South Baltimore Gets A New Up-To-Date Eating Place

Big James Anderson, 37-year-old, 265-pound, nattily — ex-longshoreman and freight handler who worked hard and saved his money because he wanted to be his own boss one day, went into business last week.

He opened T. J.'s Restaurant and Grill at the corner of Ridgley and Barre st., in South Baltimore.

But, he accomplished more than just getting into business for himself, and he had intended to do so when he launched the venture.

To Serve Public Need

"I had heard people saying there weren't very many good places to eat. And I felt that if I could open a nice place, the people would be proud of it and I could give employment to a few people at the same time," he says.

Mr. Anderson is familiarly known in the area as "T. J." and that is why his first business venture bears that name.

He is a native of Spartanburg, S.C., but came to Baltimore when a youngster in 1924. Big of bone and strong of muscle, he worked as a longshoreman and freight handler with a number of Baltimore dock-front concerns for a number of years.

His father Simpson Anderson, and three brothers, Paul, Johnny, Willie B., and a sister, Mrs. Eva Caldwell, all now live in Baltimore.

Family Man; Employs 4

Mr. Anderson is married to the former Miss Dorothy Sanders, and their two children, Mollie, 5, and Thomas, 7, attend School No. 144, near the family home at 2734 Mosher st.

The restaurant employs four persons regularly, with additional help called in on weekends.

Waitresses are Misses Mary Saunders and Eliza Mae Williams. Cooks are Ruby Moore and Louis Jordan. The place is open daily at 5 a.m. and is open all night on Fridays and Saturdays.

Clean, Modern Interior

Neatly arranged, brightly lighted and modernly appointed, the booths along one side of the restaurant are of blond mahogany finish, with blue formica table tops, and the counter is of the same materials, with heavy, tufted revolving stools.

The kitchen, which is sparkling clean, has a shining, metal food storage box and glistening frigidaire, with spic work table and well-polished cooking ranges.

A glistening, new record player fits into a recess in the counter and blends in with the decor of the other furnishings.

On opening day, the counter was heavily laden with flowers from well-wishers in the community who are as proud of the new business enterprise for South Baltimore as its owner is in his accomplishment of a life-long personal desire.

Appreciation Fund For Pastor

Joseph Harris, chairman of the trustee committee, announced that he is heading the "Appreciation Service Fund" which will be presented to the Rev. Mr. Harrison on Nov. 16.

He urged every member to give a dime for each year that the pastor has been in Shiloh.

A feature of the morning service was the artistic presentation by the senior choir of Dr. Nathaniel Dett's "Don't Be Weary Traveller."

The difficult, though inspiring, spiritual was handled with ease by the group under direction of Mrs. Wilhemina E. Patterson.

Exalted Ruler Cleared Of Lottery

Samuel R. Brown Jr., exalted ruler of a local Elks Lodge who was arrested at noon Friday in a numbers raid was exonerated four hours later following a hearing in Northwestern police court.

Brown, 52, was arrested with John W. Franklin, 45, by Vice Squad detectives in the 1200 block Madison ave. Each was charged with operating a lottery.

Later in court Lt. Joseph Byrne, head of the vice squad, told Magistrate E. Everett Lane that he was "positive I couldn't tie him in."

Seized in Hallway

"I wasn't on the raid," the lieutenant said. "The information I had led me to believe that Brown was arrested in the front room of the building. I later found he was seized in the hallway of the building which is a public hallway leading to a tavern."

Magistrate Lane dismissed all charges against the fraternal leader.

Franklin, however, was held in $2,500 bail after he waived a hearing. Police said they found $700.36 worth of numbers plays inside the man's coat pocket.

Seized were 2 stubs representing

Electric Company in Baltimore during the war years.

Company records show that she was employed there between June and September, 1943, as a file clerk. Her husband, James B. Rippard, claimed the body in Richmond.

Preferred Colored

He is reported to have told Richmond police that his wife was an alcoholic who would drink with anybody, anywhere. Other reports are that the woman was particularly fond of colored persons and was often heard to say that they treated her better than members of her own race.

She was described as attractive, five feet five inches tall, with blond hair and brown eyes.

Mum Not At Hearing

Wooten was not present at the arraignment. He had been released under $500 bail on Monday as a material witness and is scheduled for a Nov. 5 hearing.

"Tee Baby" told the court she would have to be proven guilty when Judge Maurice asked her what was her plea to the charges.

Her case was certified to the November term of the Hustings Court grand jury. Funeral services for the victim were held in Baltimore on Saturday.

Separate Clubs

2. NCO CLUBS — The post has two clubs for non-commissioned officers, but No. 1 is for white NCO's and No. 2 for colored men. Whites occasionally visit No. 2, but non-white cannot become members of No. 1.

3. SERVICE CLUBS—Officially, there is no service club segregation on the post, but hostesses (white) remind the colored soldiers that Service Club No. 6 is for them.

4. INTEGRATION OF UNITS—There is very little integration at Fort Sill. There is some token integration of enlisted men in lower grades in certain standard units, but that is all.

The attitude here appears to be that (according to a statement accredited to a high ranking white officer) colored soldiers cannot compare to white soldiers and that there really seemed to be no need for them in the army.

Jim Crow Housing

5. HOUSING — Colored enlisted men live together and are not allowed to live in so - called white areas. Even the Wherry Housing Act (for GI families) is on a jim crow basis.

A civilian, J. D. Sanders, who controls billeting on the post, has told colored noncomms there was no temporary housing available, but only for white folks.

6. POST DUTY DETAILS—Orders published for units to pull guard duty at the post stockade specify what number of guards may be colored.

Colored troops feel this is to prevent the possibilities of one of them having charge of white prisoners.

7. CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYMENT—Although Mrs. Ida M. Boyd is technically semi-hostess at the post, a Caucasian woman has been brought in, promoted and given the title of post director.

Although qualified colored workers have applied for positions, they cannot get a job regardless of vacancies, those hired only do work as janitors and a few as waitresses.

8. ARTILLERY SCHOOL FACULTY — The artillery school does not have a single colored officer on its faculty. There is a feeling that there are some qualified to fill a faculty post.

9. OFFICER "ROSCRIPTION"—Colored officers are given duties over colored personnel only. A captain who has had Korean war experience as leading integrated troops and been decorated for bravery is assigned to an all-colored unit.

The one colored dental officer here must confine his practice to colored personnel only and is not permitted to treat white patients.

Post's Practices Vary

When President Truman addressed the cheering throngs here in Chicago at the monument to colored soldiers in the midst of Bronzeville, he presented to the people the picture given him by his advisors about army integration.

It appears that in Europe, the spirit of his executive order of 1949 is being carried out after soldiers had complained, but here in the United States, this seems to be true according to the camp you visit.

The President, apparently, is not being told the whole story.

Surrounding the President was a smart military guard of honor made up of colored soldiers from the 178th Regimental Combat Team of the Illinois National Guard.

Ill. Guard Not Mixed

The President in his eloquent speech praised Gov. Adlai Stevenson for issuing an executive order requiring integration of troops; but the Illinois National Guard has dragged its feet.

To all intents and purposes it is still a segregated state National Guard without colored soldiers in any white unit and without any appreciable mixture of whites in colored units.

Must Grasp Problem

If our country is to be the "arsenal of democracy," we must first practice it right here at home — particularly among the fighting men who are bearing arms to defend democracy.

Probably, the best Christmas gift our American boys in uniform here at home could receive would be the honest practice of integration and equal opportunity in troops in the United States as well as it is said to be practiced on the fighting front in Korea.

Colored people themselves must work to see that integration does become a fact, and not depend upon an executive order alone to do the job.

by the state as the first witness.

Found Outside Window

The officer testified that when he arrived on the scene with another policeman he found the body of Mrs. Newman lying on the ground outside a window of her home on Campbell st.

Newman was reported to have been kneeling beside the body of his wife.

Attorneys for the defense were taken by surprise when the state rested its case after calling only one witness, the arresting officer, to the stand. The defense asked for a recess.

Call Character Witnesses

When court resumed a series of character witnesses were called to the stand by the defense. Very little testimony from these witnesses was allowed as evidence through the vigilant objections of prosecutor T. Poe Taylor.

The defense seemed nonplussed when one of their chief character witnesses, Newman's employer, left the stand without being able to make a single statement in evidence.

Mention Other Woman

The state called Viola Newman, 11-year-old daughter of Newman to the stand. The prosecuting attorney seemed mainly concerned with getting her to reaffirm the assertions she made at the coroner's inquest. Several of the prosecutor's queries were met with persistent "I don't remember" answers.

The prosecutor made frequent reference to another woman whom he asserted Newman had shot some time in the past, but this woman was not called to the stand, although a person purported to be the injured party stood up in the court room whenever the prosecutor referred to her.

Court was recessed Thursday evening at six o'clock and when it reopened on Friday morning. Attorneys for the defense asked for a change of plea.

Newman was represented by Murchinson and West and Frank Rector of Camden. Taylor was assisted in the prosecution by Olin Crouch, his assistant, and Senator J. Clator Arrants.

Miss Noel also claimed that she and her brother occupied the Lexington st., apartment together. The money which police found she declared was to be used to purchase another home.

The raid on the alleged numbers headquarters was conducted after police received a typewritten letter addressed to the Vice Squad.

Mind Jury

As a result of her arrest, a mixed jury of eight men and four women took only 12 minutes to convict the attractive woman.

The defense's motion for a new trial was to have been heard by the Supreme Bench of Baltimore with Chief Judge W. Conwell Smith presiding.

Six other motions however were heard by the Bench. Five of the cases involved persons convicted of lottery charges.

Motions for a new trial were also made by attorneys for Louis Coni, 47-year-old gambling violator.

Coni, convicted in May on gambling charges, was released by Judge Mason on $5,000 bail pending the outcome of the Saturday hearing.

Indict Accused G-Worker Pursuer

WASHINGTON

A 28-year-old white man, who was said to have been a member of a gang that chased a Navy Department worker from Maryland on Sept. 29, was indicted by the grand jury, Monday.

Robert L. Kramer, 29, of the 500 block of Le Baum st., se., was indicted on a charge of impersonating a police officer.

The complaint which led to the indictment was made by Milford D. Evans, 42, of the 2000 block of Nichols ave., se. Evans said that three car loads of men chased him from Brentwood, Md. about 10 p.m. on Sept. 29.

Wild Ride

The wild chase, which reached a speed of 80 miles an hour, according to Mr. Evans, ended at 16th and Benning rd., ne, where Kramer allegedly jumped out of his car and broke the glass in Evans's car.

After a crowd gathered, Mr. Evans stated, Kramer said that he was an FBI man. The rest of the reported gang, it was alleged, dispersed after the police arrived.

Man's Arrest Solves 11 House Robberies

At least eleven robberies in four police districts we're believed solved Friday when a 30-year-old father was held in total bail of $10,500 bail following his arraignment in Northwestern Police Court.

The accused man, Stephen Beardley alias Stephen Vortley, expressed remorse in court as many of his victims crowded him.

"I hope these people will forgive me," Beardley told Magistrate E. Everett Lane. The man claimed he robbed the homes in order to feed his children. He said he had filled six applications for work but couldn't obtain a job.

Police Are Commended

Tying in Boardley with the many robberies was the result of highly efficient work. Magistrate Lane commended the officers who worked on the case for their "tremendous job."

The officers were Sgt. John Dunn and Officers Charles Rouck and Robert Kuhn, all of Northwestern District.

Boardley was arrested in the 700 block N. Carey st., on Oct. 31 on suspicion. Police found burglary tools on him then including a chisel, two pocket knives, a screw driver and a flashlight.

Admits To Seven

Upon questioning police said he admitted to some of the burglaries which occurred since August and were in the Northeastern, Central and Northwestern Districts.

In many cases the stolen goods were recovered as the police visited 15 pawn shops in various sections of the city. This they found to be their toughest problem, Sgt. Dunn said, since Boardley would tear up the ticket usually after he had pawned the items.

Would Force Doors

Of a total loot taken of $1,172.65, $650 worth was recovered. Boardley would pawn many of the items in his own name or his alias and sometimes he used the name of John Wade Fedd, one of his alleged victims.

The items the man lifted from the homes of his victims were such things as radios, clocks, watches, clothes and, in one case, savings bonds. Entry was made in the homes in most cases by forcing the doors.

Listed here are some of the man's alleged victims:

Mrs. Alberta Perry, 1500 block McCulloh st.

Mrs. Beatrice Simmons, 100 block W. 24th st.

Mrs. Maurice Ahams, 700 block N. Carey st.

Mrs. Marjorie Perry, 900 block E. Fayette st.

Mrs. Hattie Lambert, 1300 block Harlem ave.

Charles Richardson, 1500 block Harlem ave.

Mrs. Emma Lee, 1400 block E. Chase st.

Ryland Nelms, 700 block N. Carey st.

Colonel Sneed, 1100 block N. Gilmor st.

Mrs. Mamie Rainey, 200 block N. High st.

Beardley had no prior criminal record except for minor station house convictions, since during the war he was seized as a draft dodger. He lives in the 600 block N. Franklin st.

Two Murders Within Four Hours Rocks Community

Two murders within four hours rocked small towns in Prince Georges County, Sunday.

The victims were Mrs. Agnes Simms, 24, who lived in Upper Marlboro, and Gus Evans, 42, Oxon Hill, Md.

Mrs. Simms was shot shortly after 1 p.m. Police were holding her landlady, Mrs. Annie Williams, 38, on a charge of committing the murder.

Mrs. Williams told police she and her tenant had argued, earlier Sunday, over the treatment of a child belonging to the dead woman.

Husband Quiets Pair

She said her husband, Willie Williams, quieted the dispute, and she thought the matter forgotten.

Shortly after that, related the suspect, Mrs. Simms obtained a knife, which Mr. Williams seized after a short struggle.

When the knife was taken, the dead woman ran to a nearby store, picked up a gun from behind the counter, and tried to shoot her, Mrs. Williams asserted.

She contends the gun was fired accidently during a struggle that followed, and one of the bullets struck Mrs. Simms in the chest.

Pines Murder Scene

As the woman slumped to the floor, Mrs. Williams fled from the house and hid into a nearby woods from searching police.

She returned home, later that night, and shortly after 7 o'clock the next morning, surrendered to Marlboro police.

Police are holding the woman without bail pending a preliminary hearing.

In the second murder, Gus Evans, janitor of a white apartment house located in Oxon Hill, was shot in the thigh as he stood in the vestibule of the building.

One of the tenans looked out of her window on hearing the shot, and saw a man run from the house and escape in a car bearing Washington tags.

Sees Fleeing Woman

Another tenant told police a woman also dashed out of a rear door of the apartment house after the shooting.

Furnished with the license number of the suspect's get away car, and a description of the fleeing woman, police expect an early arrest in the case.

Sgt. Charles H. Malley, Hyattsville police, investigated both shootings.

Drunken Driving Charges Are Upheld Against Pair

Two persons were found guilty Monday of drunken driving and other traffic violations, while two others were freed on the drunkness charge but fined on other counts.

Found guilty by Magistrate Lester Crowther in traffic court were:

James A. Babb, 25, 2400 block McCulloh st., fined $100 for drunken driving; $10 for reckless driving; $10 for failing to wear eyeglasses as required by his license, and license suspended for 90 days.

Gets Jail Sentence

William T. France, 33, 1300 block Myrtle ave., sentenced to 30 days in jail for drunken driving and fined $25 for failure to stop after an accident; $10 for reckless driving and $1 for failure to notify the Department of Motor Vehicles of change of address. His license was also suspended for 90 days.

Babb was arrested around 3 p.m. Sunday at Park Heights and Belvedere ave. after, police said, they saw him weave from one lane to another while driving. When he got out of the car, they claimed, he was so intoxicated he danced a jig.

Gives Different Reason

Babb said he danced to prove he was sober.

France was arrested shortly after 5 a.m. following an accident at Ellicott dr. and Dukeland ave., at which time he failed to stop.

Charges of drunken driving were dismissed against Charles Mathews, 29, 800 block Harlem ave., and Robert McNeal, 47, 1300 block Argyle ave.

Truck Hits Bus

Mathews was fined $25 for driving without a license and $10 for reckless driving as a result of an suit of bumping into the baggage accident about 8:15 p.m., Saturday of an automobile owned by Charles Ames, 300 block S. Fremont, about 8:45 p.m. Saturday. The car was a ran into the rear of a transit bus. packed in front of Ames home at the time.

McNeal was fined $10 as the re-

Investors-

We have to look out for all three!

Employees-

Customers-

The business of the Gas & Electric Company is to furnish electricity, gas and steam at the lowest rates consistent with good service to its customers . . . proper compensation to its employees . . . a fair return to its investors.

● Almost without exception, the homes, farms, shops, stores, industries, schools and other establishments in our territory depend upon us for light and power, and, in many cases, for heat as well. It is our responsibility to provide the facilities which make electricity and gas available . . . to keep those facilities in good repair . . . to expand our facilities to meet the ever growing demand for electricity and gas in our territory. And we must do all this at the lowest rates consistent with good service.

To serve our 450,000 customers requires an organization of approximately seven thousand people. Only by maintaining an organization of capable men and women who are interested in their work and in preserving good relations with customers and investors can we give good service.

We also have an obligation to provide a fair return to the people who have invested their money in our Company. It is their money which has provided the facilities that make this enterprise possible. Unless investors continue to receive a fair return, they will not provide the money to make it possible for us to keep pace with the expanding needs of our customers.

Thus it is plain that our business can be successful only if we serve the interests of all the people who make up our business—customers, employees and investors alike. In the long run, no one of these groups can profit at the expense of the others.
