REMARKABLE RESULTS IN COW TESTING WORK.

Harford County Association Increases Return On Every Dollar Invested In Feed Twenty-One Cents.

G. E. WOLCOTT.
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The records of the Harford County Dairy Improvement Association, as published in Bulletin No. 187, of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, speak for themselves as to their value to progressive dairymen.

The object of the cow testing association is to make the herd return a greater profit. The first step toward an increased production and a larger profit, is to learn how much milk and fat each cow in the herd produces in one year, and how much feed was required to make that production. When this is known, the cows that do not show a fair profit over the cost of feed can be discarded. By disposing of the cows that show an actual loss or that merely pay for their feed, the average production per cow will be increased, and the net profit of the herd will be larger with a lower consumption of feed.

A TESTED PRODUCER.

In the case of the Harford Association, the following table tells the story:

Average Production Per Cow.

Year.	Number of cows.	Lbs milk.	Lbs. fat.	Per cent. of fat.	Price per 100 lbs. milk.
1st...	421.4	4786	234	4.9	$2.06
2nd...	440.5	5248	264	5.0	2.15
Gain..		462	30		$ .09

Year.	Value of product.	Cost of feed.	Profit over cost of feed.	Returns for $1 expended for feed.
1st...	$ 99.05	$42.19	$54.86	$2.35
2nd...	112.18	43.80	68.38	2.56
Gain..	$ 13.13	$ 1.61	$13.52	$ .21

The above table shows that the average cow produced 4786 pounds of milk the first year, which contained 234 pounds of fat. The second year this production was exceeded by 462 pounds of milk; the increase amounted to 30 pounds of fat. The average cow consumed $42.19 worth of feed the first year; the second year the feed consumed amounted to $43.80, which represents an increase of $1.61 in the cost of feed consumed. The profit above the cost of feed the second year was $13.52 more than the first year.

The average price of milk the second year was higher than the first, but the larger part of the increased profit was due to a higher and more economical production. Every dollar expended for feed the first year returned $2.35; the same value in feed the second year returned $2.56—a gain of twenty-one cents.

BUILDING UP RUN DOWN ORCHARD SOILS.

How Much And When To Apply Suitable Fertilizers.

W. R. BALLARD.
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

It is, of course, best to use soils which are fertile and in good tilth when the trees are planted, but thin and infertile soils may be used if necessary in order to save time if the trees are well fertilized while the ground is being improved. The first thing to do is to get vegetable matter into the soil, and without large quantities of stable manure this is best done with the clovers, cowpeas, soy beans, etc., the nitrogen gathering or leguminous crops. Beginning in August the ground should be well prepared and fifteen to twenty pounds of crimson clover seed per acre be sown if the soil is not too impoverished to grow clover, but in case it is, then one bushel of rye per acre should be sown instead. The resulting crop should be plowed under about May 1, and one bushel of cowpeas per acre sown at once. This crop should be plowed under early in August and crimson clover seeded immediately.

If this plan can be followed for two or three years the ground will be wonderfully benefited, and if some commercial fertilizer can be applied twice a year when the seeding is done, the benefit will be much increased. The following amounts per acre broadcasted will be decidedly beneficial: 75 to 100 pounds of muriate or sulphate of potash, 200 to 250 pounds of acid phosphate or dissolved bone, and 50 pounds of nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia.
