Disc Jock's band now on records

Starting Oct. 1, Willis Conover, WWDC disc jockey, will start spinning his own recordings as well as the music of other recording artists.

That's the date that Brunswick Records (a subsidiary of Decca) will bring out Volume One of "Willis Conover's House of Sounds," a long-playing album of records, featuring Conover and the orchestra, an all-star aggregation of top-notch musicians playing in the Washington area.

Musical director of the album is Joe Timer, drummer in the orchestra.

Volume One of the Conover album features 12 musical selections, seven of which are original compositions: "Playground," "Pilibos," "Willis," "Light Green," "Sheriff Crane of Jackpot County," "One for Kenny" and "The Tiger."

Other numbers include "Flamingo," "Moonlight in Vermont" "I've Got You Under My Skin," "The Song Is You" and a medley of popular tunes.

BELIEVED INDIANA'S 'FIRST':

NCC Prof. gets Ed.D. in music

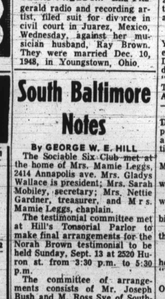
DURHAM, N.C.—A professor of music at North Carolina college is believed to be the first colored recipient of a doctor of education degree in music education from the University of Indiana at Bloomington.

Robert A. John of 619 Moorehead avenue, Durham, received this degree at the university on August 7.

John, who joined the NCC's staff in 1951, is a native of Milwaukee, Wis. He received a bachelor's degree at Milwaukee State Teachers college and a master's degree in music at the University of Michigan.

Prior to coming to Durham, he was supervisor of music in the Granville, Ohio, public schools and later head of the music education department at Denison University in Granville.

John also served as choir director of the First Methodist church of Newark, Ohio, and as a captain in the U. S. Army during World War II.



SEEKS FREEDOM—Ella Fitzgerald radio and recording artist, filed suit for divorce in civil court in Juarez, Mexico, Wednesday, against her musician husband, Ray Brown. They were married Dec. 10, 1948, in Youngstown, Ohio.

South Baltimore Notes

By GEORGE W. E. HILL

The Sociable Six Club met at the home of Mrs. Mamie Leggs, 2414 Annapolis ave. Mrs. Gladys Wallace is president; Mrs. Sarah Mobley, secretary; Mrs. Nettie Gardner, treasurer, and Mrs. Mamie Leggs, chaplain.

The testimonial committee met at Hill's Tonsorial Parlor to make final arrangements for the Norah Brown testimonial to be held Sunday, Sept. 13 at 2520 Huron st. from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The committee of arrangements consists of Mr. Joseph Bush and M. Ross Sye of Southern Life Insurance Co.; George W. Hill, Anderson Parson and Roland Christian. Mr. Emerson Brown is a member ex-officio.

The dinner committee consists Mamie Leggs, Joseph Bush, Trilby Wicks and Ross Sye.

John Leggs of Mt. Winans, Md., the son-in-law of Mrs. Mamie Leggs, has become one of the army's best softball pitchers of the 26th Infantry and was entered in the overseas mortar company hall of fame.

Leggs began pitching sandlot ball in his hometown of Baltimore and, following his induction took over the mound duties for the 571st Ordnance Ammo co. in France, running up a 5-0 record there last season.

He has been with the Spade regiment since March of this year.

Mr. and Mrs. James Edgar Chinn of Washington, D.C. spent the weekend visiting their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Chinn of 2608 Pier-point st.

The Chinns have just returned from a week's stay visiting Marnock, Va.

Mr. Gerald Burks Wilson, conductor of the Baltimore choral, is spending two weeks in Salem, Va., visiting his mother, sisters and friends.

Cafeteria worker prints 'Fantasies,' poetry volume

James N. Caldwell is a receiving clerk in the Levering Hall cafeteria at Johns Hopkins university, but he is better known both on and off campus as a poet and short story writer.

This hobby, begun in his high school days when he wrote love note rhymes for fellow classmates who wanted to impress their teen-age sweethearts, has resulted in the recent publication of his second volume of poetry.

Entitled "fantasies", the book contains a variety of poems on subjects ranging from determination to day dreaming to politics to Joe Louis to global war and negotiated peace.

Playing Politics

One poem, dedicated to New York governor, Thomas E. Dewey and written in 1948 when Mr. Dewey was a Presidential candidate reads:

"Convention men will all agree
That Dewey stands for harmony
And vic'ry for the G.O.P.
—Good luck, Mr. Dewey".

His poetic forecast that Mr. Dewey would win by a landslide proved wrong, but he received a thank-you letter of appreciation from the candidate.

About the AFRO newspaper, Mr. Caldwell wrote:

"If you want to read a paper where opinion's free,
On the controversial issues which we disagree
You will get the news unbiased as it ought to be Because it all comes out in the AFRO."

Peace Discussed

Concerning negotiated peace, he wrote:

"What need then, is there for this dreadful carnage—
Of millions, filling hearts with grief and tears?
Annihilating culture, gained for centuries—
War's folly leaving death, despair and fears!
Can mockery like this be civilization
With envious hate and waste in every sphere?
No, if men hope to foster their posteriors
They must make peace to last."

Mr. Caldwell, 40, was born and reared on Maryland's Eastern Shore. He attended Dover (Del.) State college and Bowie (Md.) State Teachers college.

Noted Athlete

At Bowie, he was a member of the school band, the student council, the quartette and the school paper. He was also a noted athlete, winning his school letters in football, baseball and track.

During a field meet at the Howard stadium in the spring of 1928, he set a running broad jump record which still stands at 23 feet, 11½ inches.

Since graduation, he had held jobs as teacher in the county schools, war worker, insurance salesman, Boys' Village instructor and director of a children's summer camp. He joined the Levering Hall staff in 1949.

Continues Study

Some of his summers have been spent in study at Hampton Institute, Morgan State college and Howard University.

Mr. Caldwell hopes to organize a poetry club and to fulfill several speaking engagements on the subject this fall. His first collection "Original Poems", was published in 1941.

He and his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Caldwell have two children, Mrs. Jean Carter, 17; and Alan, 16. The family lives at 2134 W. Fayette st. and attends St. James Methodist church.

Singing Fields observe 3rd year on Radio WASA

BRADSHAW, Md. — The Singing Fields, radio and TV artists, a husband-wife team, recently observed their third year as a regular feature on radio station, WASA, Havre de Grace.

The observance, a five-hour program, was held at the Asbury Methodist church, at Lorely, with assisting groups before a packed house with many unable to gain entrance.

Together 10 Years

The unique team is composed of John and Mrs. Alice Fields, who have worked as a duo for the past 10 years.

The are heard Sundays on a 15-minute religious program, 1:00 to 2:00 p.m., sponsored by the station.

Pianist and Contralto

John furnishes the piano accompaniments for his wife who has a splendid contralto voice.

They got their first big break on the Tom Hawkins' TV talent show over WAAM. Although they didn't win first prize, Eddie Leonard of the Spa, downtown nightery, saw and heard their performance and immediately gave them a job.

Held Recording Contract

They now have a recording contract with Savoy Records. Their first recording "You're the Beating of My Heart," was composed by Mr. Fields.

On a recent visit to New York City, they appeared on station WLIB, with studios atop the Theresa hotel.

Have Large Audience

The Sunday program on WASA has a large listening audience, and they are in great demand, filling engagements at various events, churches, etc.

The Fields make their home here at Bradshaw and commute to Havre de Grace for their Sunday programs.

"SECOND SIGHT," SOON

The film, "Second Sight," will be released nationally in various theatres.

The picture is designed to give a comprehensive portrayal of the activities at the training center.

25,000 hear Robeson's song-plea for freedom

Will continue fighting ways

No semblance of trouble at park

PEACE ARCH PARK, BLAINE, Wash.—Paul Robeson sang songs of peace and freedom to an international audience of at least 25,000 at his recent second annual outdoor concert here.

Despite overcast skies, people poured for five hours across the borders of Canada and the U.S. onto the plain and hillside overlooking The Peace Portal for which the park was named.

As Robeson crossed the border with an interracial honor guard of trade unionists, he was met and surrounded by a cheering Canadian-American throng which escorted him to an improvised truck-bed platform beneath the great arch.

Born Of Necessity

The outdoor concert was born last year after U.S. Immigration authorities had denied Robeson permission to enter Canada to sing at the Mine-Mill Union convention in Vancouver.

As Robeson mounted the make-shift "stage" with his piano accompanist, Alan Booth, the park came alive with thousands standing, cheering, and waving in salute to him.

Robeson began his program with "Didn't My Lord Deliver Daniel," then sang old favorites such as "Let My People Go," "Ol' Man River" and "Water Boy."

Many Lyrical Favorites

There were also lyrical favorites, including the tender "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," the rollicking "No, John, No," "Joe Hill," famed among the hard-rock miners who make up Mine-Mill's membership, and "What Is America to Me?"

Robeson concluded his program with a brief, informal but impassioned plea for world brotherhood and peace.

"I wish I could go on all day," he said. "This gathering means much to Americans who are struggling for peace, who are facing jail, facing hostile courts today, simply because they fight for world peace and for dignity in my America."

Will Continue Meddling

Robeson drew laughter and applause from his predominantly-white audience when he said that some people "seem to think that my support for the independence struggles of the peoples is meddling in the foreign affairs of the U. S. government. Now that's just too bad, because I'm just going to have to continue to meddle."

Other Americans, he said, "can choose their Frances and the refuse of Nazi Fascism. I choose to stretch my hand out to the brave peoples in all lands —to Latin America, to Africa, to the people of the New China as today they build a new life for 500 million people."

"I speak," he said, "as one whose roots are deep in my land, as one whose fathers toiled, in cotton, toiled in tobacco, and I say I have a right to speak on this soil drenched with the blood and sweat of my ancestors."

SUNDAY AFTERNOON GUEST —Charming and delightful Mary Louise, vocal stylist, was the recent guest, along with Duke Ellington, on Eddie Gallaher's CBS Radio's "On a Sunday Afternoon" broadcast, a one-hour salute to composers of American popular music.

Strolling Along The AVENOO

With BUDDY LONESOME

The beauty contest at Carr's Beach turned out rather well despite some haphazard managing by the contest "promotors." More than 10,000 persons jammed Carr's to see Joan Johnson, 17-year-old shapely lass, garner top prize. Joan choice but I wonder how seemed to be the crowd come? some of those zanzi babes were passed over so quickly. The number two and three choices didn't fill me at all, Jack. GOOD . GOOK - A-MOOKAII

Well anyway, the contest is over so you gals sheath your claws and accept defeat gracefully. Two zanzi's who did this were Elva DeShields and Doris Jones. These babes gracefully joined the newly-crowned beauty queen's entourage on a tour of local nite spots. The first stop was the Rice Inn where the party was fed enough food to choke a mule.

Next the group hit the Comedy Club where Howard and Ike Dixon laid out the plush red carpet. While listening to the music of King Solomon, versatile organ swingster, the crew guzzled up enough champagne to do anybody's head in.

Next stop was the Club Casino where Teddy's Tip Toppers, a local group, entertained a packed house. Again champagne was brought out but I got tired of drinking that wine and hollered for some Scotch. At the Casino Queen Alma mounted the bandstand to draw plaudits and approval of the crowd, while Dickie Newton and Walter Dow kept the wolves at bay.

The last stop (I was about wasted then, Jasm) was the Club Tijuana where Walter Rouse really outdid himself in proving he's still one of the town's top hosts. Bill Swindell is still swinging at the Tijuana and on Sunday nite was aided by a cat out of Washington, DesCea Tony," on vocals. This cat whales ala Joe Carroll and provides a nice entertainment break. The crowd eats that kind of showmanship up.

Incidentally, I can't understand why a certain character who hangs around those parts is always bragging about the number of "other" chicks he has on the string. Guilford is nice, Jack, but the AVENOO is a helluva lot safer. WHAD I SAY!

At Rictor's Red Fox Room is a young fellow named Frank Milton who deserves a break. This cat is not only serious about attaining success in the musical field but has actually penned a few tunes. 'Course and believe he would really go over if he jumped on a King Pleasure kick. He has a swell arrangement of "Lady Bird," and whenever he sings it the people go for it. That's always the best barometer, Jack!

Seen in town enjoying Gamby's floor show, featuring the shapely Dot (Thy) Kelly, was Hoppy Adams, talented young disc jockey from the big A—Annapolis. Hoppy has received many offers from large stations but has always declined them to stay with WANN. Incidentally, if it were not for Hoppy's deft handling of radio arrangements at Coir's beauty contest, the affair would have been a total flop. The guy is really all right — AND YOU CAN BELIEVE THOSE CHERRIES.

Phil Harris' P. and M is still bringing them in with Benny Washington's combo. Saw some yokels at the P and M who kept the hats on their heads despite Phil's request to 'uncover.' I've always believed any man who stands in a cocktail lounge with his hat on stands a good chance of being the type of character who eats soup with his fingers. Man fixes up his nightclub real purty and the yokels start coming in. C'mon fellas, be nice.

NOTE TO THE LIQUOR BOARD: Man called up to complain about a tavern which was selling drinks from miniature bottles. On checking his complaint I went to a bar on Pennsylvania ave. near Lanvale st. While I fiddled with the music box, one of my operatives asked for a drink of bourbon.

He was asked "large or small?" When my man said "small," the bartender got a miniature of the requested bourbon and filled a "shot" glass. This left the miniature bottle half-filled and a bartender put that bottle back up on the shelf.

Now I don't believe that's exactly "Kosher." Incidentally this man was arrested earlier this year on a deadly weapons charge. In plain sight of the customers, however, this respected citizen keeps a pistol—this big—and the joint is just one-half block from the Northwestern station house.

A lot of people have called about that typographical error in last week's calyum which identified Susie Staples as one of the "Stables" sisters. Pardon me girls, and especial apologies to both Susie and Rufus Langston, two grand people, and some very dear friends of mine . . . LATER!!
