Shiloh's Embarrassment

support of his child born out of wedlock to a choir singer in his church.

His attorneys announce an appeal.

But isn't enough evidence in?

No matter how an appeal turns out the church is the loser.

Even those who support the pastor in this case do so because they think this is the way to save the character and reputation of the church in the community.

But is this the way to save the church?

We think not.

As of now the church is embarrassed and its embarrassment affects the community.

Some church members in a distant city raised the question whether they wanted the Rev. Mr. Harrison to appear as an anniversary speaker in their church.

Even had the court given Pastor Harrison a clean bill, there is still to be explained the parentage of a second child, L'Rae (Earl spelled backwards).

L'Rae's school certificate cites Earl L. Harrison as his father.

you. I needed the loot."

The officers testified that Richardson told them he needed the money for medical treatment for a son suffering from a head injury, and that he pleaded with them to let him escape.

Richardson's Denial

On the witness stand, Richardson denied making any such statements. He rephrased the "I think I'm going to jail" line to "Do you think I'm crazy?" as being the correct one.

He said further that he entered the Stokes home after a man he had observed acting suspiciously on the front porch of the house as he was driving by on his way to the cleaners.

Richardson said he found the crowbar inside the home and picked it up only a few minutes before the other officers arrived.

Before the incident, Richardson was described as "an excellent officer" by his superiors, and was to have been a candidate for commendation at the next meeting of the police commendation board as the result of his alertness and bravery in apprehending an armed robber several months ago.

Character Witnesses

A dozen character witnesses, all testifying to Richardson's reputation for truth and veracity, were called by his defense attorney, Alan H. Murrell.

Mr. Murrell rapped police handling of the case, in which no notes were made of Richardson's statements to the arresting officers until several hours later; the defendant was not searched for several hours, and no written statement was taken from him, other than his routine report to his commanding officer.

within one hour, to quell the riot which developed over the whereabouts of a fifth of liquor.

According to one policeman, there was so much confusion in that house that it was all but impossible to find out just who started the fight. The group told Magistrate E. Everett Lane this story:

Met At Groom's Home

Everyone first met at the home of the groom, John Bagby in the 1900 block Park ave, for a wedding and party. At the conclusion of the wedding someone mentioned driving out to Randallstown for a party because the Bagby home was too small.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Mitchell suggested instead that everyone use their club cellar.

The bride and groom declined the offer and departed on their honeymoon.

Bought One Fifth For Gang

At the Mitchell home, they bought a case of beer and a fifth of liquor. The fight developed shortly after James Bagby, they said, became enraged and started throwing beer bottles when told that the whiskey was all gone.

No one person thereafter was able to describe clearly who struck who because the lights were turned out.

Mr. Mitchell told the court that he was struck in the face by Richard James, and had to have 12 stitches taken. He said when he came to his senses the first time, he had been shoved under the living room sofa on the first floor. Simpson and Smith he stated were trying to "quiet the gang down."

Taken To Two Hospitals

As a result of the bout a part of the group was taken to Lutheran Hospital for treatment, the rest to University Hospital.

William Simpson received 21 stitches, Hazel Benjamin six; Charles McDonald eight, and Richard James 13. The rest suffered less serious injuries.

James Bagby told police that he hit Mitchell "because he was the nearest one after some one hit me." Hazel Benjamin said that she was struck with a table lamp.

One man said that "I was hit and turned around in that dark cellar so fast and often I don't know what I threw." In an attempt to break out of the cellar to call the police, Mrs. Mitchell said she was slapped twice and cut once with a beer bottle

The Mitchells estimated the damages to their home at $500. Police said the apartment looked like a slaughter house.

Magistrate Lane told the group that he had never had a group before him that had ever done so much damage before. It's a pity that I can't charge you more he declared.

Richard James was fined $100 and costs, Bagby, and McDonald $25 each. The others were dismissed.

No charges were filed against the Mitchells who the court described as "most gracious hosts."

High Court Refuses To Hear Scarlett Case

By NNPA

WASHINGTON

The United States Supreme Court last Monday turned down the plea of Austin Scarlett of Baltimore, also known as "Marcus Garvey," for a review of his conviction on a numbers conspiracy charge.

Scarlett was convicted by a jury in the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City of an unlawful conspiracy with Harry Gross and certain other unknown persons to violate Maryland's lottery laws. The conspiracy allegedly took place between January 1, 1947, and August 20, 1951.

with the verse, "Upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

"My wife," he stated, "has asked me lime and again, why don't you see those people that are writing all that stuff about you. I told her that's all right, God will take care of everything.

"Good Book" Quoted

"Everything I have said in this church has been out of the Good Book," he continued, "and if there is a news reporter that does not believe it, he is welcome to see for himself."

As the slim young minister leaped upon a nearby table cries of "Help yourself, Rev. Jones," rose from members of the congregation.

Since formal charges were filed ago the 62-year-old minister by Miss Jones, she has failed to appear at the church services. She lives within one block.

Flock Pays Off Pastor Accused Of 'Misconduct'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (ANP) —At a meeting in Christ Temple Apostolic church last week the Rev. Morris Golder tendered his resignation which was accepted by the deacon board.

The church gave him and his wife $1,000 each and the way was left open for his return.

The young preacher resigned from the church which paid him more than $10,000 a year because of "grave misconduct."

Wild rumors are flying that this is a frameup, but the deacon board has refused to make public the facts which they say justify accepting his resignation.

The Rev. Mr. Golder flatly denied allegations of infidelity and alleged indecretions. He stated that he would not attempt to pastor a church at present but that he would remain in the city.

says Roy Campanella all-star catcher and slugger — BROOKLYN DODGERS
"I've read that scientists at a leading university have proved chewing Beech-Nut Gum eases tension. Anyone who plays baseball knows how true that is. Practically all the fellows I know carry a pack with them and chew through nine innings—and right through those extra-inning games! Nigerian Legislator Would Use Bees Rather Than Bombs

MONROVIA, Liberia—A Nigerian legislator thinks that the stings of bees might prove more practical than bombs in waging warfare and he thinks his government should do some research into the matter.

While his fellow members of the House laughed until tears rolled from their eyes, the pro-bee legislator argued recently that African armies of old used to send out bees front line to negotiate an offensive for them.

The legislator made his suggestion during a debate on military defense. He further convulsed his fellow members with talk of the dissolution of Nigeria's "native soldiers into the ether of invisiblity." The government, however, didn't announce whether or not it would take up his bee suggestion.

Students Strike At Kentucky State

450 Out Of 463 Take Part In Class Walkout

By ALICE A. DUNNIGAN

FRANKFORT, Ky. (ANP)—The student body at Kentucky State college staged a half-day "walkout" last week, protesting the dismissal of a fellow student for disciplinary reasons.

Elvin Eady, 22, freshman of Springfield, Mass., was expelled by President Rufus B. Atwood upon recommendation of two faculty members of the discipline committee without considering the vote of the one student member of the committee.

Approximately 450 students, out of a total enrollment of 463, participated in the strike, refusing to attend all classes Monday between 8 a.m. and 12 noon.

The incident started, according to President Atwood, when a pay-station telephone was taken from the wall and robbed at McCullin hall, the junior and senior boys' dormitory, several weeks ago necessitating an investigation by state police.

Later a pay-station phone was torn from the wall and change taken at Atwood hall, the freshmen and sophomore boys' dormitory, and state police were again called in.

Two Confess

Next, three coin - operated washing machines were robbed. Then Robert L. Reed, a freshman from Horse Cave, Ky., reported a portable typewriter being taken from his room.

After a thorough investigation two detectives succeeded in obtaining a signed admission from Edgar Powell, 18, Baltimore, and James R. Pritchett, 19 of Greenville both freshmen. The boys were released on $1,000 bonds awaiting hearings before Franklin County Judge John D. Darnell.

Eady came into the picture when Powell claimed that he split 60 cents taken from the washing machine with him.

Denying that he had anything to do with the robbery, Eady said he dropped a dime into the washing machine for use. When it failed to operate, he struck the machine several times in hope of retrieving his dime and 60 cents dropped to the floor. He said he picked up the change and divided it with Powell.

Elite Rally To Defense Of Unlicensed Dentist

NEW ORLEANS, La. (ANP)—The state was forced last week to abandon its case against Leo A. Gautier, charged with "willfully and unlawfully practising dentistry without a license."

Three groups took an interest in this case: the State Board of Dentistry, a white group; the New Orleans Dental Society and the Pelican Dental Association.

This was the first time in the history of the criminal courts here that white members of a medical association, and white society women of repute gave testimony on behalf of an accused colored person.

Highly Rated

Among them was Mrs. Charles H. Turley, widow of Dr. Turley, for whom the accused had worked first as a laboratory technician and later as a practicing dentist until 1931. Mrs. William H. Byrnes, socialite widow of a civil district judge said she knew the accused for more than 30 years, and he had done dental work for her late husband, her mother and herself.

Mrs. Byrnes test ified that while at the office one day, she spoke to the head of the dental office as to why Gautier's name did not appear on the door. The reply came back Dr. William O. Keagy: "Dr. Gautier is so good, he doesn't need it."

The accused commenced his dental career in 1916. For the next 30 years he continued his dental work in New Orleans. He applied to the dental board in 1931, along with several white, unlicensed practitioners and was denied a license. The whites were given theirs. For the next 21 years he operated within the knowledge of the dental board.

On the stand, Gautier said he enlisted in the Navy for World War I, and that although he had the rating of a messman, at Norfolk he was assigned to the dispensary to assist the dental officer in charge in extracting teeth. While there, Gautier said, he extracted as many as 200 to 300 teeth per day.
