

CUT THE CORDS

that bind you to your kitchen

Come down to-day and see a graphic picture of conditions that apply in kitchens that lack Hoosier convenience. The whole story is in our window.

THE NEW HOOSIER CABINET

Puts your whole kitchen at fingers' ends, and cuts your work in two. We'll put one in your home to-day FOR A SINGLE DOLLAR.

We start to-day to explain the new HOOSIER PLAN by which we are permitted to sell a few of these famous cabinets on surprising terms.

MOST OF THEM ARE ALREADY TAKEN

This plan differs from any other on which furniture was ever sold. Note the details.

1. One dollar puts any Hoosier you select in your home.
2. One dollar weekly dues quickly pay for it.
3. The low cash price fixed by the factory prevails absolutely.
4. The is under the direct supervision of the Hoosier Company.
5. When this allotment is taken, the sale closes.
6. If you are not delighted with your cabinet we will gladly refund your money.

When you think of the miles of steps this cabinet saves you every day, can you daily postpone looking at these cabinets until it is too late to enroll? The time is getting short. Come in to-day and look at these Hoosiers. You place yourself under no obligation.

You will not be asked to buy.

unless you realize yourself the need of this cabinet in your home. But if you do not enroll, remember, some other woman will enjoy the privilege that is now yours if you enroll to-day.

Nothing you have seen will save you so much labor in your kitchen, if you act to-day.

FROZEN COMBS SHOULD BE GUARDED AGAINST.

See That Your Hens Do Not Roost In Exposed Places Or To Themselves.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

One of the hardest things to do during a cold snap is to keep the combs of the poultry from freezing. This is true more especially of some of the larger combed breeds, like the Minorcas, Leghorns, etc. It, perhaps, does not injure the value of a bird to any great extent, so far as breeding qualities are concerned, to have part of its comb frozen off, but it isn't very pleasant to the birds nor do they look so well afterwards. It is a very serious defect in a show specimen to have its comb frozen and poultry fanciers take extra precautions, such as taking the birds in the house or other warm places on cold nights, or anointing their combs with vaseline, to keep them from freezing.

Where more than one male is roosting with the flock, one is always boss and usually keeps his meeker comrades from roosting with the rest of the flock. Roosting alone, even though the place may not be exposed badly, they do not get the advantage of the body heat from the other birds and their combs freeze more quickly. Likewise, a few fowls roosting in a big space are not able to conserve their heat and suffer accordingly on cold nights. We have found, however, that even with open front houses, if the roosts are placed at the rear of the house, with a droppings board beneath, and the roof fairly low, and are kept well filled with birds, there is little danger from combs freezing.

Vaseline is recommended after the damage is done. If the bird is found with comb still frozen it should be thawed out very slowly, using cold water or snow. Apply the water with a cloth or the snow direct. When thawed out anoint with vaseline. Often the wattles will swell up like a couple of eggs and in this case they can be lanced to let out the collected serum and relieve the birds.

SUDAN GRASS GIVES PROMISING RESULTS AS A MARYLAND FORAGE CROP.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

It has long been an acknowledged fact that Johnson grass would be a very valuable hay plant in the South if it were not for its persistent aggression as an obnoxious weed after once introduced in a field. This fact has led the Office of Forage Crop Investigations and others of the Department of Agriculture at Washington to search for a type of Johnson grass that would not after once introduced persist as a weed. As a result, seed was obtained in 1909 from Mr. R. Hewisen, Director of Agriculture and Land of the Sudan Government at Khartum. The seed was planted and the crop from the beginning showed its value. In fact, it seemed to be just what agriculturists had been looking for. The Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station has tested it at College Park and elsewhere in the State. In every case it has proven itself to be worthy of favorable consideration as a hay plant on every farm when conditions warrant.

Sudan Grass is not a Johnson Grass. It does not have persistent under ground root stalks as is the case with Johnson Grass. Sudan Grass is killed above and below ground by the first frost in the fall, and does not persist in the soil by voluntary seeding as is the case with many of our most obnoxious annual weeds, such as foxtail, crab grass, etc. In appearance and habit of growth Sudan grass resembles both Johnson grass and the cultivated sorghums. It no doubt, however, is more closely related to the cultivated sorghums than to Johnson grass.

Sudan grass should not replace clover, alfalfa or even timothy, where these can be grown profitably, because, owing to quick growth and heavy yield, it is very exhausting on the land, while on the other hand clover and alfalfa add to the fertility. Hence, on farms growing clover, alfalfa or timothy abundantly in normal seasons, Sudan grass should not be given a consideration, excepting in the light of a catch hay crop in years of short production—something to be used for helping out in years the regular hay crop is short.

Did you ever see a woman who had built up a flock of snowy Wyandottes or Leghorns? If she was proud of what her chickens did for her before they were pure breds, she is doubly so when they are. Hardly any more promising field for an independent income is open to a woman who knows how to handle chickens than that of getting pure-bred stock and building up a trade for breeding stock. Poultry Week, January 18-23, 1915, at the Agricultural College, is the time for her to get acquainted with the best breeds, methods of breeding and how to handle pure-bred stock to advantage. There is no industry in which a trained mind and a skilled hand work together better than in the breeding and raising of poultry.

Says Women Drive Men to Drink.

Judge George E. Page, of the district court of Milwaukee, Wis., believes in the old adage that some women drive men to drink. He has prepared ten commandments showing the failings of wives which most frequently cause drunkenness, according to his experience.

"Man is a lover of cleanliness, and when his dream of a tidy, orderly home materializes into a place of dirt and disorder he very often turns drunkard to forget," says Judge Page. He says that, through his failure alone, women bring sorrow and disgrace upon themselves.

"And don't forget the cooking," is his warning. "Many homes have been destroyed because the wife could not prepare a good meal."

Here is the "Decalogue of Judge Page," which gives the causes of drunkenness:

"First—Returning from their daily labors and finding their homes in dirty, untidy condition.

"Second—Returning home and finding wife absent, no meal ready, no preparations made for her return.

"Third—Continual nagging without cause, provocation or excuse.

"Fourth—Continual quarrelling with other members of the family in presence of husband.

"Fifth—Demanding things beyond the means of the husband and complaining constantly of his inability to furnish them.

"Sixth—Indiscretion in the disposition of his earnings, spending same for unnecessary things and forcing him in debt for necessities."

Some Poultry Wisdom.

Get a bone cutter. Get a good one. The relation between the bone cutter and pultry success is very close, especially in the winter when hens are apt to be penned up a large part of the time and when the family is consuming much meat. The green bones from the table and from the kitchen waste can thus be made into poultry flesh and be a source of profit.

One of the best if not the best animal food for poultry is milk. All the ingredients necessary to form a perfect animal food are found in skimmilk. It makes no difference whether it is sweet or sour or how it is fed, whether alone or with other foods, it answers its purpose equally as well.

A windbreak of some sort makes a poultry house warmer on the inside and gives the fowls a sheltered place for outdoor exercise. The owner of a chicken house built under the shelter of a number of evergreen trees says drinking water hardly ever freezes inside.

To keep proultry from roosting over feed mangers and other places that ought to be kept clean nail a small wire four inches above board.

This is a good time to figure up accounts for the year and what the chicken business has done for us.

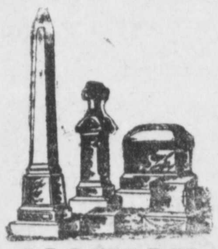

Dr. Lewis Appointed Provost.

Rev. Dr. Thomas H. Lewis, president of Western Maryland College, was elected Provost of the Maryland State University last week. This new institution is a consolidation of the University of Maryland, Western Maryland and Washington Colleges. The salary of the new position is $3,000 a year. St. John's and Maryland Agricultural Colleges are not included in the scheme. In view of the fact that a condition of the acceptance of the new position is that Dr. Lewis relinquish his duties at Western Maryland College, and in view of the additional fact that the salary is not as attractive as that which Dr. Lewis is now receiving as president of Western Maryland, it is not believed that he will accept the new honor.

Still Pond Farmers' Club.

At the last meeting of the Still Pond Farmers' Club, which was held at the home of S. G. Roseberry, the labor question was thoroughly discussed. A resolution was passed without a dissenting vote that, "Every farmer in Kent county employ at least one man from outside the country in order to increase the supply of labor."

The next meeting will be at the home of Wm. H. Bonwill, Jan. 28th. Mr. Cornelius will open the discussion on "What change in our method of farming could be made profitable that would decrease the quantity of labor needed?"
