Slays His Wife, Phones Police, Then Kills Self

Domestic Trouble Reported Cause Of Tragedy By Officers

NEW YORK — "I'm sorry but I just had to do it," 34-year-old Vernon Polite wrote in a letter to his sister just before he pumped several bullets into the body of his attractive wife and took his own life, Thursday.

Polite, obviously distraught, phoned police after killing his wife Alveta, 31, and told them he was turning the gun on himself.

When officers of the 30th precinct reached the Polite apartment at 415 W 128th st., they found the wife dead on the bed and the husband sprawled across the hallway.

He left three notes indicating that he had domestic troubles. Police listed the shootings as a homicide and suicide.

Employer Shocked

Officers theorized that Polite suspected his wife of unfaithfulness and had planned the murder-suicide in advance. His employer at the Mother Hubbard restaurant in the Village where he worked three years as a counterman, was shocked when informed of the tragedy by the AFRO. He said that Polite was an "irreplacable" employee who had never been late or absent during the three years he had worked there. He described him as quiet, steady and reliable.

Polite, son of Mrs. Mamie Polite, of Jacksonville, Fla., had lived in New York for 18 years.

Married In Baltimore

He married Mrs. Aveta Polite in-1944 in Baltimore. She was a native of Asbury Park, N.J.

He took his 4-year-old son, Carey, to the home of his brother, Raymond, at 12 W. Bradhurst ave. in Harlem before the shooting. There were therefore, no other people in the apartment at the time of the tragedy.

His wife also had a 14-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

The four year-old son, left parentless, will be taken by his sister, Mrs. Hattie Porter in Harrison, N.Y. Raymond Polite will accompany body to Florida for burial.

Funeral services for the wife were held in Asbury Park.

Funeral services for Mr. Polite will be held in Jacksonville, Fla. on Wednesday at St. Matthew Baptist Church at 2 p.m. of Moncrief.

Mr. Polite was one of 12 children. They are Miss Claudell Polite and James, both of New York; Robert, of Jacksonville; Scott, Claude, Mrs. Doris Saunders, Ernest, Mrs. Hazel Brown, Raymond, and Mrs. Hattie Harrison, all of New York.

Farmer Faces Jury On Girl's Charge

Accused Of Attack By 'Looking At' White Teenager

By RUFUS WELLS
Staff Correspondent

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. — The old joke about the man accused of "treckles eyeballing" for looking at a woman, which became a horrible reality when 45-year-old Mack Ingram was charged with attempting to assault a young white girl because she said he looked at her from 50 feet away, was back in court here Monday for the third time.

The hearing began is a packed but racially segregated courtroom at 1 a.m. before Judge Frank Armstrong.

NAACP attorneys Martin A. Martin of Richmond and Conrad O. Pearson of Durham, N.C. argued that the constitutional rights of Ingram were violated in the selection of the present jury panel, which included 74 white persons but no colored ones.

Accused By Girl, 17

Members of the jury panel were excluded from the courtroom as the lawyers argued.

At an earlier trial, the 17-year-old white girl, at that time, Miss Jean Boswell, now Mrs. Edward Webster, testified that the farmer chased her across a cornfield and "it looked like he was trying to cut me off." "He was leering at me," she added.

Mack Ingram

The girl admitted that at no time did Ingram approach closer than 50 feet to her.

At the first trial, Ingram, the father of nine children, was convicted and sentenced to two years. He appealed to Superior Court.

His second trial ended in a mistrial when the jury failed to agree.

Freed On $1,500 Bail

The original charge of assault with attempt to rape was reduced to assault on a female.

Ingram has been free on $1,500 bail since the first trial.

Considerable attention has been focused on this town of 1,300 persons since the incident occurred last June.

The lawyers are attacking the practice of excluding colored persons from the jury in Caswell County which has a population of about 20,000, about half of whom are colored persons.
