WHEN THE KIDNEYS FAIL.

Chestertown People Have Found That Ill Health Follows.

Do you ever feel that you simply can't go any further—that you must have rest from that lame and aching back—relief from the constant, deadtired feeling—freedom from those stabbing, darting pains? Likely your kikneys are worn and tired and need help. The kidneys work night and day, removing uric acid from the blood and other waste created by expenditure of strength and energy. Naturally a life of unusual activity doubles the duties of the kidneys and in time the strain generally tells. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new strength to thousands of bad backs and quick relief to weakened kidneys, so users say. Let them do the same for you. Convincing proof of merit in Chestertown testimony.

Mrs. Aibert Rawleigh, Cannon St., Chestertown, says: "One of my family suffered from kidney trouble. The kidney secretions contained sediment and the passages were too frequent. He had pains through his back and kidneys and at times was dizzy. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally procured from Toulson's Drug Store and they made him well."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Rawleigh recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Apples Should Be Picked With Care

Should Be Handled Carefully and In Time To Secure Superior Marketing Quality.

HERMAN BECKENSTRATER.
Maryland Agricultural College.

When shall we start to pick apples? For the small boy this question is not a difficult one to answer, for he can decide immediately, act promptly, and think it over later if there is occasion. In the case of the grower, however, it takes considerable judgment and experience to decide when his apples are just right for picking.

If picked too soon, the fruit will be undersized, poorly colored, and inferior in quality. If allowed to hang on too long the keeping and shipping qualities of the apples are injured.

The time for picking red apples is generally judged by their color, and that of green varieties by the color of their seeds. The latter method is the most reliable indication of ripeness, for a winter apple, picked just as its seeds have turned a light brown and before they become dark around the edges will be found to have not only full flavor but also good keeping qualities. Frequently, however, red apples are left to hang on the trees for some time after the seeds indicate maturity, to allow them to take on more color.

The handling of the fruit begins with the picking, and the path from the orchard to market is likely to prove a bumpy one unless some simple precautions are taken to prevent bruising. Apples should not be grabbed, jerked, or shaken from the tree. Such treatment destroys many fruit spurs and seriously injures the fruit. If the stems are pulled out or the skin is broken, rot fungi quickly gets a hold and starts decay.

Good fruit should be most carefully handled. It should be laid into the basket or bag into which it is picked, not thrown or dropped. The padded half bushel basket with swing handle and wire hook to hang on the limbs is probably the best thing to pick into. In the case of the apron or bag, the weight of the fruit is continuously on the picker and there is additional danger of bruising the fruit while brushing or leaning against limbs or ladders.

CHICKEN-POX VICTIM.

ROY H. WAITE.
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Along in the fall of the year, many flocks of chickens become affected with a mild disease called sore head, or chicken-pox. Small, dry sores develop on the head parts of the birds that are not covered by feathers. The comb is the part most often affected in mild epidemics of adult fowls, but often the eye and corner of the mouth becomes diseased.

Simply anointing the diseased parts with vaseline has always cured our flocks, but I have seen cases where other diseases such as colds or roup accompanied it and where the vaseline treatment was not very efficient. In cases of this kind the other diseases must be treated as well.

The above photograph shows the scab-like formation of sore head on a young, half-grown chick. Some years the disease raises havoc in flocks of young chicks, but can be checked by the vaseline treatment.

EXERCISE CARE IN FEEDING NEW CORN TO HOGS.

R. S. ALLEN.
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

When new corn becomes available for feeding, care should be taken not to feed hogs too heavily on it at first as it is likely to cause indigestion

Those that have been kept on green pasture during the summer are not nearly so likely to be affected when new corn feeding is begun, as those which have been kept in the dry lot or the house, and if the pigs have had the run of a clover or alfalfa pasture, there is practically no danger. If a few pumpkins are fed in connection with the corn, the seeds will act as a vermifuge and no serious trouble will arise.

When the hogs are in a good, healthy condition, new corn may be fed without danger, but good judgment must be used at all times, or the results may be the loss of the entire herd.

"Maryland Week" has become a feature in the State which is looked forward to by both city and country people alike. It affords an opportunity for the display of the State's agricultural resources and a meeting place for our city and rural people.

WILL ASSESS STOCK AT ACTUAL VALUE.

State Tax Commission Sends Notice to Get Out New License.

As announced in last week's TRANSCRIPT the State Tax Commission has sent to the County Commissioners of the various counties cards notifying them that the large stocks of a number of merchants in Baltimore city and throughout the counties were not assessed for taxation at all. It was stated that the number of merchants thus escaping taxation on their stocks is approximately 3,200 or 63 per cent. of all the merchants doing business in the State.

The Commission, in addition, has furnished the clerks of courts in the various counties with a list of the merchants who have been instructed to apply for new licenses, and has directed its supervisors to report to it fully on November 1st whether the instructions regarding the taking out of new licenses and the assessment of stocks of those who have heretofore been escaping taxation have been carried out.

Clerk to the Board of Commissioners, Samuel Hicks, has the Kent county list, but in looking over the list we find quite a number of those whose names are given are not liable to taxation. There are 14 merchants on the Kent county list.

Victory for Oystermen.

At a meeting of the Shellfish Commission last Friday afternoon in Baltimore, action was taken on the oyster grounds that the Board has re-examined. It is practically certain that more than 50,000 acres of bottom which has heretofore been open to lease will be declared natural bars and reserved to the natural bar oystermen.

The steamer McLane, bearing Chairman Green and Chief Engineer Earle, arrived in Baltimore Friday morning from the Patuxent river, where the last examinations were made. This work is not completed, but will be finished this week.

Mr. Green said that up to Friday the Commission had re-examined about 55,000 acres, divided into 291 sections. Of these all but five sections contained enough oysters to come within the definition of a natural bar, and but five sections, embracing about 800 acres, will be left out for leasing. The result of the re-examination of the oyster grounds is a great victory for the advocates of the Sheppard bill passed by the last Legislature, who have claimed all the time that the original survey was incorrect.

Making the re-examinations, the Shellfish Board used the same methods that the oystermen do in earning a livelihood; that is, they examined the tonging grounds with tongs, the dredging grounds with dredges and the scraping grounds with scrapes. In the original examinations the tests were made by dragging over the bottoms a chain attached to a wire, the tabulation as to the quantity of oysters being made on the number of vibrations of the wire

U. S. to Aid Maryland Schools.

Teachers in the public schools of the State will be provided with outlines for the teaching of practical agriculture to their pupils in the sixth and seventh grades, according to plans presented to the faculty of the Agricultural College by Dr. E. A. Miller, specialist in rural education, United States Department of Agriculture. Members of the faculty were invited by Dr. Miller to join with him in the preparation of these outlines so that they might fit as exactly as possible local conditions in the State, and so that this instruction may be given at the proper season for its application on the home farm by the parents of the students.

The State Board of Education has entered into an agreement with the Agricultural College and the Department of Agriculture to aid in preparing those outlines and distributing them to local teachers. It is expected that by this means elementary agricultural education in Maryland Schools will become more practial than in most States. The Department of Agriculture has entered into similar agreements with the State Board of Education in Wisconsin and Alabama, Maryland being the third State to be added to the list.

Impressive Memorial Service.

In keeping with the custom of the order, memorial services were held throughout the State by councils of the Jr. O. U. A. M. last Sunday. The meeting of the local council was held at Fraternal Hall at 3.30 Sunday afternoon, with Wm. A. Burk, chairman of the committee of arrangements, presiding. Wheatley, J. B. McIntire, C. W. Hague, Walter T. Bennett, Wm. F. Russell, William B. Coleman and L. Bates Russell.

This free service will be performed for all such freight shipped by organized societies between now and November 30th. If you desire to assist in this worthy cause and want to send a Christmas present, consult the agent at the station and he will give you the desired information. The Christmas ship "Jason" will sail from New York on November 10th.

To Test Anti-Shipping Law—The so-called "Anti-Shipping" law, restricting the shipping of liquor into Eastern Shore counties, is to be tested. A representative of the firm of Anthony Kayser, 238 South Eleventh street, Philadelphia, was in Easton last week and announced that the constitutionality of the bill was to be tested by his firm at once. The alleged weakness in this law, according to the Kayser people, is that it interferes with interstate trade, and the fight will be conducted on that line, and the argument as made in the famous Hazel law in Delaware will be applied in this case.
