COME TO THE POULTRY SHOW

Bonnets are going to be worn this fall!

Do you know why chickens have only four toes?

If you come to the Poultry Exhibit you will see lots of them that have five and then you will learn the reason.

Did you ever see a bird with a beard?

He'll be there.

Or one with a ——?

He'll be there too.

Plymouth Rocks the successors of the Dominique and the farmers standby.

Leghorns, the laying machine—EGGS.

Rhode Island Reds, one of the best laying breeds in the world and purely an American creation.

Wyandottes, "the dumpling of a hen."

Orpington, the best table fowl in existence and the heaviest winter layer.

These and many others, including the chicken that wears a bonnet, the Rumpless chicken, the chicken with five toes, etc., will be at the Poultry Exhibit.

Husbands bring their wives, wives bring the kiddies. We are going to have a large tent and it will be open all the time with something doing.

The chickens will have on their summer clothes and while these are not so bright and do not fit quite as well as their fall suits, you will have an opportunity to see many more colors than you ever saw in the rainbow.

Come on Tuesday, "ANXIOUS DAY," every exhibitor anxious to know what ribbons his birds are going to capture and how many of the handsome special prizes he is going to take home.

Come on Wednesday, "WHY DAY," many exhibitors asking why their birds did not get ribbons.

Come on Thursday, "KNOW DAY," every exhibitor and many who wish they had been will know a good deal more about poultry.

Came on Friday, "GET-TOGETHER DAY," the day for every poultry raiser in Kent and Queen Anne's to get together and make up their minds to have a bigger and better show in 1915.

Come Every Day and Be a "Booster."

JAMES G. BECK, President. CLIFTON L. JARRELL, Secretary.
