BEING TORN DOWN — The first temporary war housing project, the Benjamin Banneker Homes in Fairfield, Md. is now being torn down, having outlived its purpose. The project was built in 1943 and operated by the Baltimore Housing Authority.

Names Highway BTW Memorial

BOOKER WASHINGTON BIRTHPLACE, Va.—The Virginia State Highway Commission last week named highway 122 the "Booker T. Washington Memorial Highway."

It is believed to be the nation's first public highway named to honor a colored American.

Highway 122 extends across the State from the Blue Ridge mountains to the scenic Skyline Parkway.

A three-day dedicatory program has been set for July 4-6, with the feature event on Sunday, July 5, at Washington's birth cabin on the Memorial reservation.

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Miss Gloria Brawley, daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. W. Brawley, 9 Archdale st., will spend her vacation in Germany visiting her brother, Dr. Wilbur Brawley, who is stationed overseas.

Wife Divorcing Physician's Son

Charging that Hugh Price Hughes Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Hughes, 825 N. Fremont ave., has abandoned her and their 4-year-old daughter, Mrs. Janet Wood Hughes filed suit for divorce, this week.

The petition was filed by W. A. C. Hughes, attorney, cousin of the defendant.

Married August 1, 1948, Mrs. Hughes said her husband left her more than 18 months ago. She is seeking custody of the child.

Husband Wins Freedom

Ernest Blank of 1417 McCulloh st., who testified that Mrs. Vivian Blank of 1732 Moreland ave. "just tired of living with him and left," won a divorce.

He added that the desertion may have resulted from his being unable to give her the things she wanted. They were married in 1944 and separated in 1951.

Tutman Divorced

Money was the root of the divorce which Mrs. Thesa Tutman,

Mrs. Tutman, who said they were married in 1943, said that the marriage, which ended in 1948, was full of arguments over money matters.

The divorce was granted on voluntary separation.

Two sons were given into her custody, and he is required to pay her $15 per week for the children's support.

N.C. Mutual President Entertained In Baltimore

BALTIMORE — W. J. Kennedy Jr., of Durham, president of the N. C. Mutual Life Insurance Co., who is on a tour of the firm's 23 branches in 9 states and D. C., was honored at a luncheon Friday at Club Tijuana.

Sponsored by the Northwest and East Baltimore branches of the company, the event was attended by 80 agents and officials and local citizens.

The visit here was Mr. Kennedy's first trip to the city since he succeeded the late Dr. C. C. Spaulding as president in August 1952.

Special Drive

In honor of Mr. Kennedy's visit, agents conducted a special drive resulting in new business totaling $246 industrial and $78,000 ordinary insurance.

Mr. Kennedy said he was making his tour of the company's branches because he wanted to know personally all of his co-workers. He said the trip to Baltimore was particularly enjoyable because the Monumental City is an inspiration to his company and the nation.

He pointed to the growth of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers, the cordial relationship between his firm and other insurance companies in Baltimore, the progress the city realtists are making and the improvement in housing and schools as good signs.

"Pool Resources"

The N.C. Mutual president urged his co-workers and local citizens to pool their resources—money, ability, plans—as a step towards having full participation in American life, and to prepare for integration which is just over the hill.

He was introduced by Dan B. Martin of Durham, associate agency director John Berry, manager of the East Baltimore district presided.

Other speakers were George C. Boggs and Mrs. Malinda Gladney, who presented the agents' reports for the Northwest and East Baltimore districts.

The following made brief remarks: Russell Waller, Mutual Benefit Society; W. Emerson Brown, Southern Life Insurance Co., Frank Walker, manager of N. C. Mutual's West Baltimore district and Mrs. B. M. Phillips, assistant to the AFRO president.

Other guests introduced included: Mrs. W. Emmett Coleman, widow of the former head of the Northwest branch; Joseph Bush, Southern Life; Archie Jones and John Gennell, Supreme Liberty; C. W. Mackay, editor of the AFRO; Abner Lee, Richmond regional supervisor of N. C. Mutual; Ernest Perkins, lawyer; Daniel Spaulding, realtist, Dr. Ivan Gilkes and Dr. Herbert Moseley, medical examiners for the firm.

N.C. MUTUAL HEAD IN BALTIMORE—W. J. Kennedy Jr., president of N.C. Mutual Life Insurance Co., Durham, was honored at luncheon Friday by Northwest and East Baltimore branches of firm. Left to right, Frank Walker, manager NW Baltimore; Mr. Kennedy, John Berry, manager, East Baltimore; Mrs. Malinda Gladney, agent; Archie Jones, Supreme Liberty; Joseph Bush, Southern Life, and Mrs. W. Emmett Coleman, widow of a former North Baltimore District manager. Mr. Kennedy's visit to the Monumental City was in connection with a tour of all of the firm's 23 branches in nine states and Washington.

Man Fined For Striking Cops

Herbert Berry of the 800 block McDonough st., a 35-year-old laborer who swung at two police officers when they advised him to get off a street corner, was fined $100 and costs at Northeastern Monday.

Berry, a husky, 200-pound man who admitted he had been drinking before his arrest, was charged with striking Officers Ernest Gardner and Walter Wilowski.

Patrolman Witowski told Magistrate Samuel Gaboff that Berry had been warned twice before not to loiter on the corner of Caroline and Madison sts., but complained that she heard a shot after Sturdevant and his wife argued over whether or not the dinner was cooked.

Sturdevant clearly recalled his activities prior to entering the house but was unable to describe the events leading up to the shooting.

He remembered drinking two half-pints of gin and one half-pint of whiskey after work. But he failed to recall when or how he reached home.

Not Recalls Shooting

When asked directly, by the judge "Did you shoot your wife?" Sturdevant just looked at his attorney.

Daniel McCrea, 400 block E. 20th st., believed to be the last person who saw Sturdevant before he went home, confirmed the testimony of state's witnesses that he was in a drunken condition prior to the shooting.

Man Cries As Judge Gives 10-Year Sentence

A 50-year-old man, who after 25 years of marriage, fatally shot his wife, cried in criminal court, Monday, as Judge Joseph R. Byrnes sentenced him to 10 years in the penitentiary for second degree murder.

Pleading guilty to the crime, Edgar Sturdevant, of the 500 block E. 22nd st., tearfully told the judge, "I loved my wife. I wouldn't have shot her for nothing.

"We were doing fine, buying furniture and all that. I don't know why I did it," he said, explaining that he had been drinking heavily before the incident.

The shooting occurred, May 9, in the kitchen at the Sturdevant's home. Mrs. Hattie Sturdevant, 42, was pronounced dead at St. Joseph's hospital.

.32 Caliber Gun

Autopsy reports showed that a bullet from a .32 caliber gun entered the woman's left nostril, penetrating the right side of her brain.

Police arrested Sturdevant at the corner of Lafayette and Caroline sts., an hour later, after being notified that a "drunk" was standing on the corner "waving a pistol in the air."

Mrs. Gladys Tyson, sister-in-law of the slain matron, who lives on the second floor of the house, testified that she heard a shot after Sturdevant and his wife argued over whether or not the dinner was cooked.

Sturdevant clearly recalled his activities prior to entering the house but was unable to describe the events leading up to the shooting.

He remembered drinking two half-pints of gin and one half-pint of whiskey after work. But he failed to recall when or how he reached home.

UNDER BOSTON HARBOR:

Buried 380 Feet

BOSTON, Mass. (ANP)—Sherman Dodd, 22, considered himself fairly lucky last week to have been trapped in a tunnel cave-in 380 feet under Boston Harbor and then to have been rescued after a desperate five-hour operation.

A number of colored sandhogs participated in the rescue operation which freed Dodd and another worker.

One of the first men to reach Dodd was his half-brother, John Ward, 27, of Baltimore, who lives with Dodd here in Boston temporarily. Dodd related the following account of the rescue:

"I prayed to the Lord. I prayed to Him to give me strength and He did. I could move, but I could not free myself.

"We were working under the Boston Harbor breaking ground for the tunnel. We were just getting ready to set a steel brace so we could expect a cave-in if we did not.

"We were working in a four-by-four area on our hands and knees when the cave-in occurred.

"I was not knocked unconscious. My face was buried, but I could still breathe. I prayed to the Lord to get me out of there. The Lord answered. When I heard voices. I could hear them working and offering words of encouragement.

"After a while it kept getting lighter and rescurers were right beside us. They got my face cleared and gave me a glass of water and a cigarette."

Hospital authorities later asserted that Dodd was not believed to be seriously injured but X-rays were taken.

OFFICIALS of the Marinucci Brothers Construction Company which has the tunneling contract commented that the cave-in was the most serious of about 10 cave-ins which have occurred since the work began back in 1951.

Change Attitudes; End Segregation

ST. LOUIS (ANP) — Segregation in public schools here can be ended only by a change in attitudes of the people, a school official told a human relations workshop.

Addressing the workshop at Washington university, Philip J. Hickey, superintendent of instruction, said this change in attitudes would make it possible to pass state legislation to end segregation.

IN NATION'S CAPITAL:

Racial Disunity Keeps Judgeship From Wilson

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WASHINGTON (NNPA)— One of the snags in the way of qualified colored persons getting top Government posts is some colored persons, who, like the proverbial crab, pull the guy down who has been tagged for an upper berth.

That's just what has happened in the District of Columbia. Ex-Judge James A. Cobb and other politicos were working to get a third colored judge on the District of Columbia Municipal Court. They had commitments from top-level people, but had not figured on some brethren in the legal profession.

Like in most states, there are two Republican factions here—the Old Guard Republicans, who supported Sen. Robert A. Taft for the Republican nomination and the Eisenhower or liberal wing.

After the election an agreement was reached whereby the leaders of the two factions would share in patronage.

J. F. Wilson Suggested

L. Corrin Strong, Eisenhower group leader, received the ambassadorship he requested and J. C. McGarraghy of the Republican State Central Committee asked for a Federal District judgeship and that was satisfactory.

These two agreed that the one who named the District Commissioner would name only one of three persons who were to be appointed judges of the District Municipal Court; the other to McGarraghy named Miss Mildred Reeves, white, and J. Franklin Wilson, 66, a member of the Washington Bar Association. William P. Rogers, deputy attorney general in the Justice Department, was notified that Wilson had not been endorsed by the Washington Bar Association. The endorsement was then sent in the form of a letter to the Justice Department.

Nevertheless the Justice Department used the opposition of a small group of lawyers to Wilson as an excuse for not appointing him and the names of three white persons, Miss Reeves, Leonard P. Walsh and Edward A. Beard, were sent to the Senate by President Eisenhower last Thursday for confirmation.

Now a new fight is brewing. The Eisenhower group is backing Robert W. Weston, lawyer, who has a reputation as a liberal, and McGarraghy is backing John H. Connaughton, another lawyer, who has actively favored racial segregation in the District, to succeed Kenneth W. Spencer as a member of the Public Utilities Commission.

Ready To Fight Jim-Crow Theatres Next, Mrs. Terrell Says In Chicago

CHICAGO (ANP)—Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, almost 90 years old and still active, the lady who broke the back of jim-crow restaurants in the nation's capital, spent a busy three days in Chicago last week.

While here she revealed in a press conference that her next target in her battle to end all racial segregation in Washington, D.C. will be the theaters, both movie and legitimate.

Honored For Her Fight

Mrs. Terrell was the featured speaker and top honoree at a luncheon in the Crystal Room of the Hotel Sherman downtown sponsored by the Chicago Council of Negro Organizations, Henry W. McGee, president.

The Council honored Mrs. Terrell for her fight to end D.C. restaurant jim-crow and also Mrs. Irene McCoy Gaines of Chicago, national president of the National Association of Colored Women, for her 18 years as a civic and women's leader.

Going To Work It Out

In talking to newsmen, Mrs. Terrell commented on her coming fight against theater jim crow. "I'm sick and tired of not being able to see a movie or a stage production in most theaters in Washington because I am colored. Of course we can not go into the fight right at once, but we are going to work it out."

Speaking of her restaurant battle, Mrs. Terrell said colored people themselves won this fight and advised colored citizens everywhere to fight for their rights and not wait for others to take the lead. She said:

Must Help Themselves

"Colored people in the future must do more to help themselves by protesting and working to end discrimination wherever they find it. We sit too still too often to get the rights that are rightfully ours."

Mrs. Terrell said that she is thankful that she has seen two great victories—the one in which she forced the end of racial bias in various chapters of the American Association of University Women and the restaurant case. She predicted the end of segregation in Washington schools.

Studies Atomic Radiation

Dr. Frederick E. Mapp, professor of biology at Morehouse College, is studying autoradiography (the technique by which atoms "take pictures of themselves") at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, this summer.

Dr. Mapp is one of 30 research workers who are enrolled in a two-week course being conducted by the Special Training Division of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Autoradiography is the analysis of radioactive materials through impressions made by radiation on photographic film. This quality of radiation has been developed into an important research technique. Dr. Mapp plans to use autoradiograms to study early structure and function of the thyroid gland, using radioactive iodine.

A native of Atlanta, Dr. Mapp holds the B.S. degree from Morehouse College, the M.S. degree from Atlanta University, and the M.A. degree from Harvard University, and the Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago.

Bermuda Talks Off, Race Bias There Caused Stir

WASHINGTON (NNPA)—High level talks which were to take place at the Mid-Ocean Club in Bermuda, beginning July 8, have been called off because Prime Minister Churchill has been advised by his physician to take it easy.

The site of the talks already had drawn protests in Great Britain and this country because of race and religious discrimination practiced in Bermuda. Ian Mikardo, Labor member of the British Parliament, had urged Churchill to ask President Eisenhower to shift the conference from the Mid-Ocean Club because it did not admit Jews to membership.

The question was brought up at a White House news conference when a reporter asked James C. Hagerty, the President's press secretary, whether any attention had been given here to the suggestion made in the House of Commons that the conference not be held at the Mid-Ocean Club.

Denied, Then Confirmed

Hagerty replied that Churchill had denied on the floor of the House of Commons that Jews were not admitted to membership in the Mid-Ocean Club.

The charge of anti-Semitism at the club was confirmed last week by the Travel Agents Committee to Combat Discrimination in the travel industry, representing 125 travel bureaus in New York, which said the Mid-Ocean Club will not accept Jewish guests. The committee released a letter from the club's admissions official, stating that the Mid-Ocean Club is a private club.

African Voice In Rule Opposed

LONDON (NNPA) — Oliver Lyttelton, British Colonial Secretary, last Thursday opposed a Socialist amendment to the Rhodesia and Nyasaland federation bill in the House of Commons, proposing equal representation for Africans in the Federal Parliament.

During the heated debate, Mr. Bing, Socialist, urged that there should be legislative controls over the Colonial Secretary's powers. He charged that Mr. Lyttelton had "mysteriously" canceled the appointment of John Rex as a college tutor in Sierra Leone. Mr. Rex opposed Central African Federation.

Mr. Alport, Conservative, asserted that provocative speeches have been made by opposition members which did immense damage to racial relations in Africa and elsewhere. He referred to conditions of employment in Kenya as slave conditions. He called employment agreements he had produced during debate as "the nearest thing to slavery that exists through out the world."

Rights Plan For Africans Bring Clash

LONDON (NNPA) — Several clashes occurred in the House of Commons last Wednesday when Socialist members protested against the Rhodesia and Nyasaland Federation bill which merging of these African territories. The Socialist plan to set up a Federal Human Rights commission was rejected 210 to 187.

Oliver Lyttelton, Colonial Secretary, called the opposition "shadow boxing" and said African rights would be fully safeguarded, but a Socialist member called this "nauseating hypocrisy."

Henry Lennox d'A. Hopkinson, Minister of State for Colonial Affairs, said movements like the "break the color bar" organization in Northern Rhodesia, were to be deplored. Organizations which tried to achieve their objectives by steps which would lead to clashes, he added, could only lead, as in South Africa, to a hardening of European opinion.

Mr. Lyttelton replied that the Government already had given an assurance that the human rights provisions would be incorporated in the Order in Council. He asserted that this gave the maximum safeguard against racial discrimination in public service.

Bustamante Asks Self Government

KINGSTON, Jamaica (ANP)—Shortly after his arrival back from England via New York, William Alexander Bustamante blasted the British and declared that he would be a revolutionary from now on.

"I am now a criminal," he told a crowd gathered at Ward theatre to greet him, "but I am a revolutionary. No man or woman has ever been able to win liberty for his country and people without resorting to revolutionary methods.

"Inasmuch as I love the British Kingdom, I think my duty comes first to my country. We must have self-government." Some 7,000 persons gathered to do honour to Bustamante, but in that crowd, there were only two wealthy persons.

Reynolds Gets Aid In Probe Of Brown Babies, GI Situation

BONN, Germany—in his report to Robert H. Johnson, exalted ruler of the Elks, Hobson R. Reynolds, civil liberties director of Elks, stated that the High Commissioner in Germany was giving him full cooperation in his investigation of the brown baby situation and the integration policies of the armed forces.

"The situation is extremely interesting and I am sparing no efforts to get to the root of the matters," Mr. Reynolds wrote. He added that he had also received reports from soldiers. He is making the survey for the Civil Liberties Department of the Elks.

Commenting on the matter Mr. Johnson said, "Our Order represents America and all it stands for. Anything we can do to exemplify our democratic way of life shall be done."
