FOR REPRESENTATIVE IN 64TH CONGRESS,

JESSE D. PRICE,

MR. P. A. M. BROOKS made a most capable foreman of the grand jury. He and his assistants despatched the business of the jury with promptness, and finished up their work on Wednesday afternoon.

POSTMASTER-GENERAL Roper, of Washington, and Congressman Linthicum were entertained by Hope H. Barroll, Esq., during their stay in Chestertown. General Roper, accompanied by L. Wethered Barroll, Esq., visited the post-office and held a pleasant interview with Postmaster Thomas and his obliging deputies. Gen. Roper told Mr. Barroll that he felt sure the people of Chestertown could have free delivery if they make the proper effort to secure it, and it is very likely that Gen. Roper's suggestion will be accepted.

ADAM PEEPLES, former Speaker of the House of Delegates and a resident of Port Deposit, Cecil county, for many years, died in Philadelphia last week as the result of an accident. Mr. Peeples went down the cellarway of his home to examine the gas meter and accidentally fell causing paralysis. The election of Mr. Peeples as Speaker of the House was one of the most notable events in modern politics. There was a deadlock over the election of a speaker after the selection of Senator Arthur P. Gorman as President of the Senate, and Governor Crothers, who was at the time in the executive chair, came to the front and proposed Adam Peeples, a new member with absolutely no legislative experience, as a compromise candidate, and the Governor won his man. Mr. Peeples made an acceptable speaker and a conscientious legislator.

THE Republican campaign speakers are ringing the changes on business depression, charging the Democratic tariff with the responsibility. It is laughable to intelligent people. The great trusts, created and fostered by the Republican party, are absolutely responsible for the business depression. They control the factories that are keeping the laborers out of employment, and they control the money markets of the world. The sugar trust doubled the price of sugar when not a grain can get into this country from those nations which manufacture it, because of the war. The meat trust keeps the price of meat beyond the reach of the poor man, and the flour trust controls the flour market, and raised the price of flour $1 a barrel on the outbreak of the European war. The poor old Republicans haven't a single tenable issue in this campaign, and they are using the tariff as a blind for a condition for which their own creatures are responsible.

SUCH a disturbance as occurred on Queen street late Saturday night or early Sunday morning should not be allowed to occur in Chestertown again. It is the duty of the town officers to prevent disorderly conduct, and if they fail to do their duty, our citizens, for the safety of our morals and for the good of our community, should know the reason why. For three Saturday nights in succession now there have been outbursts, and our officers should see to it that rowdyism is broken up. The people will never allow an officer who does his full duty to lose his job. It is the fellow who is afraid to do what he is sworn to do that is in danger. There is more whiskey afloat in Chestertown every Saturday night than was ever known in the days of open saloons, and it was so plentiful last Saturday night that a quart was hidden under the porch steps of a prominent resident on Queen street, but its owner called for it early Sunday morning. Where is all this whiskey coming from every Saturday night? Is the law being violated with impunity? It is time to begin an investigation.

A Splendid Attendance.

There was a splendid attendance at Worton Grange last Monday night and a most enjoyable programme was rendered under the direction of the lecturer, Mrs. A. S. Turner. Enjoyable and highly entertaining readings were given by Mrs. Walter Fletcher, of the Fairlee Grange, Messrs. Theodore Jewell and Alfred Bacon, of the Worton Grange. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Hadaway rendered excellent violin and mandolin music, while the violin duett by Messrs. Jewell and Hadaway was finely rendered. Interesting discussions were given by the members of the grange upon the subjects: "How Many Cows are Necessary to Maintain a Silo, and of What Material Should it be Constructed, and the Different uses for Green Tomatoes". L. Wethered Barroll, Esq., of Baltimore, gave a very interesting talk on the employment of German labor on the farm, and the members of the grange were so much interested in what he said that they put him through a series of searching questions. Several of the members have employed this labor and others will do so. Mr. Thomas D. Bowers, of the TRANSCRIPT, was also present and gave a description of a recent visit to York fair, and told of the methods of farming in that prosperous section. Following the program the ladies served splendid cake and lemonade, and a social good time was enjoyed, during which Mr. Alfred Bacon gave a side-splitting imitation of the use of the telephone by a colored farm hand. Mr. Bacon is truly a gifted speaker, and his talent for imitation is far beyond the ordinary. Mr. Benj. F. Rash is the master of the grange, which is one of the largest and most flourishing in the county. It is in splendid working order and is doing excellent service.

OCTOBER COURT.

The October term of court convened on Monday morning with Associate Judges Adkins and Hopper on the bench. The following was the Grand Jury drawn:

P. A. M. Brooks, foreman,	Samuel J. Vickers,
Julian T. Power,	S. S. Hurlock,
E. W. Hepbron,	H. D. Hendrickson,
J. W. Norris,	C. H. Jefferson,
W. H. McKee,	Walter Francis,
George S. Biddle,	W. J. Gooding,
L. U. Skirven,	Tarbutton,
W. R. Startt,	H. S. Dempsey,
S. J. Comly,	N. O. Wilson,
A. L. Harris,	L. C. Wilson,
C. E. Crane,	S. C. Emory,

The petit jury was as follows:

G. A. Jarman,	John Brice, Jr.,
William Clark,	H. E. Cooper,
S. T. Cooper,	Joseph Brice,
G. T. Glenn,	Elwood Burgess,
C. H. Price,	J. P. Bradley,
T. L. Meeks,	H. B. Massey,
J. H. Weist,	A. S. Turner,
F. X. Kraft,	D. A. Bacchus,
Harvey Brice,	William Medders,
Richard Lockwood,	J. W. Stevens,
L. M. Ford,	Thomas Massey,
John Wilson,	C. H. Skirven.
M. A. Toulson,

The charge to the Grand Jury delivered by Judge Hopper was interesting and suggestive and we publish it for the benefit of the public:

Gentleman: You have been summoned here from your homes and daily vocations, at some inconvenience and sacrifice to yourselves to perform a necessary and important public service. The nature of the work that lies before you is very clearly indicated by the solemn and comprehensive oath that was administered to each one of you but a moment ago by the clerk. You will understand that this oath is not a mere formality. It is not simply a rite to initiate you as members of the grand jury. But it is the inflexible rule of conduct in your office and must guide and control you in all of your official proceedings.

If you followed the clerk as he delivered it to you with that careful and perceptive attention which it should receive from thoughtful men, you must have been impressed by its serious requirements and the delicate character of the duties of your office. All prosecutions, so far as they are conducted in court of law, being in the grand jury room and the peace and welfare of a community is very largely affected by the way in which grand jurors discharge the obligations of their position.

I would have you to realize that the grand jury is not a mere appendage of the court. It is a co-ordinate branch, or department of justice, for the administration of criminal law, having inherent powers and authority. Its operations are subject to no outside control. The court ought not, and does not undertake, to direct the manner in which it should conduct its proceedings, but confines itself to advising that the method and the results of all inquiries should be sure as to commend themselves to upright men who seek the truth in all things and who are faithful to do justice to all persons alike.

The court advises you and instructs you in the nature of your duties and will aid you to discharge them whenever it may; it organizes you, prescribes your sessional hours and may discharge you finally at any time. Further than this it does not interfere, for it can neither compel you to investigate any matter, find an indictment against any particular person, nor to dismiss any case, against your will. It acts only in an advisory capacity in such matters, properly leaving to you to act freely and without constraint in all your inquests and findings. Within the scope of your office you are independent to proceed in all matters that engage your attention according to your judgment and consciences, regulated and guided by your oath alone.

I make this broad statement in order to emphasize the honorable character of your employment. I want you to realize that you occupy a position not only of grave responsibility but one, also, of honor, dignity and great influence, which should command the respect of all men, and which will command it if its duties are performed without passion, prejudice or favor. Only the highest type of honest and liberal minded men are worthy to sit on juries, grand or petit. Only honest, sober and fair minded men are qualified to pass judgment on questions involving the character, liberty and property rights of their fellow-men. You will be called upon to pass upon the acts of persons charged with crime, and you must do this uninfluenced by any other motive or feeling than your sense of right or fall below that standard which it is your privilege and duty to reach.

Judge Adkins than instructed the jury in secrecy and interpreted laws in several cases.

After the usual call of the various dockets and marking cases for trial the first case tried was that of State vs. George A. Needles for assault on Mr. James Hickey, appealed from Justice Kendall. Verdict not guilty, court trial. W. W. Beck for Needles; H. W. Vickers for State.

The first of the new gallon-a-month law cases before the court was then brought up, viz, State vs. Thomas Tollinger, appealed from Justice Kendall. Verdict not guilty. S. Scott Beck for Tollinger; H. W. Vickers for State. Tollinger was charged with bringing more than a gallon of whiskey into the county in one month.

At this juncture the Grand Jury brought in the following presentments: Against Jos. H. Phillips for larceny; Ben. Bowser, breaking local option law; James Harris, breaking local option law.

H. A. Bolton vs. State, charged with assault, appealed from I. L. Dempsey, Galena, was then tried. Verdict not guilty. H. W. Vickers for State, H. H. Barroll and L. Wethered Barroll for Bolton.

WEDNESDAY'S SESSION.

This was a case in which Hurd claimed that Mr. Russell owed him $2.93 for work done at a saw mill which Mr. Russell had rented to another party, the latter having agreed on several occasions to pay the claim. A jury was empaneled, but after hearing a part of the evidence the court took the case from the jury and decided the matter in Mr. Russell's favor. S. S. Beck for Russell, R. Groome Parks for Hurd.

Mr. Robert J. Gill, of the Baltimore law firm of Barroll & Barroll, and a son of Rev. J. M. Gill, a former pastor of Christ Methodist Protestant Church, of this town, on motion of Hope H. Barroll, Esq., was admitted to practice in this court.

Grand Jury brought in true bills against Jim Green, James A. Urie, Ben Bowser, James Harris, Romie Robinson, Pearl Robinson, Charles Greenfield, Caleb Reed, Ben Scott, Joseph H. Phillips.

The case of William Taylor vs. the Pennsylvania R. R. Company for injuries received by being run over between Lambson's and Massey by a handcar, occupied the attention of the court for the remainder of the afternoon. Jury trial. Barroll & Barroll for Taylor, W. W. Beck for railroad company.

Samuel G. Rosebury, Charles Judefind and Thomas G. Wroth were excused as jurors on Monday and William Medders, James W. Stevens and Thomas Massey were drawn in their stand.

Senator Harper, Thomas J. Keating and Madison Brown, Esqs., of the Centreville bar, have been in attendance at court during a part of the week on important cases.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Court was occupied with railroad case all afternoon.

Grand Jury came into court with indictment against Henry Gable, for obtaining money under false pretense. The jury submitted its report as follows:

TO THE HONORABLE, THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR KENT COUNTY, MARYLAND:—The Grand Jurors of the State of Maryland for the body of Kent county respectfully report through their foreman to the Hon. Judges of said court that they have been in session three days, during which time they have examined 41 witnesses, 5 constables and baliff, made 13 presentments and found 13 true bills. We have visited the jail and premises in a body, found them neat and clean and prisoners comfortably provided for. We respectfully extend thanks to the court and officers of the court for their kind attention.

P. A. M. BROOKS, Foreman.

THURSDAY'S SESSION.

The afternoon session was occupied in hearing the evidence in the case of A Leon Brown vs. John G. Westcott, for damages for tresspass and destroying property.

FRIDAY'S SESSION.

The session of the court on Friday up to the hour of going to press was occupied with the case of A. Leon Brown vs. John G. Westcott, which was begun on Thursday afternoon.
