Home Maker Clubs For Farm Girls

State and National Demonstration Workers Plan Home Demonstrations For Maryland Daughters.

What is known as the Girls' Demonstration Work, began in 1910, with the organization of Canning Clubs in two States. Today there is an organization of more than 40,000 girls under the supervision of nearly 400 women agents. In 1913, 4,202 girls belonging to the Canning Clubs of the Southern States, according to their reports, canned 1,032,115 cans of tomatoes, and 522,147 cans of other products, in all, valued at $180,420. They also formed Poultry Clubs, there being now 2,090 Poultry Club members. Bread Clubs have also been organized and in some counties some home improvement work has been done.

MARYLAND FARM GIRL.

In all of these activities, the women on the farms have given much help. Frequently, they have enrolled to receive the instructions, and have regularly attended the meetings and demonstrations. They have eagerly followed the instructions of the county women agent and have urged that a special work be organized for them. This work is now being extended into some Maryland counties and should be well understood by farm women and girls.

Wherever possible the women of the neighborhood will be enrolled in the Home Division of the State Demonstration Work, and under the direction of the County Woman Agent, they will join in the work of the Girls' Clubs and help teach their daughters the preparation of attractive dishes from the products of the Canning, Poultry and Garden Clubs. This will soon grow into demonstrations in the preparing of other foods, such as breads, etc., which are necessary to make up a wholesome meal.

In addition to the use of these products, the women will have demonstrations in the use of labor saving devices and conveniences, many of which shall be home made. The first one of importance will be a fireless cooker in which many new dishes will be prepared. As rapidly as possible, these conveniences will be added so as to cause both a saving of labor and improved sanitary conditions in the farm home. Farm women interested in these plans should write in to the Director of Extension, Maryland Agricultural College, College Park, Md.

STORING WINTER VEGETABLES PROPERLY.

T. H. WHITE, Vegetable Gardener, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

If a cellar like this is not handy for use and you have only a small amount of vegetables to be stored, the kiln method should be used. The kiln is simply a hole dug in the open ground, circular in shape and less than a foot deep. Into this the roots are poured until they form a conical pile a couple of feet high. A layer of straw or covering material should be placed directly on the vegetables and the roots are poured until they form a conical heap as a final cover. White potatoes, turnips, and beets will all keep perfectly this way. Carrots and salsify should be laid away more carefully. These will last much better if instead of being dumped into the pile they are placed in alternate layers with sand between. All vegetables that are to be stored should be kept in the garden as late as possible. Do not, however, let them become very severely frozen. Parsnips and salsify will keep very well in the garden where they have grown, but are some times very difficult to reach when snow is on the ground.

CONDITIONS MAKE ECONOMICAL POULTRY FEEDING NECESSARY.

ROY H. WAITE, Poultryman, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The economical use of feed for poultry should be practiced at all times, for in the poultry business, a penny wisely saved is better than a penny earned. During the present high price of feed, there is more reason for being economical, but being economical does not mean cutting down on feed, unless the fowls are too fat. It does mean balancing the amount of feed fed and the eggs or meat produced, so that the largest returns in the shape of profits will be realized. I have known people who have fed their hens only the cheapest feed, thinking they were being economical and who could have, by adding a small amount of some high protein feed, turned their total loss into at least a small gain.
