Army Private Slain By Guard

S.C. Soldier Had Only 9 Days To Go

FORT EUSTIS, Va. — Just nine days before he was due to be released, Pvt. Joseph Walker, 19-year-old soldier prisoner from Columbia, S.C., was shot to death Friday by a guard while he was attempting to work during an accident arising from the prisoner's slowness to obey orders.

The shooting occurred at the Army said, when Pvt. Walker was ordered to climb back into a trash collection truck by Cpl. Oscar Johnson of Warren, Wis.

"Ive got all the time in the world," Walker is quoted to have replied to the order.

For Shot in Gun

The guard put a bullet into his 12-gauge shotgun to frighten Walker into obeying promptly. In loading, the report said, Johnson accidentally discharged the weapon, fatally wounding the prisoner in the chest and neck.

The Army ruled the incident an accident and said no charges have been placed against John-son. although the corporal was placed in the custody of his company commander.

"Apparently the guard did not aim at the prisoner and the shotgun was discharged accidentally," an Army spokesman said, explaining the shooting.

Walker was serving a 3-month term of hard labor for repeated AWOL convictions. Ironically, he was due to be released from imprisonment, Jan. 11, with time off for good behavior.

He was one of four prisoners assigned to a trash-collecting detail under Johnson.

Sees Filibuster's Demise

Elmer W. Henderson, director of the American Council on Human Rights, said the announcement of the filibuster is "more favorably disposed to the next congress than the preceding one.

The elimination of the filibuster, legislation to outlaw the lynching menace, anti-lynching and anti-poll tax measures were the basis for resolutions adopted by the ACHR.

The resolutions asked President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower to urge congress to help in the fight against racial discrimination and added the request that he "take immediate steps to wipe out segregation in the District of Columbia and in the Armed Forces of the United States."

Want Policy Positions

The resolutions also asked the newly-elected President to include qualified colored people in responsible and policy-making positions in his administration.

While more than 5,000 delegates met joined with the ACHR, each organization held its own individual convention with private sessions.

In opening of the joint convention, Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson president of Howard university, said this is time for the "pussy-footing" on civil rights or the colored people will lose all gains they has made in the past few years.

Hits Colonial Stand

He deplored the tendency of the U.S. government to support the colonial powers at a time when 1,000,000,000 people in Asia and Africa are seeking to revolt against the colonial system. Instead of supporting colonialism, he added, the U.S.A. should be leading the world to freedom, remembering that this country itself, was the first colony to break away from colonialism in 1776.

'Apologize' To Robinson, White Tells State Dept.

NEW YORK — Acting swiftly in defense of Jackie Robinson, that Robinson, noted religious and civic leader whose passport the State Department has asked him to surrender, the NAACP this week asked Secretary of State Dean Acheson to rescind the request and have the State Dept. spokesgive "to one who has rendered such great service to his country."

"There is no American whose devotion to the highest ideals of Christianity and democracy is greater than Mr. Robinson's," said Mr. Dorsey, "and no one has more to refute Communists and other anti-American propaganda here at home and in Asia," NAACP executive secretary Walter White asserted in a telegram to the Secretary of State.

"The State Department itself has praised the work of Mr. Robinson on his round-the-world tour last year, which as an American can be told the U.S. is the best racial relations in the World today both good and bad."

Should Be Grateful

Mr. Dorsey said: "Our nation should be deeply grateful for Mr. Robinson for the understanding he has shown for the peoples of the world of what we are doing in the interest of democracy. To require him to surrender his passport would in our opinion play into the hands of both Communists and others who would undermine faith in the democratic process.

"We urge vigorously that the State Department not carry with straw its reported request that he surrender his passport but that it apologize to one who has rendered such great service to his country."

Reverend Robinson traveled extensively last year through India, Egypt, and other countries of Asia and the Middle East. He has been honored by civic organizations as an ambassador of good will and he received many letters of praise from American ambassadors in the countries he visited. He has toured the United States, reporting on his travels. One of his addresses was delivered at the NAACP's 42rd annual convention in Oklahoma City last June.
