Worton Grange Notes.

Worton Grange held its usual weekly meeting last Monday night, although the weather was very inclement, which kept a good many at home.

It was decided to have a meeting at 7 o'clock next Monday night instead of 7.30, and after the business meeting, the lecture hour and supper, which will follow, are to be open to the children and friends of the members. All are requested to come in costume of "Ye olden times." Old familiar tunes will be sung, and readings and recitations will pass a delightful evening for us. So don't be late, be on hand at 7 o'clock sharp. If very stormy, it was decided to hold the meeting on Tuesday at the same hour, so don't be afraid your chicken salad, chicken, ham, biscuits, rolls, etc., will not keep until the next day.

The following two articles are the ones referred to in the Worton grange notes last week about model husbands:

"THE MODEL HUSBAND."

He's up in the morning at five o'clock,
Off to the pasture after the stock;
Milks seven bosses and feeds their calves,
Doing it thoroughly and not by halves;
Feeds all the chickens and geese with corn,
Ready at last for the breakfast horn,
Yes, this is the "Model Husband."

Curry and harness old black Fan,
Out to the station with the milk can;
Over the railroad, stop at the store,
Goes inside and closes the door.
He hears the news of the surrounding community,
Sent out by the goodsbox gassers in unity.
Of course, he gets home at noon,
Probably not quite so soon;
He dosen't forget, either, to take his wife a nice box of candy,
And something for the boys or girls he thinks quite handy,
Yes, this is the "Model Husband."

He's never too busy to help a friend,
Or stop on his way a good act to commend.
Then, too, he abstains from all evils of life,
Never forgets to be courteous to his wife;
And whenever she wants a new hat for fall,
He opens his pocketbook and gives her all.

The man who can make the best husband has a temper calculated to bear the wear and tear of everyday life. He does not fly into a passion at a trifle, or vent his rage at things that nobody on earth can help. He may show his righteous wrath on occasion, and let fly at persons or things that deserve it, but he dosen't talk for hours afterward, and make everybody about him miserable.

The man who makes a good husband is not lazy and idle. He dosen't prefer to sit with his hands in his pockets, doing nothing when his family are in want of their daily bread. Idle habits are pretty certain to bring about harm.

The best husband is considerate. He takes care of his wife. If men have any idea how women love to be taken care of and looked after they would, perhaps, exercise their own powers in that direction a little oftener. Women's lives are, for the best part, a good deal harder than men fancy. Women are not nearly so strong phsically, and yet they have to suffer in the course of their lives ten times more pain and weariness than the average man has any idea of. They are sensitive, too, after a fashion that don't appeal to a man. A smile can make them happy and a sharp word unutterably miserable.

The man who makes the best husband is unselfish. After all, that covers all the rest. Consideration, generosity, good temper, all are summed up under that heading, for the unselfish man possesses them all. Marriage is so much an affair in which, if he is so disposed, man gets all the kernels and the woman all the shells, that it depends entirely upon him whether she doubles her joys and halves her sorrows, or does exactly the reverse.

The selfish man can make her miserable with every hour of the day, and that in exact proportion to her love for him. He can embitter all the most innocent pleasures and add to the load of cares and disappointment.

The unselfish husband can make her life with him so happy that no troubles will have power to ruffle her peace, till the supreme one comes of losing him. So girls, when you choose your husbands see that they are unselfish. It is better than if they could hang you over with diamonds.

As Monday evening was stormy there was no meeting of Kennedyville Grange. On next Monday evening there will be a Martha Washington party, at which George and Martha Washington will be present as guests of honor.

Fall Will Prove Fatal.—Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Gunkle, of Warwick, Md., is in a very critical condition at her home in Warwick, suffering from a broken hip, due to a fall on the porch of her home about two weeks ago. Mrs. Gunkle is about 73 years of age and no hopes are entertained for her recovery. Her son, James U. G. Reynolds, of Wyoming, is with her, having arrived early last week.

Cupid's Sherlock Holmes.

A prominent alienist has presumed to put love on a scientific basis. He has issued a formula by which a doubting swain may ascertain without fail the name of his closest rival for "her" affections.

Here it is:

Carelessly hold "her" wrist, as if caressingly. Craftily place your forefinger on "her" pulse. Then name over in casual conversation the rivals you fear most. When you name the right one "her" pulse will jump scandalously. If it increases something like 100 beats you might as well quit the race.

To offset this mean betrayal the alienist has issued some hints to the fair sex on how to avoid nervousness. "Scorn gossip," he says, "and don't attend to other persons' business or worry over their troubles and you will be all right."

But he doesn't say a word as to how Dulcinea might have kept the fatal pulse jump from giving her away.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Grecian Food For Dreamers.

Hasheesh, the strange drug which has given our language its word "assassin"—a man so frenzied by the drug that he accomplishes murder—is used by the Persians, Turks and Egyptians. It is the product of a plant grown in large quantities in the Peloponnesus (southern Greece), in the district about Tripolitza. The plant grows to a height of about four feet, and its branches are thickly covered with small leaves and studded with tiny seeds. The entire plant, stalk and branches, is cut within a few inches of the root and laid out in the sun to dry. The branches are then rubbed to separate the seeds, and these in turn are ground into a fine powder, which constitutes the drug. The drug has the power of inducing sleep and producing pleasant and fantastic dreams. Continued use of hasheesh renders its devotees reckless and results in a wreck of their mental and physical constitution.

Fame of a Tailor.

The name of Captain Keayne has a secure niche in history as the founder of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company. He was a merchant tailor and had been a member of the Honorable Artillery company of London, and his Boston company had to overcome the opposition of Governor Winthrop, who feared the establishment of a Pretorian guard. Perhaps Keayne would have failed entirely had he not been "distinguished for his piety and benevolence." In the practice of his art as a tailor he ran foul of the laws for the regulation of business and was fined £200 by the great and general court for exacting more than sixpence in the shilling profit on foreign goods. He died in Boston March 23, 1656, and his will, in which was a substantial bequest to Harvard, is one of the longest on record.—New York Sun.

A Dyak War Yell.

I was anxious to hear a Dyak war yell, and I asked the rajah to get a native to give vent to one of these sounds of gratification, heard when heads are taken by Dyaks without loss to themselves. A curious falsetto sound issued from his lips. It went higher and higher, louder and louder, something between the crowing of a cock and the whistle of a steam engine, and then it died down into a whisper. Two or three times he repeated this performance, which greatly interested me. It was not so terrible as I had imagined it must be, but the rajah explained that when heard in a chorus of thousands of men, all yelling at once, as he had heard it after successful skirmishes with the pirates, it was a most terrifying experience, and froze the blood in one's veins.—Wide World Magazine.

An Old Time Joker.

It happened that Dean Swift, having been dining at some little distance from Laracor, his residence, was returning home on horseback in the evening, which was very dark. Just before he reached a neighboring village his horse lost a shoe. Unwilling to run the risk of laming the animal by continuing his ride in that direction, he stopped at one Kelly's, the blacksmith of the village, where, having called the man, he asked him if he could shoe a horse with a candle.

"No," replied the son of Vulcan, "but I can with a hammer."

Lingering Leave Taking.

The visiting lady had kept her hostess at the open door fully half an hour saying goodby. Finally an irate masculine voice indoors called out:

"Say, Maria, if you're going out, go; if you're staying, stay, but for heaven's sake don't ooze out."—Harper's Magazine.

Ought to Have Leaked Out.

"Isn't it strange that so few men discover the secret of success in life?"

"Yes, but it's stranger still that the secret is still a secret. Surely some of the men who discovered it must have told it to their wives."—Philadelphia Press.

Russia's Duma.

No law in Russia can come into effect without the approval of the duma—an elected body of representatives—and the council of the empire, nominated by the emperor.

Just So.

"Do you think that marriage is a lottery?"

"Can't say I do. Still, everybody who marries takes a chance."—Kansas City Journal.

The Greater Courage.

Men have offered up their lives by the thousands upon the field of battle, but in the struggle for existence woman is continually offering up her life for man. If there is a mission of mercy to perform she undertakes it. If there is suffering or distress to succor her willing hand is always ready. If wretchedness and misery need a comforter she is present. The faintest whisper of pain brings her as a pilgrim to its couch, and in the chamber of death she takes her place, assuaging the hopeless sufferer with the comforting assurance that there is a home beyond the grave free from the agony of pain. She suffers herself without a murmur or complaint, and the man that would in the slightest degree add to it and increase the anguish that it is her lot to bear is beneath the level of the brute. If she should happen to possess defects and faults, which every human being has in a greater or less degree, let him compare them with her virtues, and especially with his vices, and every impulse of his better being will prompt him to overlook them and make due allowance therefor.—Isidor Rayner.

Belgium's Postmen.

A Belgian who has money owing to him often hands the account to his postman, who passes it through the office, to be presented to the debtor in whatever locality the latter may reside, and if payment be made the creditor receives it from his postman on the following day, with but a trifling deduction for commission.

As to newspapers, almost all regular subscribers to a journal pay their money to a postman, and two or three days before the subscription expires that official presents the notice for the renewal of the subscription during a fresh term.

All this makes of the Belgian postman a kind of ambulating general agency and bank of deposit, and the man is obliged to have a desk slung in front of him and to carry a locked and chained portfolio under his arm for valuables, but he gets through his work satisfactorily, because his rounds are short.—Pearson's Weekly.

Why Do Seals Swallow Stones?

No nature student seems yet to have discovered for what reason seals swallow stones, though the fact is a well established one. Certainly the stones are not taken in for ballast, for the empty seals keep down as easily as the others. They are not swallowed for the purpose of grinding up food, for they are found in the stomachs of nursing pups. They are not taken in with the food because they are found in the stomachs of both young seals and in those that live in the open sea and feed on squid. Yet it is evident that these things are not swallowed haphazard, but are selected with considerable care from the articles strewn along the shore, and that a preference is exhibited for rounded objects. This is shown by the fact that, as a rule, only articles of one kind are found in any one seal's stomach.

The Night Writers.

Writers who habitually work at night, and all night, frequently get strange nervous fancies. Huxley said, "When I am working at night I not only hear burglars moving about, but I actually see them looking through the crack in the door at me!"

Wilkie Collins was a habitual night worker until he was frightened out of it by the appearance of another Wilkie Collins, who sat down at the table with him and tried to monopolize the desk. There was a struggle, and the inkstand was upset. When the real Wilkie Collins came to himself, sure enough, the ink was running over the writing table, proof enough of a struggle. After that Mr. Collins gave up night work.

On Business Bent.

"Can you make me a sheet iron mandolin?"

"I might, but it wouldn't have much tone. What do you want of a sheet-iron mandolin, anyhow?"

"I'm trying to serenade a girl, and they have a bulldog. I've busted several instruments on him. Next time I smash him I want to smash him good."—Kansas City Journal.

Oh, That's Different!

"I thought you told me that you would not contract any new debts without my knowledge," howled Mr. Gabb as he tore up a bunch of dunning letters.

"I haven't, my dear," replied Mrs. Gabb. "I merely expanded some of the old debts."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Cherry Wood.

Cherry is the wood most used as a backing for the metal plates from which illustrations are printed in magazines and periodicals. It is chosen above all others because it holds its shape, does not warp or twist, works smoothly and does not split.

Handicapped.

Dr. Curem—You will find your dyspepsia greatly alleviated, Mr. Peck, by cheerful and agreeable conversation at your meals. Mr. Peck—That's good advice, doc, but my income will not permit me to eat away from home.—Terre Haute Express.

Rigs In Scotland.

In Scotland the corn and grass fields are divided into spaces twenty to thirty yards wide by a furrow made by a plow. These are termed rigs.

Tropical Medicines.

In the order named quinine, calomel, castor oil, tincture of iron, opium and brandy are the medicines most used in the tropics.

WHEN YOUR KIDNEYS FAIL

Chestertown People Have Found That Ill Health Follows.

Do you ever feel that you simply can't go any further—that you must have rest from that lame and aching back—relief from the constant, dead-tired feeling—freedom from those stabbing, darting pains? Likely your kidneys are worn and tired and need help. The kidneys work night and day, removing uric acid from the blood and other waste created by expenditure of strength and energy. Naturally a life of unusual activity doubles the duties of the kidneys and in time the strain generally tells. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new strength to thousands of bad backs and quick relief to weakened kidney, so users say. Let them do the same for you. Convincing proof of merit in Chestertown testmony.

Mrs. Albert Rawleigh Cannon St., Chestertown, says: "One of my family suffered from kidney trouble. The kidneys secre ions contained sediment and the passages were too frequent. He had pains through his back and kidneys and at times was dizzy. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally procured from Toulson's Drug Store and they made him well."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Rawleigh recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
