Morrow a willing ear and that from here on local committees will be instructed to see that colored Republicans get in on the show.

No Absence of Support

There is no absence of colored support in any of the cities and whistle stops visited by Eisenhower—it's simply that up to this point it appears local committees have just failed to include them.

It should also be pointed out that this lack of participation can not be blamed on Ike, who makes it plain wherever he goes that he is out to win "the support of all Americans."

Morrow's job at Louisville was made easier on Monday by the work of a liberal Republican candidate for Congress, John M. Robinson, who, it was learned, insisted that a colored man sit on the platform when Ike spoke here.

Reliable sources said Robinson agreed to sit on the platform if it was lily-white because he is a strict party man, but, it is said, he insisted that he would protest the move by not allowing his wife to sit on the platform.

Dr. Thomas on Platform

Since Robinson is generally conceded to be a winner in the coming election, the local committee agreed to let him have his way and Dr. J. E. Thomas, president of the National Dental Association, was seated on the platform.

Robinson, whom this writer interviewed on the train en route to Louisville, showed a deep liberal viewpoint toward colored people and a keen insight into their problems and voting habits.

He is on record as having promised he will appoint a colored person to his secretarial staff and he assured the writer Monday that he will keep his promise.

Robinson told the NNPA that leadership such as that offered by Eisenhower means a new type of leadership among Republicans "who feel and recognize the necessity of giving the colored American the rights which are his."

He says the new leadership in the Republican party recognizes that it needs the colored vote to win and that it also recognizes that the best way to get it is to give the colored man his just rights.

Lawrence Interviewed

Representative Lawrence was also interviewed on the train. He was high in his praise of Ike, but he admitted that the Republicans are going to have a difficult time convincing the majority of colored voters in Kentucky to go Republican.

When asked how Republicans could step up their program towards winning the colored vote, Lawrence said:

He Fears Sparkman

"Our people should be reminded that 'although many of them are doing all right now, they should not forget the thousands who are not doing as well. They should be also be reminded that Sparkman as Vice President would be in line to be the next president and that Stevenson has no lease on life any more than anyone else.

"The Republicans," Lawrence continued, "should put colored persons in prominent places where they can be seen and heard and not just talked about. In that way, they will inspire other colored people."

Asked to give his views on Ike, Lawrence said:

Platform Shackles Ike

"I personally think he is a very noble character and a sincere fair-minded man. But I am having difficulty convincing others that Ike would use all his power and influence if he is elected to bring about equality for them.

"Ike suffers from the GOP platform. I think he is more liberal than the platform."

Lawrence said other colored persons in Louisville who are working for the Republican ticket include Dr. Thomas, John L. Leake, insurance man; Charles Anderson, former member of the State legislature; Colon Page, business man, and Mrs. Willie Guest.

He said there are about 30,000 colored voters in the Jefferson county area.

back an elderly white woman waved a confederate flag vigorously.

Discusses Race Friction

In a speech climaxing a five-hour visit in this former capital of the Confederacy, Stevenson said many of the differences between the races in the south, often attributed to race prejudice, are actually economic.

"Here, economically depressed white and economically depressed colored citizens have often had to fight over already gnawed bones. Then there ensued that most pathetic of struggles: the struggle of the poor against the poor."

Sticks To Speech

Adhering closely to his 40-paragraph prepared speech, Stevenson talked on southern progress in the last 20 years under Democratic administration that have been in power since 1932.

He declared:

"The task of striking off the shackles of the south, begun by Woodrow Wilson, has brought you to your rightful place in the union, not as a matter of charity, not as a sectional matter, but because a happy purposeful people in a strong prosperous country is the Democratic goal.

"I hope that it may be possible for us to keep all that was good of the old south, while embracing all that is good of the new south."

Discusses Civil Rights

Turning to civil rights, Stevenson said:

"Just as the governmental contributions of the south sometimes were not fully appreciated in the past, so, too, I suspect, some of the problems of the south have not been fully understood elsewhere.

"One of these is the problem of minorities — a problem which I have had occasion to think about a good deal, since my own state also has minority groups.

"One thing that I have learned is that minority tensions are always strongest under conditions of hardship."

Decries Red Pressure

"I utterly reject the argument that we ought to grant all men their rights just because if we do not we shall give Soviet Russia a propaganda weapon . . . it insultingly implies that were it not for the Communists we would not do what is right.

"The answer to this argument is that we must do right for right's sake alone.

"I reject as equally contemptible the reckless assertions that the south is a prison in which half the people are prisoners and the other half are wardens.

Amity Needed Everywhere

"But I do not attempt to justify the unjustifiable, whether it is anti-Negroism in one place, Anti-Semitism in another, or for that matter, anti-southernism in many places.

"And neither can I justify self-righteousness anywhere. Let none of us be smug on this score, for nowhere in the nation have we come to that state of harmonious relations between racial and religious groups to which we aspire."

Rebel Yells Heard

His remarks on civil-rights were interrupted several times by spontaneous applause from the audience

Rebel yells interspersed the two-minute ovation that greeted the Illinois governor when he appeared on the speaker's platform. As the cheering subsided Stevenson prefaced his prepared speech with the remark that "it isn't often that a Yankee gets to hear these rebel yells."

Governor Stevenson left by plane for New York immediately after the speech. He arrived in Richmond at 4:30 p.m.—one hour behind schedule—and was greeted by some 1,000 persons who lined Broad st. to watch the motorcade he headed.

The cars moved to the Capitol where Gov. Stevenson talked briefly and drew widespread applause with his humorous remarks.

Few Out In D.C.

Relatively few colored persons were on hand at the Military Air Transport Service airport in Washington Saturday morning to greet Governor Stevenson when he arrived there en route to Quantico, Virginia.

Among those in the crowd of 4,000 present at 8:45 a.m., when Stevenson alighted from his plane were William L. Houston and Wadley Hall, members of the District of Columbia Democratic Central Committee, and Joel D. Blackwell and E. Lewis Ferrell, president and recording secretary, respectively, of the Washington Bar Association.

Some of those present were able to get a quick handshake with the Governor, who spoke briefly and left by automobile for Quantico where he spoke later. His son Adlai, Jr., received a commission as a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps at the base at Quantico

Campbell in Spotlight

Although a number of dignitaries from the district of Columbia, including Commissioner F. Joseph (Jiggs) Donohue, were present to greet Stevenson, the brief show spotlighted only one politician in the Washington metropolitan area. He is Edmund Campbell, the Democratic candidate for Congress in the tenth district of Virginia.

Campbell ascended the steps leading to the plane and introduced himself to the Governor. The Stevenson spoke briefly, saying he was glad to be in Virginia because of his "ancient ancestral connections" with the State and that he would "achew politics for the date in deference—to the Jewish New Year."

Campbell is opposing Joel Broyhill, the Republican candidate. Both have embraced Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, one of the bitterest opponents of President Truman and the civil rights program.

Earlier in the week in Connecticut, Wilson Wyatt, personal campaign manager for the governor, had said that not only would the Mosque auditorium in Richmond Saturday, but that colored leaders in Richmond would be on the platform during his appearance.

He intimated that Governor Stevenson has no intentions of incurring the wrath of the colored public as General Eisenhower did when he ignored colored Republican leaders in Atlanta, Ga.

"We have been careful in our group relations in the official family to see to it that everybody is welcome wherever the Governor speaks," Wyatt declared.

'Peggy' Leake Held For Bribery

WASHINGTON

A colored undercover agent working with the vice squad this week was praised by the police department officials and criticized by the numbers fraternity for his work in nabbing Henry (Piggy) Leake, 44, on an attempted bribery charge.

Leake, arrested Friday on a charge of attempting to bribe a morals squad plainclothesman, was ordered held for action of the grand jury by Municipal Court Judge Mary Barlowe Monday after a five-hour preliminary hearing.

The undercover man, Wyatt J. Roy, 27, was the policeman responsible for springing the trap, that had a Hollywood touch to it, on the unsuspecting sportsman.

The sequence of events leading to the arrest of Leake began last Wednesday, according to Inspector Clarence H. Lutz, head of the vice squad.

Wants To Talk

On that day Pvt. Andrew Mackin, 27, also a member of the morals squad, told Officer Roy that Leake wanted to talk with him, it was said.

The undercover man reported this information to his superiors. He was told to go ahead with the proposition, police reported.

A rendezvous was arranged on Thursday night near the National Guard Armory. However, Leake failed to appear.

Another meeting was arranged, according to Inspector Lutz, at the same place. Late Friday night, it was said, Officer Roy was parked on East Capitol st., when Leake drove up in his 1952 Cadillac.

Hidden Mike

Hidden in the trunk of the undercoverman's car was a sensitive microphone hooked up to a tape recorder, which, police said, picked up the conversation between the two.

It was said that Leake gave Officer Roy $5 and promised him $50 a month if he "would play along" to permit Leake to operate his numbers racket.

After the alleged "deal" was made, Inspector Lutz led two other police cars out of hiding to arrest Leake.

The police official said that a total of $1,496.36 was confiscated from Leake. He had $63.91 in his pocket and $822.45 in his auto's glove compartment.

While Inspector Lutz said "I'm right proud of Private Roy," he revealed that Officer Mackin would be charged with making false charges to a superior officer.

Won't Elaborate

The inspector would not elaborate on the charges against the undercoverman, who reportedly made the initial contact with Leake. He would only say that he was not satisfied with the policeman's relations with the gambler and statements made concerning his association with Leake.

Judge Mary Barlow, of municipal court bench, reduced Leake's bond from $1,000 to $2,000 after the defendant explained that he was a native Washingtonian and owned considerable property here.

Asks Continuance

Ned A. Perry, assistant district attorney, asked Judge Barlow for a continuance to further investigate because others might be involved.

However, Curtis Mitchell, defense attorney, protested that the district attorney was attempting to circumvent the preliminary hearing.

Mr. Mitchell protested that the "police hijacked" the $1,496.36 from his client and asked the judge to compel the police department to return it.

This plea was denied by Judge Barlow.

Leake figured in the notorious Brass Rail shooting of January, 1948, which has been brought up in grand jury and congressional crime hearings.

Brass Rail Case

Leake was charged with shooting Charles H. Nelson, night manager of the Brass Rail. It was said that shooting was an outgrowth of a numbers war.

The Brass Rail was managed by Yvonne Simkins, wife of Roger (Whitetop) Simkins, reputed ex-numbers king.

Although assault with intent to kill charges were lodged against both Leake and Nelson neither went to jail. They were granted acquittals on directed verdicts by Judge Henry Schweinhaut on Nov. 20, 1948.

St. Louis Women Go Wild Over Ike; 12,000 On Hand

By JAMES L. HICKS

ST. LOUIS—St. Louis women went wild about Ike Saturday night and gave him the most enthusiastic welcome he has received during his entire campaign as he addressed a crowd of 12,000 members of the National Federation of Republican Women at Kiel auditorium.

Five prominent colored Republicans were in the official welcoming party which greeted Ike. They were:

Richardson, Lincoln University Law School, Dean; Mrs. T. D. Madison, 18th ward committeewoman. Mrs. Cora B. Ball, 18th ward committeeman. Sidney Redmond, alderman, 18th ward and Henry Espy, Mr. Redmond's law associate.

Still Bypasses Civil Rights

He has been doing his stuff in swing through the midwest. Ike made no reference to civil rights, but concentrated his attack on the mess in Washington. Ike appeared tired and was conspicuously hoarse.

But he scored time after time before his frenzied female audience with such down to earth phrases as "the broom in the hands of a woman is a mightier political weapon than the Bible."

In his St. Louis address Ike so refrained from referring to the Nixon case, but observers from the train including this writer, were convinced that it is safe bet that if Nixon does not clarify the $16,000 deal to Ike's satisfaction, he will be asked to withdraw from the race.

Although no colored people were observed on the huge platform; they were sprinkled throughout the unreserved section.

A political source listed the following colored people as being leaders in Republican circles here: Harold Gardner, attorney; Silas Garner, Billy Movant, the Rev. Russell Brown, and the Rev. Travis E. Bryant.

Our Women Arrive

Among the colored women travelling to St. Louis to participate in the GOP women's convention and the call for Ike, were Mrs. Sadie Williams, N.Y.; Mrs. Ruth C. McCord, state central committeewoman of Chicago; Mrs. William Peabham, Washington, and Mrs. Margaret Howell, Wayne, Ind.

Mrs. Williams arrived with the 26-woman N.Y. delegation headed by Mrs. Jane Todd and stayed with the delegation at the State Hotel.

It was learned that the colored women urged the GOP women to spell out their position on civil rights, and there was a move started to draft a strong resolution to be presented to the convention.

The move was sidestepped, however, when the women adopted a resolution declaring their support for everything in the GOP platform. It was then pointed out that no civil rights statement was necessary since the platform contains a civil rights statement.

'Aunt Jemima' Pancakes Outrank GOP Stalwarts

which Ike was an innocent victim came two days after Fred Morrow, assistant to Val Washington, had been flown to Moline, Ill., to join the Eisenhower train to help advise Ike towards better public relations in making an appeal to colored voters.

Morrow had no prior knowledge of what was coming until he stepped of the train and as Aunt Jemima, had no comment to make, but appeared disgusted at the proceedings.

After Ike had finished his usual "whistle-stop" speech at St. Joseph, the buxom woman stepped from the crowd, dressed in a red checked calico dress, a white apron and wearing a bandanna around her head.

Presents Pancakes To Ike

After being introduced to Ike as "Aunt Jemima" she presented him with a box of Aunt Jemima pancakes.

When this reporter questioned the woman as to her real name, she said she is Mrs. Mildred Denning of St. Joseph and that she has been employed as Aunt Jemima by the Quaker Oats Company for 11 years.

She said she is an Ike supporter.

As the writer questioned Mrs. Denning, Clarence Lemon stepped up and introduced himself as public relations officer for the St. Joseph division of Quaker Oats and expressed pride that Aunt Jemima was getting much attention from newsreel cameramen and photographers.

Proud Of 'Brain Child'

Stating that Aunt Jemima's presentation to Ike was his brain child, Lemon explained that St. Joseph is the home of the original Aunt Jemima, whom he termed "the greatest legendary character in the world, with the exception of Santa Claus."

He added, "there is some question as to whether Santa Claus is known as well as she is." Lemon said Aunt Jemima gave the pancakes to the General "so he'll have a good breakfast in the morning."

He accepted the gift warmly there, was little else he could do, but aboard the special train there was immediate concern the bizarre effort might bring a sharp reaction from enlightened colored people.

Many colored citizens look upon the Aunt Jemima figure as the white man's effort to remind him of the long former servility of the colored man.

It was the second blunder made by a communication greeting Ike. At one rally last week in Illinois, a 1,500.0 A voice choir sang, a "G-y" song.

Although there were colored officials of the GOP in the crowd which greeted Ike, they were not permitted to get inside the rope which blocked off all those except high local officials who were allowed to crowd around the platform car and shake his hand.

The only colored person admitted inside the official blockade was Aunt Jemima

This writer who had tree access to move through the crowd, found Mrs. Beatrice Gray local undertaker, who said she is a member of the local GOP entertainment committee and that Mrs. Ada Bell, also colored, was also in the crowd

Mrs. Gray said Mrs. Bell is a GOP committeewoman at large. She was not inside the official area.

City Hall Foreman There

William White, who said he was the first colored man ever to be made a night foreman at City Hall in St. Joseph, was among others in the crowd.

White, Mrs. Gray and Aunt Jemima said they felt colored people of St. Joseph will support Ike. The colored population of the town was estimated at 5,000 to 8,000 by Mrs. Gray.

Invades Pendergast 'Den'

At Kansas City, Mo. general Eisenhower invaded the Pendergast Democratic stronghold Friday night and spoke at a gigantic rally which, from the standpoint of participation of colored people, was his greatest rally since his Philadelphia address.

Unlike other meetings at which no colored persons have been seen in the offices of the Republican party, colored Republicans participated in this rally beginning with the official reception which met him at the train station to occupying seats in numbers on the platform.

The 25-car motorcade which met Ike at the station included the following well known colored citizens of Kansas City and vicinity:

Colored On Platform

Mrs. Kissie Brooks, committeewoman from second ward, J. Mon roe Gilmore Sr., committeeman from 26th ward; and Dr. Ben Moore, 14th Ward Committeeman.

At the evening rally held at Municipal Auditorium, attended by an estimated 15,000 persons six colored Republicans were seated on the platform.

They were: Prentice Townsend, Topeka Republican, Leona Mooney, the Rev. D. A. Holmes, pastor Paseo Baptist Church, Mrs. Brooks, Mr. Gilmore and Dr. Moore.

This was unusual in that it marked first time since the meetings in Miami and Philadelphia that Ike had spoken to audiences where the local committee had included colored people seated on the platform.

Although there were no official reasons given for the change, it was generally conceded that the addition of Morrow, special assistant to Val Washington, to Eisenhower train, had much to do with the revision in program

It is known that GOP officials had expressed concern that local committees were not giving local colored Republicans an opportunity to participate in rallies and Morrow was flown in Moline enroute to join the staff on its relations with colored people.

He joined the special train at Rock Island Wednesday. There was a report that Morrow had sent wires ahead of the train advising the Kansas committee to include colored people in the meeting.

In addition to colored people on the official platform, there was a considerable number of them sprinkled through the audience, which was unsegregated.

Will Stick With Democrats

Despite wider participation of colored people in the rally, informed political observers here were inclined to believe that colored people in the state will still vote Democratic.

J. Delmas Escoe, city editor, Kansas City Call, said there are approximately 20,000 colored voters in Kansas City, Mo., and he doubted if the Republicans would be able to get as much as 4,000 votes of that number.

His opinion is evidently shared by the Kansas City Star, powerful Republican paper in Kansas City.

Star Conducts Poll

A political writer on The Star told the NNPA that The Star had sent out a group of white people whom he classed as political amateurs to pool colored people in the four dominant colored wards and seek to determine how they are lining up in the Presidential race.

He added that when the amateur pollsters returned to the office with a report that between 40 to 50 per cent of the four colored wards would vote Republican, the paper "lit the results of the poll were so far wrong that it could not afford to publish them.

Before he went into his prepared speech Friday night, Ike issued a statement to reporters concerning the unethical charges leveled at his running mate, Senator Nixon.

The statement said that earlier in the day, a staff member on the Ike train had left the special at Auburn and succeeded in reaching Nixon in California by telephone

Nixon 'Explains' $16,000 Gift

Nixon relayed a message to Ike explaining the $16,000 deal to Ike's satisfaction and Ike reiterated his statement of Friday morning that he felt that Nixon would not compromise with what is right.

But Ike still left the door open for possible firing of Nixon as a veep candidate and would not be pressed into statement by reporters that his expression of in confidence meant that Nixon would remain on as a candidate.

It was learned that high party officials and many papers supporting Ike were demanding that Nixon withdraw.

Civil Rights Issue Taboo

Ike read Nixon's statement to the rally and then went into his speech which did not contain any references to civil rights, but jam basted the "mess" in Washington His speech was punctuated with applause.

Music for the occasion was provided by the Starlight Theatre Orchestra and the "Sing for Ike community chorus.

A song sheet passed out to the audience called for the singing of "Old Man River" but the local committee had thoughtfully substituted the words "colored people" for the word "ol—y" in the song.

Ike To Use Train As Unsegregated Quarters For Newsmen, Staff

ABOARD EISENHOWER SPECIAL—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower plans to send his vacant 18-car campaign train fast from Sacramento, Calif., to Dixie next month so that some 90 newsmen and more than 50 staff members will not face racial segregation.

According to aides in the general's camp, the Republican nominee and newspaper men accompanying him will fly from California to Texas upon completion of a train tour along the West Coast. The AFRO's James L. Hicks is among the press representative aboard.

Officials in the Eisenhower entourage add that the general has insisted that the non-segregated quarters of the campaign train be made available to staff members and news men when he speaks in Texas and Louisiana (San Antonio and Houston, Texas, and New Orleans) on his second Southern invasion.

Adlai's Party Visits Harlem

Follows Truman's Example Of 1948

By JESSE WALKER
Staff Writer

NEW YORK — Following President Truman's 1948 example, Gov. Adlai Stevenson made a 90 - second stop in Harlem Friday but was seen by only several hundred persons as his automobile entourage stopped before Hotel Theresa.

The Illinois governor, Democratic candidate for the presidency, did not make any remarks to the crowd gathered outside the hotel, due mainly to the inability of Harlem Democrats, who had arranged his stop at the last moment, to secure any loudspeaker.

Governor Stevenson was accompanied by Mayor Vincent Impellitteri, Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, Senatorial candidate John Cashmore, Borough president of Brooklyn and Tammany Hall Chief Carmine Desapio.

Greeted By Earl Brown

He was greeted at the hotel by Democratic City Councilman Earl Brown, "Mayor of Harlem" Willie Bryant, rank Montero of the National Urban League and State Assemblyman Joseph Pinckney, District leader of the 11th assembly district in which the hotel is located.

Several reports had it that Walter White of the NAACP was in the entourage, but he wasn't seen by the ARO reporter.

'Thanks For Everything'

The only thing the Illinois Governor could be quoted as saying was "Thanks for everything" when Mr. Desapio introduced him to "Mayor" Bryant.

This year, President Truman is scheduled to speak on behalf of Governor Stevenson. His speech, scheduled for Oct. 11, will be given in Dorrence Brooks Park at 133rd st. and St. Nicholas ave., where he spoke during his 1948 campaign.

Governor Stevenson arrived here at 6 p.m. and stopped at the Theresa at 6:30. He was actually only passing through New York on his way to Richmond.

GOP TO GET NEW CANDIDATE?

Ike May Ask Nixon To Give Up V-P Race

(Special to AFRO)

ST. LOUIS — Strong indications Dwight D. "Ike" Eisenhower, GOP Presidential candidate, would call for withdrawal of his running mate, Sen. Richard M. Nixon.

The California Senator and vice presidential nominee has admitted accepting over $18,000 cash from his California supporters to pay his expenses in Congress during the past two years.

It is expected that Ike's request Nixon will come after he confers with Sen. Robert A. Taft in Cincinnati.

Should Nixon quit the race, the Republican National Committee would have power to fill the vacancy either by its own action or by calling a special convention.

The only time the Republicans were faced with naming a substitute candidate was in 1912 when James Sherman, nominated to run with William Howard Taft, died a week before election. The Republicans lost.

Should Nixon withdraw, it is probable that his successor would be a man highly acceptable to colored people. This would be done in an effort to strengthen the bid for the colored vote.

Campaign strategists reportedly feel this is a must in view of Eisenhower's obvious coalition with Dixiecrats, and his own lukewarm record on civil rights.
