AGREED ON FISH LAWS.

William W. Beck, a Member of a Joint Commission Which Makes Recommendations Regulating the Fishing Industry in the State.

State Senator Carville D. Benson, chairman of the committee named by the last Legislature to confer with representatives of the Virginia Legislature upon fish laws, last week gave out an account of the work of the two bodies at the meeting held recently at Old Point Comfort.

In brief, the joint committees named a subcommittee to prepare measures for submission to the Legislature of each State in which would be adopted the ideas set forth in the following resolution:

"Whereas the joint legislative commission of Maryland and Virginia, recognizing the necessity and the right of the two States to enact suitable legislation for the protection and conservation of the seafood products of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries, therefore,

"Be it resolved by the said commission, That the following suggestions be enacted into laws by concurrent legislation of the two States, to wit:

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS:

"1. That lines of fish pounds, or other nets, shall not extend beyond the lines in bay or rivers established in 1914 by the United States War Department.

"2. That a heavy penalty be imposed for taking, catching or having in possession food fish, including herring, to the extent of 1 per centum for the purpose of manufacturing into oil or guano.

"3. That cull laws be enacted for catching or having in possession sturgeon, rock, spot, trout, bluefish, hogfish, perch, mullet, bass, etc., and turning same loose while yet alive.

"4. That a closed season and net regulations be provided for perch and rock.

"5. Thas no nets extend more than one-fourth of the distance from either shore, and not then if reaching into the channel.

"6. That no pound nets be with less than to (2) inches stretched mesh and no pound nets at all be set in Elizabeth, York, Nansemond or James rivers. That a distance of two hundred (200) feet be left between head and hedging of nets.

"7. That penalty be imposed for concealing name or number on any licensed fishing vessel.

"8. That light, bushes and name be required on all pound heads.

"9. That all dams or other obstructions be provided with ample fishways approved by the United States Bureau of Fisheries.

"10. That further regulations for haul seines on spawning grounds be considered.

"11. That stringent laws be passed for the enforcement of all the foregoing."

This resolution was proposed by the Virginia representatives and accepted by those from Maryland. The subcommittee having in charge the preparation of measures embodying the provisions of the resolution will report to the two State committees, acting jointly, at some early date. Senator Benson invited the Virginians to meet in Baltimore during the Star Spangled Banner Centennial, and it is hoped they will be able to do so.

MARYLANDERS GIVE VIEWS.

Prior to the adoption of the resolution speeches were made by Senator Benson and Senator W. W. Beck, setting forth the views of the Marylanders as to necessary concurrent legislation by the two States. Senator Benson stated that Maryland was anxious for effectual legislation to be passed by each of the States, as otherwise the Federal Government would take control.

The Maryland committee was composed, in addition to Senators Benson and Beck, of Senator William F. Chesley and Delegates Andrew J. Cummings and Thomas C. Hopkins. Albert J. Almony was secretary.

Meditations of a Cow.

The following very suggestive article is reproduced from a recent issue of Hoard's Dairyman, and should prove interesting to our dairymen:

"Here I am, just a scrub cow, but what do I care. I have a good home. To be sure, the wind blows in through the cracks in winter and, as I don't get enough feed to both keep me warm and make milk too, I just naturally don't make the milk. What do I care? A cow has to look out for herself.

"I just lay off and take a vacation for three or four months during the winter. Old, dry cornstalks don't taste very good anyway, and besides, a cow isn't supposed to kill herself giving milk. Evidently the boss just keeps me to look at. He says he always did like to see a good, slick looking cow and does not like to milk in the winter anyway, and besides, he thinks there is no money in dairying if a man counts his time worth anything.

"Of course, after my calf is born, I give a big mess of milk for a little while but what is the use of keeping it up when I can live without work by just looking nice all the time.

"The other day I came down to the barn about three o'clock and laid down in the shade, because it was hot up in the pasture and the flies were so thick. While I was lying there resting, I heard the old man say he had let one hired man go because he didn't do anything when his back was turned. I'm mighty glad he doesn't keep a record of what I do. I tell you there is nothing like being a pretty cow. When the work is done in the fall the old man will let the other hired man go because his wife does not want hired help around to cook for when they have no work to do, but when you are a cow you can rest all winter because you are nice to look at and can raise big calves.—By DUB.
