Arizona Restaurant Bars Jordan, Wife

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Louis Jordan, band leader, and his wife were refused admission to the new Sky Chef restaurant here.

This came about despite an order from the city council to open its doors to the general public.

Twice Denied Admittance

Jordan immediately notified the mayor who in turn ordered a city attorney's investigation into the affair.

Jordan, twice refused admittance to the restaurant and lounge, said he would make another attempt to gain admittance before he leaves for New York.

In a telegram to the mayor, Jordan said "My wife and I and two friends were refused again last evening, at the Sky Chef. William Cobb, J. Mayer and Steven R. Champi informed me I would have to take legal action before they would serve colored patrons.

Veep Gives Orders

Cobb, vice president of Sky Chef, denied that Jordan had been told he would "have to take legal action."

Cobb did, however, say that he refused admittance to Jordan and his wife and declared that the restaurant had not changed its policy since receiving the council's letter.

The city council, after voting against taking action reversed itself and ordered the cafe to stop its practice of barring colored patrons.

Follows Local Pattern

In disregarding the letter, Cobb said "We are still trying to follow local custom in Phoenix. I believe the better dining rooms here do not serve colored citizens."

Mayor Hoben Foster said the city will take the necessary steps to see that people are served at the airport, regardless of color," and said he will ask the city manager's office to have the city attorney talk to persons who were refused service.

The city bases its position on a clause in the Sky Chef lease which requires the national chain to operate a restaurant and cocktail lounge for the "general public."

The policy here has been to limit colored patrons to the coffee shop.

Global Jottings

By T. LUTOUR

NEW YORK—Harlem Hospital, always a busy place, is even more so these days. Young women from all over the country, bent on a nursing career, have been "finding themselves" not only within the hospital, but in this great city of New York.

It is my pleasant duty to help these young women get adjusted to New York, take them on tours, shows, and otherwise assist in entertaining them during their first few weeks in the strange, big city.

After the "Get Acquainted" tea, which is a yearly feature of the school, things began to hum.

The girls have had a tour around the Island of Manhattan, when some of them saw for the first time a number of New York's most famous and historic landmarks.

Thrilled By Landmarks

They saw "Icecapades of 1953" and were thrilled to be able to witness an indoor ice show.

The girls themselves got together and had a talent show which convinced the audience that many of them could have dramatic or musical careers if they wanted to.

Next week, the big item on the agenda will be a trip to Fort Totten, New York, where they will attend a USO dance.

Mrs. Eola Lyons Baker, an anesthetist at Flint Goodrich Hospital in New Orleans, is visiting in New York. It was my privilege to interview her on my radio program over WHOM one day last week . . . Our own Alida C. Dailey, superintendent of nurses at Harlem Hospital, will be our guest next.

Seek Madman For Murders

Fear 4th Child Kidnapped In Ala.

EUTAW, Ala.—Police with blood hounds are hunting a madman who murdered three children, gave a fourth child a horrible beating and apparently kidnapped another sister just three months old.

The search was touched off when Mr. and Mrs. Willie Posey returned from work to their farm at nearby Mt. Hebron to find their son and two daughters slain, their 11-year daughter critically injured and their infant daughter kidnapped.

Bodies of the children were found in a creek nearby.

Yet Suffocated

The 5-year-old son was found with his head pushed into a mud bank and highway patrolmen said he died of suffocation.

The dead are:

Ira Posey, 5; Ollie, 8, and Jean, 2. Three-month-old Louis Posey is still missing and presumed to be kidnapped.

Girl Beaten Savagely

The injured daughter, Lassie Posey, 11, had been beaten savagely about the head. Her parents found her delirious near their home.

She became unconscious without giving details of the triple slaying and abduction.

Volunteers and laymen are combing an area 100 miles square around the Eutaw area.

No motive could be supplied about the atrocities and police say it was the work of a maniac.

Cop Held For Shooting After Sick Bed Trial

BROOKLYN (ANP) — Magistrate Clarence E. Wilson dismissed charges against a prisoner and ordered the policeman who shot him held. The dramatic action came at the conclusion of a 75-minute bedside hearing during which the paralyzed man prisoner required blood transfusions.

The man, Arthur Battles, 34, was struck in the spine by one of four shots fired at him by Patrolman Stanley W. Davis, on May 25.

Davis and two other policemen—Ulysses S. Ferguson and Vincent Giacomba—had gone to his home at 765 Bergen st. in quest of Davis's revolver.

Davis alleged that he believed Battles had stolen the pistol during a fight in a Brooklyn bar and grill May 22. He testified that Battles made a threatening move while being questioned.

No Gun Found

Battles, in weak voice told Magistrate Wilson, that he knew nothing about the lost gun and that he made no move against the officers who had no warrant and found no gun. His wife, Miriam, said that she was in the kitchen with their two children when the policemen arrived dressed in civilian clothes.

Magistrate Wilson is a board member of the Brooklyn Branch of the NAACP. The local branch, of which James A. Powers is president, has entered the case. Following his arraignment several weeks ago, Battle's counsel brought suit against the city for $500,000. He charged an "unwarranted shooting."

Efforts To End Filibuster In Senate Did Not Originate Over Civil Rights

WASHINGTON — Contrary to popular belief, efforts to limit debate in the Senate did not arise out of a desire to end filibusters against civil rights measures, although such filibusters are good and sufficient cause for amendment of the existing Senate cloture rule.

For the first 17 years of its history, the Senate operated under the "previous question" rule. This rule had been brought over to the American colonies from the British Parliament, and it was incorporated in Jefferson's Manual of Parliamentary Procedure.

Previous Question Omitted

As a refutation of the argument that if the Senate adopted a rule to limit debate, the majority would abuse it, it may be pointed out that in the 17 years from 1789 to 1806, the previous question was moved only four times and used only three times.

Senate rules were revised on March 26, 1806, and the "previous question" rule was omitted. From that time until 1917, the Senate had no rule for limiting debate. In the intervening period, numerous efforts were made to get the Senate to adopt some rule to limit debate.

The Senate adopted in 1917 a cloture rule which permitted debate to be limited by a two-thirds vote of Senators present and voting. This rule was adopted because the Senate and American people had been aroused by a filibuster which so congested business that Congress could not complete its work before automatic adjournment on March 4, 1917.

Wilson Scores Senate

President Wilson convened the new Congress on March 5, proclaiming "an extraordinary occasion. Indignant at the failure of the Senate to enact his legislative program, he said:

"The Senate of the United States is the only legislative body in the world which cannot act when its majority is ready for action. A little group of willful men, representing no opinion but their own, have rendered the great Government of the United States helpless and contemptible."

Cloture Ineffective

Sen. Thomas S. Martin, of Va., Democratic floor leader, introduced the cloture rule. Lodge's rule made the rule totally ineffective and it was amended in 1949. The 1949 rule has proved unworkable and filibusters continue.

A workable rule to limit debate is inevitable. Washington is only a few hours distant from the capitals of the world and, in this atomic age, speedy decisions must be reached and action taken if freedom itself is to survive.

Bank Demands Public Withdrawal Of Baptist Convention Accusation

COLUMBIA, S.C.—H. D. Monteigh, president of the Victory Savings Bank here, has demanded immediate withdrawal of a "damaging accusation" against the institution as contained in a recommendation passed during the annual session of the National Baptist Convention of America in New York, Sept. 10-14.

Quoting an article in the September 20 issue of a Pittsburgh weekly, the bank president said that the recommendation called for the removal of monies of the foreign mission board of the convention from his bank to the Citizens Bank and Trust Company of Nashville, because of "certain unbusinesslike policies of the (Victory) bank."

Dr. Monteigh declared:

"While, like any bank, we want and need business, this letter is in no sense an appeal to you to repeal your action in this matter.

Audit Demanded

"We must demand, however, that you positively clear the Victory Savings Bank of any apparent involvement in any mishandling of your funds by having your auditors make public an immediate check of your account at this institution. If you desire, we will provide photostatic copies.

"We have an account here in the name of the foreign mission board of the National Baptist Convention of America to be handled by E. S. Branch, chairman, and J. P. Reeder, corresponding secretary.

"Your auditors would find, among other things, that the last deposit to this account was one of $1,310 on April 3, 1952, and that only two items follow this entry—a withdrawal of $1,325 on April 3, 1952, and one of $20 on April 7, leaving a balance of $11.16. This is certainly a staggering amount for us to have to transfer to Nashville.

Credited To Personal Accounts

"Following your recent convention, deposits on Sept. 16 and 17 for $1,061 and $2,560.50, respectively, and contained numerous checks in favor of your foreign mission board, were made to the personal account of your corresponding secretary.

"While we felt constrained to inquire questioning on these two deposits, such behavior on the part of your corresponding secretary is the proper concern for your convention and not of this bank.

"Nor is it our business to question three personal withdrawals of $100 each and one of $221 immediately following these two large deposits. Your books, if systematically kept, and your annual reports, if demanded in proper form, would let your contributors as well as any amounts and in favor of whom any vouchers were drawn.

Won't Be Responsible

"Moreover, a competent convention auditing committee would demand the presentation of bank books, statements and other necessary documents to substantiate your annual reports thereby enabling you to aim your accusations accurately.

"Finally, no responsibility whatsoever will be accepted by this bank for any unbusinesslike handling of your funds. Furthermore, we demand an immediate public withdrawal of your scandalous indictment of this institution."
