They Captured National Title

The crack swimming team of Tennessee A and I University ruled the waves in the CIAA Invitational Swimming meet at Morgan recently. They swept 13 out of 14 events to dominate the meet, while Howard University placed second. Tennessee captured the mythical National Championship title in swimming and diving.

Bullet Basketball Star Praised By City

By HERB MANGRUM

In one of the most impressive testimonials ever accorded a local sports figure, the city of Baltimore honored basketball star Don Barksdale Saturday at the Coliseum.

Although unable to attend the celebration because of injuries sustained in a game at Syracuse on March 7, the rangy Bullet star sent a message of gratitude from Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The popular Baltimore forward was admitted to Hopkins on Thursday for treatment of a torn tendon in the groin.

Presented Citations

More than 40 awards and citations from merchants and civic groups were accepted for Barksdale by Bullet Coach Clair Bee.

Barksdale's absence from the squad has been described as a major blow, for he was the leading scorer on the Baltimore team.

In all probability he will wind up the season with 899 points and a 13.8 percentage.

Most Rebounds

Three games remain to be played on the Bullet schedule. In the record books of the National Basketball Association, Barksdale ranks 13th.

The Bullets week-end victory over Philadelphia, 87 to 85 was the second game the honored guest missed this season.

This last victory clinched for the local team a berth in the national playoffs.

Out For The Season

It is believed however that Barksdale will be out of action for the remainder of the season. The Bullets' 87-85 victory over the Warriors Saturday was in essence "for Don."

As a further award their teammates, the Bullets presented to their No. 1 star a 21-inch television set.

Charles Bridge, Sponsor

Under the sponsorship of Charles Bridge of Archway Motor Company, awards ranging from a record player to cuff likes were presented to Barksdale.

Trophies and other awards were presented from the Baltimore Urban League, the Baltimore Bureau of Recreation, and the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity of which Barksdale is a member.

A few of the awards covered the star's outstanding achievement in human relations as well its kind ever held in Baltimore was endorsed by the Frontiers Club.

Noted earlier in the college career as a star at UCLA, Barksdale until recently was one of two colored players on the Baltimore team. He joined the club in Oct. of 1951.

The other tan star was Dave Minor who was later traded to Milwaukee.

Received Sportsmanship, Award

Barksdale recently received the sportsmanship award from the Sports Boosters Club of Baltimore.

A spotlight star and one of the highest salaried in the business, he was the first Negro player on a U.S. Olympic basketball team.

At one time Barksdale was holder of the hop, step and jump title.

The six feet 6 inch star tips the scales at 200 pounds. During the summer months, which he spends in California, Barksdale produces his own radio show.

Overseas Press Club Gets Hicks

NEW YORK — James L. Hicks, New York correspondent of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers has been unanimously voted a member of the Overseas Press Club of America, an organization composed of nationally and internationally known correspondents.

The admission committee of the club notified Hicks of his acceptance last week. The AFRO correspondent qualified for membership in the club by virtue of his overseas reporting of the war in Korea. Only correspondents who have spent at least six months overseas as a newsman may be accepted for admission in the club.

Hicks' name was placed in nomination for membership by Edward R. Murrow, noted commentator of the Columbia Broadcasting System's "This I Believe" radio and television program.

Two Served Together

The two men served together reporting the Korean war. In his nominating letter to the club, Murrow referred to Hicks as "One of the finest reporters I know."

church members who came to the hearing Monday morning were disappointed by not being able to hear the proceedings.

Witnesses Barred

All witnesses in the case were barred until called to testify and because the courtroom can accommodate only about 60 persons, the majority of the spectators, including several children, were likewise directed to assemble in another room.

At the time of the church conference, last April, the Rev. Mr. Carpentier was pastor of Campbell AME church in Washington.

He testified that in order to buy a car which he needed in his church work, he had incurred an $1,100 note on the Industrial Bank in Washington with Elijah Williams, one of the church officers, as co-signer.

When he had reduced the bank note to $585, the minister said, he became unable to make additional payments because of family illness, the birth of another child, and reduced income caused by his transfer to a smaller church.

Subsequently, the bank took action against Mr. Williams as co-signer of the bank note.

Mr. Williams Testifies

Mr. Williams said that he took the matter up with Bishop Hemingway who advised him that it would have to be handled through the law of the church.

Mr. Carpentier said that during his conference meeting on April 11, Bishop Hemingway interrupted the judiciary committee report, saying that he had something to be referred to the committee.

Going on to other business, the bishop asked all the ministers to stand to see if there were any challenges about their moral, religious or official characters.

At that time, Mr. Williams came forward, all witnesses left, and accused the Rev. Mr. Carpentier of "fraud" and "misconduct."

When he said "Yes," the bishop replied that he was corrupt and dishonest and unfit to serve in the church.

Witnesses for the Rev. Mr. Carpentier who supported these statements and these general impressions were Misses Hattie L. Seamore and Mattie J. Seamore, sisters, who live at 113 N. Bentalou st.

They are members of a Baptist church, but said they were invited by the Rev. Mr. Carpentier to attend the closing session of the AME conference.

The minister said that in June, the committee appointed to hear his case worked out an agreement for him to pay $25 per month on the bank note: he was reinstated and was assigned to pastor a church in Blacksburg, Va. which has only 32 members.

Taken By Surprise

When he arrived in Blacksburg, he found a younger minister in charge. Neither the minister nor the congregation had been advised to expect him, the Rev. Mr. Carpentier said.

The church officers told him that because of the publicity regarding his suspension and because their young pastor was in a better financial position being given with another job and no obligation, they preferred to keep the other man.

When he reported this situation to Bishop Hemingway, the bishop sent him back to Virginia a second time. This time, the presiding elder called a meeting during which the congregation voted unanimously to keep the other minister.

Takes Hotel Job

Reporting this development to the bishop, he was advised to return his appointment papers to the bishop and to let the Virginia church keep its pastor, he said, as was the congregational wish, Mr. Carpentier testified.

Unsuccessful in establishing a new church and having received no new pastorate, he had had to take the hotel job, the minister said.

Although he earns $75.50 per week plus tips at the hotel and his top church salary was $3,300 plus maintenance, he prefers to follow his calling as a minister, the Rev. Mr. Carpentier said. He contends that the charges made against him at the conference were improper because the church law requires that such charges be taken to the church steward board then to the presiding elder, then to the conference judiciary committee.

Slander Denied

Denying the slanderous remarks, Bishop Hemingway maintains that the "obscene questions" regarding ministers are raised at the conference specifically to hear such challenges.

He maintains too that, under the circumstances, he acted within the church procedure according to his authority as bishop.

Among the defense witnesses on Monday was Mr. Williams who said that he had no previous agreement with Bishop Hemingway concerning the charges, but that when the bishop told him the matter had to be taken up at the "challenge of the church, I knew what I had to do."

He said that he was personally indignant because the bad debt with Mr. Carpentier had made his credit bad, and "that debt made me do that kind of thing."

Other witnesses, so far, for the bishop testified about the bank note negotiations and the fact that two checks submitted by the Rev. Mr. Carpentier on the bank note were returned for insufficient funds.

The Rev. Mr. Carpentier admitted that he has been arrested twice, once for speeding, and once because of a check on a closed bank account.

However, he said, these latter charges against him were dropped, and he has never been indicted nor convicted of any criminal offense.

Mr. Carpentier is represented by I. Duke Avnet. Attorneys for Bishop Hemingway are L. Winston Mezger and H. Allen Meyer.

note so that we can have peace in the church," the witnesses said.

When he said "Yes," the bishop refused to let him discuss the situation further, the minister said. Then the bishop added that, "All I know about you is bad, bad, very bad."

Committee Appointed

Before the conference adjourned for the day, the bishop appointed a 10-man committee to review the charges against the Rev. Mr. Carpentier.

On the following day, the meeting at Bethel church attracted between 2,500 and 3,000 persons anxious to hear the reading of the pastoral appointments.

At that time, according to the Rev. Mr. Carpentier, the bishop failed to give him an appointment.

Instead, he said, the bishop told the congregation that "I cannot give Brother Carpentier an appointment because of charges against him. He has been arrested, indicted and convicted of charges of fraud and misconduct."

The bishop added, the minister said, a directive that the Rev. Mr. Carpentier was not to handle church funds nor to sing, preach or contest any service in an AME church, and that any pastor who allowed him to serve in his pulpit would be "handled by me."

Impressions Discussed

The minister said that the bishop also made the statement that "I'm going to clean up the Baltimore conference if it's the last thing I do."

This, the minister, contends gave the public the impression that he was corrupt and dishonest and unfit to serve in the church.

Witnesses for the Rev. Mr. Carpentier who supported these statements and these general impressions were Misses Hattie L. Seamore and Mattie J. Seamore, sisters, who live at 113 N. Bentalou st.

three-man trail board to hear cases involving police conduct.

These plans were made at a meeting of 14 civic groups Monday at the Urban League office, 2404 Pennsylvania ave.

The league, headed by Edgar M. Ewing, had called the meeting prior to the release of Commissioner Ober's report on the conduct of Officer Bernard Zilinski and Sgt. Joseph Dunn.

Harmony Desired

Its purpose was to formulate recommendations for more satisfactory relations between police officers and citizens of the community.

Since the commissioner's report had been released in the meantime, the Rev. Joshua Williams, who acted as chairman of the meeting, found the persons attending inclined to deal with it first.

Arrested In Home

Mrs. Wilkins was arrested March 3 in the vestibule of her home at 1824 Edmonson ave., after she had refused to allow a workman to enter her home to repair a roof leak. Clad only in a robe and nightgown which was badly torn as she was taken into police custody, Mrs. Wilkins was taken from her home where she left three small children, ages 5 months to 7 years and a lighted gas stove unattended.

Charged with "disorderly conduct in a public place, at the trial at Pine st. Women's court several hours later.

Public indignation resulting from accounts of the incident newspaper reports of the incident prompted a police department investigation.

Chief Inspector Joseph Itzel released a statement soon thereafter that the officers had "acted properly" and that there was at least one published report that the police department considered the matter closed.

Later, however, Col. Ober told the AFRO that the investigation had never been closed and that he was conducting a personal probe.

Officers Justified

His findings were made public in a 5,000 word statement last Thursday, in which he ruled that the officers were justified in making the arrest, but erred in charging the young mother with disorderly conduct.

She should have been charged with "assaulting an officer," he said.

The commissioner's ruling caused an immediate public reaction.

The NAACP, previously connected with the case only through one of its legal counsel, W. Emerson Brown Jr., who is representing Mrs. Wilkins, announced plans to review the case at its 40th anniversary celebration
