EVEN

The boy—the unassuming boy. The unsuspecting, confiding, unsophisticated boy, is rapidly learning where to come and hand over his confidence and have his Suit or Overcoat made by dealers who have a reputation built by meritorious trading. The boy is learning his lesson by comparison with those WE'VE been serving, and they're pining their faith to people with a favorable history.

The more mature in years are not so susceptable, and having the advantage of past experiences, have learned our way of trading some time ago. This class have been coming to us from the beginning.

Our trade is increasing daily from the fact—we have shown a large percentage the superior qualties in fabrics and workmanship.

No large upkeep is the reason. Think this over and come see for yourselves.

Respectfully,

W. E. MOODY,
Special Representative for Kent and Queen Annes Counties of the International Tailoring Co. of New York, Chicago and London,
(Nextto Robert McWhorter's)

Old Kris Comes.

Wednesday and Thursday were big days in Chestertown. The merchants of the town arranged for Old Kris and his boys to come to town on the morning train and a great crowd was at the station to greet them. Mr. Charles S. Smith escorted the family to a convenient place along the public square and every boy and girl who was here got an orange and candy. On Thursday the baloons were sent up bearing the names of the merchants of the town. Whoever got a baloon with a merchant's name on it took it to his store and got a present. At night on Thursday Xmas carols were sung by a big crowd around the fountain and the spirit of Xmas was more manifest than ever. The merchants of the town are to be congratulated upon their efforts in this direction.

Two of the papermill wagons drawn by four gaily decorated horses and loaded with good things, with Old Kris and his family in sleighs drawn by a fine horse, paraded the streets and stopped at the public square, where the goodies were distributed to the hundreds of waiting children. The affair was splendidly managed by Mr. Smith and his assistants.
