'Huckster' Stabbed To Death In Brawl

A 30-year-old "huckster" was stabbed to death Saturday in a brawl in the 1500 block of Laurens st.

Taken to Provident Hospital suffering with knife wounds in the right chest, Marshall Bryant of the 2200 block Ruskin st., died within one hour.

In connection with the case police Sunday were holding James Watkins, 46, of the 1300 block Upton st. The accused man gave himself up at the Northwestern District Police station early Sunday.

Northwestern Patolmen Robert Johnson and James Colvin found Bryant lying unconscious near a Laurens st., tavern.

Witnesses told the officers that Bryant parked his horse and wagon near the curb and started into the tavern. On the way in he "bumped into" a then unidentified man and the two started arguing "for no reason at all."

Bryant started running and was pursued down the block by the accused man who stabbed him witnesses declared.

BAND INSTRUCTOR — Sylvanus H. Hart, director of the Maryland State College band which together with the choir will present a recital on May 17.

College Holds Spring Concert

Maryland State College will inaugurate its first annual formal concert combination of band and choir, May 17, at 8 p.m., in the Kiah auditorium.

Included in the program are "The Echo Song" by Lassus, and Christinsen's "How Fair the Church," choral selections. The band will offer three numbers, one of them "Gloria" from the Twelfth Mass of Mozart.

In combination with the choir, the band will present "Finale" from the "New World Symphony" by Dvorak and a special arrangement of Gade's, "Tango Jalousie."

The band is directed by Sylvanus Hart, former instructor at Howard University. Among the members are Ralston Taylor, clarinet, Don Jones, trumpet; Roland Nash, trombone and Frank Lopar, tuba.

The choir is under the direction of Clarice Michaels. Having toured Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the choir will make its final appearance for the academic year, at this concert.

9-Year-Old 1st Drowning Victim

A nine-year-old boy became the season's first drowning casualty during Sunday's blistering 84-degree heat.

Charles Taylor, 1814 E. Madison st., was fished from the waters at Fallsway and Granby st., shortly after 5 p.m., Mariner's Day, by the crew of the police boat Charles D. Gaither.

As police brought his lifeless body to the surface, a pale pink carnation — to commemorate Mother's Day — fell from the boy's lapel.

Police believe the boy, who couldn't swim, slipped into the water while playing on the pier. The Medical Examiner's office has issued a verdict of accidental death by drowning.

Was With Cousin

Young Taylor, a pupil at school No. 102, Bond and Jefferson sts., went to the waterfront dock in company with a cousin, Melvin Howard, 12, 1242 E. Madison st., and Fred Harris, 9, 1600 block Mulliken ct.

When they saw their playmate floundering in the water, the two other boys screamed at top of their lungs. An unidentified passer-by flagged down a nearby police car.

Body Found

When the radio policemen reached the scene, Taylor's body was still below the surface. Police officers contacted the police boat. Charles D. Gaither.

After a short search with grappling irons, crewmen of the police boat discovered the body.

Funeral services for Taylor will be held at 2 p.m., Wednesday, from the Wilson Funeral Home.

Survivors include the child's mother, Mrs. Hilda Taylor, three aunts, Mrs. Ella Roberts, Mrs. Louise Darby, Mrs. Frances Howard, and a host of other relatives.

MORRISTOWN, N.J. —(ANP) —A campaign for $350,000 for a new building will be opened next week by Neighborhood House, a settlement house serving an interracial area in this city, when a 150-year-old former gatehouse to an estate will be replaced by a new building.

Census Bureau Revises Records

A revised application form for use of persons seeking to establish proof of age or citizenship through personal census records is now available at the Census Bureau's district office in Baltimore, District Supervisor George R. Winski reported.

The revised form is designed to encourage applicants to use the census of 1880, 1900 and 1920, if possible when requesting searches of the voluminous census records.

Because of the comprehensive index, information can be provided if the applicant furnishes only his name, the name of the city or county and State in which he was living and the name of the head of the household in which he was residing.

From 1910-1950

Persons needing information from the censuses, of 1910, 1930, 1940 and 1950—if residing in a city at the time these censuses were taken—should furnish the house number, name of the street, city, county and State, and the name of the parent or head of the household with whom living.

If residing in a small town, they should give all available information as to cross-streets, road names, name of township in which residence was located and any other available pertinent data.

Rural residents are asked to furnish the rural route number and also the distance and direction of the residence from the nearest town.

Teenager Charged In BB Gun Case

A 16-year-old teenager, charged with assaulting and attempting to shoot two housewives with a BB gun, was given a suspended one-year sentence and placed on probation for 2 years by Magistrate E. Everett Lane at Northwestern Police Court Sunday.

Arrested on a complaint filed by Mrs. Eunice Smith and Mrs. Bertha Crowner of the 700 block Bruse st., Paul A. Williams Jr. of the 700 block Dolphin st. pleaded not guilty to charges.

The two women told police they first observed the youngster shooting dogs, and then proceeded to break pop bottles on a passing truck.

When they spoke to Williams about "his conduct" they said, he turned the BB gun around and chased them into the house.

From A To Z with Sam Lacy

Ere long, unless there's guilt here of a gross miscalculation, the cry of "Break up the Bears" will be heard in the CIAA each year along about this time ... And, everything considered, the rest of the track coaches around the conference will be yelping with justification ... For, witnessing the latest CIAA cinder championships, it is inevitable that one should come up with the query: can there be no end to the talent at Morgan State college? ... The annual meet here last weekend offered the usual evidence that the Golden Bears of Eddie Hurt stand head and shoulders, as a team, above the rest of the membership ...

SAM LACY

For six years now, the CIAA has been divided into two classifications in track ... Morgan College ... then the others ... Take as an example the case of the Bears' mile-relay team ... It is so crammed with able young men that Hurt can close his eyes and tap any four of, say, 10 guys on the shoulder and say, "You're on today" ... Take a look at this: The Bears, up to Saturday, had competed in four different meets, the Seton Hall Relays, the Penn Relays, the Evening Star games and a quadrangular affair at Howard University, Washington ... And in each one, Hurt sent a different quarter to the post ... Saturday, he won the conference crown with still another team that had never run together as a unit ... Five meets, five different foursomes ... And Saturday's easy win was achieved in the sparkling, if not record-breaking, time of 3:15.4 yet! ... This latest, Hurt won with Herman Wade, Otis Johnson, Herb Washington and Larry Griffin ... In previous relay tests, Josh Culbreath, Jim Rogers, Howard Morgan, Bernie Boasmond, Eddie Waters, Kenny Kave and Charley Mills had seen action ... and, except in the Penn Relays, when Morgan pulled lame, they were winners.

New that's not all ... Of this group, Washington, Griffin, Waters, and Kave are freshmen ... The CIAA will have a long look at them ... and wait, don't go yet ... To this column's way of thinking, one of the most noteworthy things about Saturday's finals was not that captain Art Bragg won the 100-yard dash in the record-equaling time of 9.5 seconds, but that the national sprint champion was chased across the finish line ... rat-tat-tat ... by Waters and Kave, with Griffin a close-up fourth ... So tight was the fit at the finish that timers credited all four men with being under 9.8 seconds, giving Waters and Kave such placing as to make it impossible to split away from the same 9.5 they gave Bragg ... Griffin, they agreed, after overcoming a stumbling start, must have shaded 9.7 seconds in his blazing drive to the wire.

One guy who remains unawed by this potential Morgan powerhouse, is Bert Piggott, A. and T. College track mentor ... "We're going to close that gap on them, don't worry about that," declares the former pro football star ... "Right now, we're riddled with injuries ... Henry Jones and Harold Horne, both of whom can hit 9.8 with consistency, are on the hospital list ... Mel Bailey, another of my mainstays, is sidelined by a pulled back muscle ... Once they come around, and once we get our new track completed, Morgan'll hear from us ... They don't scare us with that power because we don't scare easily in Greensboro ... Another thing, as soon as these other kids begin taking over their loads, I'm going to get a lot of mileage out of Kry Barkley ... He was the 220-yard Ohio State champion in 1951, but he's been handicapped because I've had to work him overtime in an effort to take up the slack of my ailing boys ... All of them will be around for the next couple of years and they'll be heard from."

One of the strangest pictures shown at a CIAA meet, perhaps, is that made by Sal Mali, of Virginia State college ... The diminutive Trojan mentor was probably one of the outstanding high school track coaches in the country when he was at Cardozo High (Washington) before moving to Petersburg, Va. ... He isn't the track tutor at State, doesn't aspire to be ... still newspapermen find it difficult to understand when they see him in the role of spectator in a sport in which he dominated the likes of Billy Mathis, La Salle's Joe Walker, et al ... The Trojans are no threat in track, despite the fact fellas are seriously looking for them to spring some thing because of Mali's connection there ... Reason is that Virginia State took over the task of revitalizing her entire athletic program last Mali was brought in as a replacement to Harry R. (Big Jeff) Jefferson on the latter's departure for Hampton Institute ... Idea was to build up the self-sustaining sports first, like football and basketball ... that completed, they're working now on baseball, having fielded a team for the first time in eight years, this spring ... track is next in line.

Although it's being kept quiet for some reason or other, the CIAA has voted to overhaul its constitution ... a mail vote on the question passed by a 12-3 margin ... Indications are, providing a meddlesome newspaper columnist doesn't try to push them, that the conference bigwigs are paving the way for admittance of another school to the body ... the mail balloting was on the question of striking out the words in the constitution which limited membership to 16 schools ... Chance is (how does one write in a whisper?) that Maryland State college or Fayetteville may get in ... best chance for either or both, however, rests in the manner in which the matter is brought up ... a mail vote will best 'em, on the-floor discussion might shame the opposition ... all this is A to Z's guess, remember ... It isn't any guess, though, that somebody's going to have to replace Delaware State within the next year or two ... The State can't be expected to continue to spend money in that school when Delaware has become a full-fledged member of the integrated ... Right now, there are fewer than 125 students at the school and, with the University of Delaware accepting colored enrollment in a steady flow, it can't possibly improve matters at Dover ... oh well.

Incidentally, the question pops up ... How come University of Maryland, Loyola, Johns Hopkins, Naval Academy and other Maryland colleges don't hook up with Morgan State college, Maryland State and, even, Bowie State Teachers in a statewide track and field meet? ... Integration's on the way, and fast, so what's the use continuing the old smug business of you-for-you and me-for-me?

When Bill Bruton stole second in Monday night's 9-4 Milwaukee Brave win over the Brooklyn Dodgers, it marked the first time this season an enemy runner had succeeded in swiping a base on Roy Campanella ... and when the New York Giants put over those two runs to deal Joe Black his first defeat of the year the other day in the Polo Grounds, it was as many runs as the Giants scored against Joe all last season ... The five runs batted in by Campanella on the wings of his three Saturday home runs, zoomed the Brooklyn receiver away out ahead of the sluggers in both leagues in rbi's ... he had 33 as of Sunday morning ... nine homers.

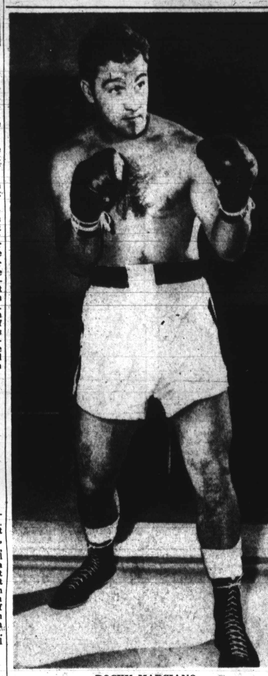
On this matter of baseball, A. to Z can't resist the temptation to make an observation on the recent New York Yankee-Clint Courtney jamboree ... an observation may not endear me to the best of Yankee fans who read this dribble ... Nevertheless, it is difficult to avoid the feeling that, in another uniform Billy Martin and Gil McDougald would be entirely different persons in the eyes of the baseball world ... Martin would be just a young popoff, always itching for a fight he's seldom able to handle once it's begun ... McDougald, without "Yankee" written across his chest, would be a skinny squirt who couldn't take it after discovering his synthetic "rookie of the year" recognition in 1951 (when it actually belonged to another player), was tarnished by mediocre play ever since ... But Martin and McDougald are not in another uniform ... they're Yankees, and Yankees can do no wrong ... Because the aggressive Courtney doesn't lay over and play dead like so many others do when they're opposing the New York crowd, he's a bum, despicable and unsportsmanly ... And, in the eyes of the New York (World Telegram and Sun) writer, long a Yankee yes-man, Clint is "a mediocre catcher, a poor target for his pitchers, an ordinary hitter, and dumb!"

Courtney's a Brownie, so he's a rowdy ... were he a Yankee, he'd be a hero ... Phil Rizzuto, whom Courtney roughed up in the incident which supposedly precipitated the free-for-all, is held in highest esteem by this department ... a great ball player and a truly fine gentleman in every sense of the word ... But Phil wasn't outraged by the Courtney cuffing ... he's a grown-up and he took it as part of the game.

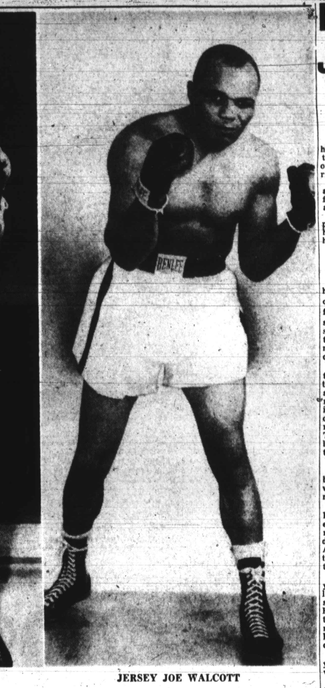
In the 1951 World Series, Eddie Stanky kicked the ball into left field as Rizzuto held it waiting to apply the tag ... But the Yanks didn't "gang" Stanky ... Why? ... There was much more at stake at the time ... Is it more aggravating to the Yankees now because there's a tendency to suspect their number's up? ... Are they, eddy now because, Yogi Berra hitting .188 and Allie Reynolds and Co., floundering in their efforts to overpower the opposition, the ride isn't so smooth? ... Just asking, that's all.

The boss phones to suggest that the column remind the Newark Eagles' ex-owner of her repeated prophesy that Larry Doby would play rings around Jackie Robinson during their career in the major leagues ... And A to Z is calling to remind those who're interested that Morgan coach Talmadge (Marse) Hill celebrates a birthday come next Tuesday (the 19th).

Title Fight Rivals Await The Gong



ROCKY MARCIANO



JERSEY JOE WALCOTT

BY ANY OTHER NAME

Challenger Another Joe To Father Time--He Says

CHICAGO—Here is finally the real explanation of Jersey Joe Walcott's right age, a subject that has been discussed more by fight fans than the rugged ex-champion's great ring ability.

Jersey Joe says, "I'm 39 years old. You can believe me or not but it's true."

Most of the rest of his vast entourage, including manager Felix Bocchicchio, say, "Ask Joe. He should know his own age."

So, we are right back where we started.

But here comes a fellow named Joe Cream. He's 44 years old. Cream, Cream ... Sounds familiar ... oh, yeah. That's Walcott's real name, Arnold Cream ... But who's this guy Joe Cream? "That's my older brother," Walcott explains. "What an athlete he was. A great boxer in his own right, but he concentrated on football, basketball and baseball."

Well, now we are confused. Joe. There's two Joe s in your family.

"Well, you can see by that how they keep writing about me being older than John L. Sullivan and all that," Walcott explains. "Everybody knows my name was Cream, Arnold Cream. So, they hear about Joe Cream, they take it for granted it was me."

Well, Anyway

Even with this explanation which places Walcott in the 39-year-old bracket, Jersey Joe is still a phenomenon as fighters go. At 37, he was the oldest man ever to win the title and at 38 was the oldest ever to defend it successfully. At 39 he will be the oldest man ever to try to regain it and could break his own record and become the oldest champ again as well as the first man ever to regain the coveted heavyweight crown.

There are many theories on why he has been able to keep going at his comparatively elderly age for athletes. The most logical one is the fact that he has retired twice for a couple years at a time, thus conserving a lot of his energy that would have been burned up if he had been fighting regularly during those periods. The other logical one is his type of living. With six kids, he had to keep working where ever he could find it, and was never one to night club or get out of shape.

Anyway, Walcott is just another Joe in his own family where even his brother is named Joe.

Rocky Confident, Jersey Joe On Edge

Heavyweight Crown At Stake In Chicago Friday Night

CHICAGO — The two principals for Friday night's world heavyweight championship bout at Chicago Stadium finished their training drills early this week and now await the bell for one of the most difficult-to-predict battles in the annals of the ring.

Champion Rocky Marciano closed out his conditioning chores at Holland, Mich., in high spirits and confident that he can forestall the return bid of the man he knocked out in 13 rounds at Philadelphia eight months ago.

Challenger Jersey Joe Walcott, on the other hand, completed preparations for the match with the same determination he has expressed all along: that he will become the first man in history to regain the crown.

Champ Sure

"I have no doubt that I can handle Walcott," Marciano declared on the eve of embarking from his Northern Michigan resort spot for Chicago. "Joe has said a lot of things about my hitting him and all that, but it was my right hand that knocked him out. I still have that."

The final days of Marciano's training drills found the Brockton, Mass., Italian pressing his sparmates about the ring with relentless pursuit. His actions indicated a plan to keep Walcott on the defensive and thus reduce his boxing effectiveness. The ex-champ is definitely a Letter boxer than the current titleholder.

Doesn't Let You Breathe

Billy Noble, lanky former Nebraska University football star who was one of Rocky's partners, explained:

"He doesn't let you breathe. He's on top of you all the time, and even on his bad days, he makes you work and move. He doesn't let you relax a moment. A fighter needs a breather in a tough fight. He doesn't give you the chance.

"Don't let his short arms fool you. He gets in there close, lays his head on your chest and sinks his fists into your middle. He belts those ribs pretty good, too. Mine are still sore. Walcott must be talking of my ribs when he says there's a bad rib in the camp."

Willie Wilson, undefeated 19-year old Providence, R.I., heavyweight, backed Noble's opinion.

"You try to keep him away," said Wilson, "and he belts you with a long one. You move in close to hold so that you can rest a moment, and he rips them into your belly. There just ain't any resting time with Rocky."

Challenger Ready

Typical of the attitude which Jersey Joe will carry into the ring Friday night is this answer to a reporter's query:

"What are you going to do if you get licked?"

Said Joe, "I never considered the fact that I'm going to lose. I shouldn't have lost the last fight and I'm sure I'm not going to lose this time."

From Left Field

If confidence means anything Walcott is home safe now. Before the last fight, back in Atlantic City, Walcott said, "If I lose to this guy, I want them to take my name out of the record book. I don't deserve to be a champion. He can't box, he just throws punches from deep left field."

Well, they had the fight and Rocky Marciano did throw one from deep left field that caught Walcott on the button and made him the champion of the World.

Walcott however has not changed his opinion about Rocky and as a fighter.

Blames Buff

Says he: "I still insist if I hadn't been butted in the fifth round by Rocky I would have won easily. Rocky caught me with a punch in the thirteenth round which I did not see coming.

"The butt over my left eye opened a gash that needed eight stitches to close, you know that wasn't any little scratch. My trainer Dan Florio did a marvelous job in the corner to patch the cut enough to allow me to continue fighting. The blood trickled into my eye throughout the fight, but in the thirteenth round it became so bad, I couldn't see.

"I was perfectly relaxed when Rocky threw his 'Sunday' punch and that spelled the end.

How To Score A Fight In Illinois

CHICAGO — Printed herewith are suggestions for TV viewers to be followed in scoring the heavyweight title fight here, Friday night.

Every point should be carefully observed and noted as the roupd progresses, the winner of the round to be determined by the contestant receiving the largest number of points scored in that round. At the end of the contest he who has to his credit the greatest number of points is the winner of the bout.

Each round is to be accounted for on the score card in figures. The ten point system will be used. For a draw or even round five points for each; for an advantage use the ratio as 6 to 4, 7 to 3, 8 to 2, etc, as the case may be. For example: For a slight edge winner receives 6 points, loser 4; for a knockdown or a decisive advantage, the winner receives 7 points, and the loser 3.

Forceful Hitting

The decision of the referee and judges must be based on the following points:

1. A clean forceful hit, landed on any vulnerable front part of the body above the belt should be credited in proportion to its damaging effects.

2. Aggressiveness is next in importance and point should be awarded to the contestant who sustains the action of a round by the greatest number of skillful attacks.

Next in importance is sportsmanship. A contestant should be given credit for sportsmanlike action in the ring, close adherence to the spirit as well as to the letter of the rules and for refraining from taking technical advantage of situations unfair to his opponent.

Sportsmanship

Unsportsmanlike conduct or action on the part of a contestant should likewise be taken into consideration and points deducted in accordance therewith.

Defensive work is relatively important and points should be given for cleverly avoiding or blocking a blow.

Points should be awarded where ring generalship is conspicuous. This comprises such points as the ability to grasp quickly and take advantage of every opportunity offered; the capacity to cope with all kinds of situations which may arise; to foresee and neutralize and opponents' method of attack; to foresee and neutralize an opponent's style of boxing at which he is not particularly skillful.

It is advisable to deduct points when a contestant persistently delays the action by clinching, holding and lack of aggressiveness.

The referee may tell the judge that in his opinion, a foul has been committed and he is taking the round away from a fighter. However, the judges will then use their own discretion and will not take the referee's opinion as obligatory.

Cleveland Options Santiago to Dallas

CLEVELAND — General manager Hank Greenberg announced here Monday that the Cleveland Indians have optioned pitcher Jose Santiago to the Tribe's Dallas farm club in the Texas League.

The 24-year-old Puerto Rican righthander was a holdout until a little over a week ago. At Dallas last year, Santiago shared hurling honors with Dave Hoskins, finishing the season with a 14-7 record.

Braddock Says:

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. — Ex-Heavyweight Champion Jimmy Braddock picks Rocky Marciano to retain his title on Friday night.

Here visiting Jersey Joe Walcott's training camp, Braddock said:

"I'm impressed with 40-year-old Walcott's condition. He's in good shape.

"He threw his best punch last time and didn't win. So you can't pick him now."

Joe Louis Says:

NEW YORK—After analyzing the Rocky Marciano-Jersey Joe Walcott title bout, Friday night in Chicago, ex-Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis said:

"I haven't talked to Joe (Walcott) this trip but, I have an idea of the kind of fight he's going to make.

"He has to figure on ending it early. His chances will get slimmer as the fight goes on."

THE LAST TIME — It was this way when Jersey Joe Walcott, pictured above being counted out, met Rocky Marciano last September at Philadelphia. Leading on points throughout the battle Walcott, then the champion, was knocked out in the 13th round. Jersey Joe seeks to regain the crown at Chicago Friday night.
