Movies Of Sydney Bechet's Wedding Shown In Paris

BY NANCY CUNARD

PARIS (ANP) — Recently in Toulouse, I saw a 20-minute newsreel of the wedding of Sydney Bechet, trumpeter, to a French woman in the South of France.

A huge, carnivalesque procession filled the main avenues of Antibes, smart resort on the Mediterranean.

African and Arab people in native robes on decorated floats were strikingly beautiful. Colored Cuban musicians were in evidence.

A host of jitterbugging, untidy young "existentialists" from Paris (no smooth one wonders they are not arrested at sight) leaped in ecstasy round the great Bechet. They are a "sect" derived from the "existentialist" philosophies of Jean Paul Sartre, simplified into: "Do everything you feel like doing and in whatever way you want to. The thing in life is to express oneself irrespective of everything else!"

Bechet Plays And Plays

Bechet, now about 60 (?) — lovely African face, noble size, girth, span, eyes, expression and elegant clothes, played triumphantly, and played again after the feast was over in the establishment while the flowers were being swept up at dawn.

His trumpet is exquisite. What virtuosity and what feeling! It was all very moving as well as very happy.

Bechet's "ork" consists of five or six men; the drummer (remarkable) looks Mexican, while the others might be French or English or American white musicians.

Held At Comedy Club

Hattie Mc Daniel, 54, Dies In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Miss Hattie McDaniel, the provocative "Beulah" of radio and television fame, died here Sunday, at the age of 54.

Miss McDaniel, also a motion picture star, whose sterling performance in "Gone With The Wind" was hailed as one of the finest bits of dramatic acting to hit the screen and which won her an academy award in 1940, died after suffering from cancer for longer than a year.

Miss McDaniel

She was in the Cedars of Lebanon sanitorium here when the end came.

Father A Preacher

Born in Wiltshire, Kan., on June 10, 1898, as the thirteenth child of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McDaniel, she gained fame early, encouraged by her father, a Baptist preacher, who helped her develop her gifts for singing and acting.

Her father was born in Richmond, Va., her mother, the former Susan Holbert, in Nashville, Tenn.

At the age of 17, she sang over the radio in Denver, Col., with the orchestra of Professor Morrison, and her crooning style — later heard in "Showboat" won her immediate notice.

At the age of 18, she launched her theatrical career, getting her first big break in Milwaukee, Wis., where she was a hit for her rendition of the "St. Louis Blues."

Became "Beulah In 1948"

Her role in "Gone With The Wind" was her first break in pictures, and she co-starred in many films during the 40's and began her characterization as "Beulah" on the radio in May, 1948.

She has had her "ups and downs" in show business and in matrimony, but true actress that she always has been, she has always given her best in whatever role she was cast.

In More Than 300 Films

Miss McDaniel headed the Pantages Theatre circuit n 1924 and 1925, "where she became known as the "colored Sophie Tucker" and the "female Bert Williams."
