Local Women Discover New Way to Buy Meat

A visit to any butcher shop reveals that many smart housewives no longer plan their menus around expensive cuts of meat.

They buy the just-as-nutritious but less expensive cuts and make them deliciously tender with Adolph's Meat Tenderizer. Now their families enjoy more meat at no extra cost.

It costs less than a penny to tenderize a pound of meat. Just sprinkle Adolph's evenly on all sides of meat, pierce with fork, and let stand at room temperature 30 minutes for each ½ inch of meat thickness before cooking. Adolph's is available seasoned or non-seasoned at food stores everywhere. (Adv.)

North Beach meat balls

Sauce
1 large onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
2tbsps. bacon drippings, or other fat
2 tbsps. bacon drippings, or 1 (No. 2½) can tomatoes
1 cup beef stock or canned bouillon — cube broth
½ cup Belle Haven Burgundy Wine
1 bay leaf, crumbled
Pinch each of thyme and marjoram
1 tbsp. sugar
Salt and pepper to taste

Saute onion, green pepper and garlic gently in bacon drippings for 5 minutes. Blend in flour; add tomatoes, stock and wine; cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Add seasonings.

Cover and simmer gently for 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Meantime, prepare Meat Balls as follows:

MEAT BALLS
1 lb. ground beef
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 egg, well beaten
¼ cup milk
1 small onion, finely chopped
¼ cup chopped parsley
½ tsp. powdered sage
1 tsp. pepper
Corn meal

Combine all ingredients except corn meal, mixing well. Take up mixture by teaspoonfuls and shape into small balls. Roll balls in corn meal. When sauce has cooked 1 hour, add meat balls. Cover and continue simmering for 45 minutes, stirring very gently several times to prevent meat balls from sticking to bottom of pan.

Cook 1 pound spaghetti in boiling slated water until tender; drain. Place spaghetti on a platter; pour meat balls and sauce over it. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, and serve additional Parmesan cheese separately. Serves 6 to 8.

Sewing tips

1. Flat types of braids and frogs may be sewn to garments by machine. Fancier or more lumpy ones should be sewn by hand.

2. Metallic threads in fabrics will not become sticky when pressed if a cool iron is used.

3. Don't force thread, particularly silk, into too small a needle eye, because the thread will snarl and bunch up, and even cut or fray fine fabrics.

4. Friction, caused by thread passing through the needle eye, will eventually hone it to razor sharpness and may cut through the thread or cause snarling. Examine the eye of the needle from time to time for sharpness.

Aaron Perry held in cabbie's death

Witness says fighter struck white escort

WASHINGTON

A street brawl over a woman, involving former District Middleweight Champion Aaron Perry, and a 65-year-old white hacker, was aired during a coroner's inquest, Thursday.

Following the hearing into the death of Cab-Driver Harry Calomeris, of the 4000 block, Arkansas ave., nw, the 37-year-old Perry was ordered held for the action of the grand jury. Mr. Calomeris is the father of a local attorney.

The fight, according to witnesses took place on Bladensburg rd., and Lane pl., near the Melody Inn tavern about 2 a.m., Friday, August 21.

Came To Her Home

Miss Bernice Pleasure, of the 1200 block, O st., nw, testified that Mr. Calomeris came to her home about 11 p.m. Friday. She said that Rudolph Rollins, her sister, Miss Ella Mae Pleasure, and she were drinking when the cab driver arrived.

The witness stated that the group decided to go out to the Melody Inn, arriving there about midnight.

White Manager Joined Party

On the way out, Miss Pleasure asserted, they picked up Lewis C. Keeche, a white delicatessen store merchant.

The witness said that everyone had two beers with the exception of her sister, Ella Mae, who drank "two shots of gin."

Miss Pleasure stated that just before leaving Melody Inn they went to the ladies' room and, as they returned, were called to a table at which Perry was sitting.

Did Not Know Perry

Miss Pleasure said: "I did not know Perry, I knew of him as a fighter."

The witness said that when Perry asked her and her sister to "come along" with him, she and her sister told Perry that they were leaving with the party that they came with.

Miss Pleasure testified that as she and the others left the tavern Perry followed them out grabbed her sister by the arm, and pushed her into the cab operated by Mr. Rollins.

Chased Mr. Keeche

She said that Mr. Calomeris objected to Perry's treatment of her sister and the former pugilist struck Mr. Calomeris with several blows, knocking him to the ground.

She stated that Perry chased Mr. Keeche around a car several times, but could not catch up with him.

Miss Pleasure said that she left the scene, by catching a cab and returning to her O street home, where she told her mother what had happened.

Went To Precinct

She stated that she and her mother went to Precinct 9 to get Mr. Calomeris' out and were told that he was "not in any condition to be removed."

The witness asserted that she was told that Mr. Calomeris was booked on a drunk charge. She said that she protested that the white cab driver had only two beers and was not drunk, but finally on Sept. 3, 1949, he decided to hang up his gloves after being kayoed by a local fighter, Sonny Bunn, in three rounds.

As Perry slipped as a boxing headliner, he found himself in numerous encounters with the law.

In 1950, the district attorney filed a tax lien against Perry charging the former fighter owed Government $20,161 in delinquent taxes.

A home, which Perry purchased during the days he was coining money, was sold on July 6, 1951 by a court order to cover his failure to meet the notes.

On July 24, 1950, Perry was indicted by the grand jury for housebreaking.

According to the indictment, Perry and Charles V. Turner, an alleged accomplice, entered the apartment of Maurice Lewis, of the 4800 block Georgia ave., nw, on July 2, 1950.

To Hospital

The indictment charged them with the theft of a wristwatch, valued at $10; a wallet, worth a $1; and $22 in cash.

Perry never went to trial in the case. He was found mentally incompetent and ordered committed to St. Elizabeth's on Oct. 23, 1950.

On June 21, 1951, Dr. Samuel A. Silk, acting superintendant, declared Perry was again mentally sound.

Finally, on July 6, 1951, the housebreaking charges against were dismissed.

According to the court records, Perry married on April 9, 1946. His wife, Thelma, is a school teacher and they have two children, ages seven and three.

Born July 12, 1925, he made his professional debut at Turner's Arena on June 7, 1943 with a four - round decision over Charlie Davis. He was only 17 then.

Perry made his first big splash in a local boxing ring by a kayo victory over an outpunned Billy Banks on March 10, 1944 at Uline's Arena.

The fighter's string of 14 straight victories, including eight kayoes, was broken in Griffith Stadium on April 4, 1944, when he lost a 10-round decision to Sammy Angott.

Armstrong Too Much

Although, he lost, Perry covered himself with glory and his over-enthusiastic manager threw him into the ring with Henry Armstrong, boxing's former triple crownholder on May 22, 1944.

The Armstrong - Perry bout drew a near record gate of $63,000. However, Perry was chilled by Armstrong in six rounds.

The bout, which saw Perry take a merciless pounding, proved to be the turning point of his career.

Then only 19, it appeared that his brief fling as a top rated prospect was over.

On August 18, 1944, he fought in Madison Square Gardens and was kayoed in four rounds by Jimmy McDaniels.

On Park Bench

He went into the Army during the latter part of 1945. While in the Army, he was reported AWOL, and was found suffering from amnesia on a Rock Creek park bench.

Perry received a medical discharge and returned to the ring in 1946. He lost a 10-round bout on Jan. 22, 1946, to Joe Curcio in Elizabeth, N.J.

He bounced back on Feb. 25, 1946 to decision a slipping Fritzie Zivic in a ten-round. On May 20, 1946 he kayoed Bee Bee Washington in the ninth round of a dramatic bout.

On June 27, 1946, Danny Kapilow finished Perry as a rated performer in the District by kayoing the erstwhile "golden boy" in the fourth round.

End Of The Line

In 1947, Perry lost a 10-round decision to Smuggy Hursey and finally on Sept. 3, 1949, he decided to hang up his gloves after being kayoed by a local fighter, Sonny Bunn, in three rounds.

As Perry slipped as a boxing headliner, he found himself in numerous encounters with the law.

In 1950, the district attorney filed a tax lien against Perry charging the former fighter owed

Rise and fall of Perry, the 'Golden Boy'

"The Aaron Perry Story" in real life is so much like a stereotyped figment of a fiction writer's imagination that it sounds canned.

The former District welterweight champion, who finds himself a defendant in a homicide case, was the "Golden Boy" of local boxing circle, earning upwards of $100,000 from 1943 through 1947. He was popular with the bobby - soxers and often was seen driving an expensive convertible.

Born July 12, 1925, he made his professional debut at Turner's Arena on June 7, 1943 with a four - round decision over Charlie Davis. He was only 17 then.

Perry made his first big splash in a local boxing ring by a kayo victory over an outpunned Billy Banks on March 10, 1944 at Uline's Arena.

The fighter's string of 14 straight victories, including eight kayoes, was broken in Griffith Stadium on April 4, 1944, when he lost a 10-round decision to Sammy Angott.

As Perry slipped as a boxing headliner, he found himself in numerous encounters with the law.

In 1950, the district attorney filed a tax lien against Perry charging the former fighter owed

asked him to take them out Benning road, but he refused.

Told How He Ran

Mr. Keeche, who said he operated a store in the 1100 block, 14th st., nw, stated that he had made a "date with Miss Beatrice Pleasure for the night."

He said that the party picked up him at the corner of 13th and K sts., nw.

He told of the trip to Melody inn and how he ran out of reach of Perry.

Mr. Keeche stated that Mr. Calomeris objected to the fighter taking Miss Ella Mae Pleasure from the party, because she came with the group. He said that he saw Perry strike the cab driver.

Went To Perry's Home

Sgt. Clarence Weinmuller, of the homicide squad, said that on the day following the incident he went to where Perry was staying in the 100 block, 33rd st. nw.

The detective said he knocked at the door and received no answer. He said that he went in and searched the first floor and the basement before he came to a bedroom in which the fighter was sleeping.

After Perry woke up, the sergeant said, the fighter gave the following version of the incident:

Perry said he was sitting in the Melody Inn where he saw the two Pleasure women passing by. He called them and started talking to Ella Mae. The fighter said that he left the tavern with Ella Mae, and Beatrice objected.

Finally, Perry stated, "the older Greek fellow" came over to him and struck him.

Went To 33rd Street Address

Perry said he knocked him down and "the younger Greek fellow" hit and so he chased him, but could not catch him.

The fighter said that he and Ella Mae got into Mr. Rollins car and went as far as 15th and H sts., ne, and they got out.

He stated that they went to the 33rd street address and spent the rest of the night. The next morning, Perry said, he took Ella Mae to 15th and H sts., "gave her five bucks and sent her home in a taxi-cab."

The coroner's jury deliberated 18 minutes before deciding to hold the fighter for the action of the grand jury. Harry T. Alexander represented the fighter.

Housing commissioner will address Urban Leaguers

Guy T. O. Hollyday, commissioner of the Federal Housing administration, will be one of the speakers at the 1953 annual conference of the National Urban League which meets in Philadelphia from Sept. 6-11.

Hollyday, who was appointed to the high government post in April, will appear on a panel on Wednesday, entitled "The Challenge of Change in the Housing Outlook."

Appearing on the panel with Hollyday will be Emanuel M. Spiegel, president of the National Association of Home Builders, and W. Miller Barbour, western field director of the National Urban League.

Mrs. Samuel I. Rosenman, wife of the famed jurist, will preside at this panel session which will be held from 12:30 to 2:15 p.m. in the Bellevue-Stratford's Burgundy room.

Hollyday was formerly president of the Title Guarantee company, a post he held from 1944 until his appointment as FHA Commissioner. He was also a director of the Savings Bank of Baltimore; Randall H. Hagner and Company, and the Loyola Saving and Loan Association. He was also the former president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

Job Panel

In another panel discussion Robert Freeland, president of the Baltimore Yellow Cab co.; J. Hayes, president of the International Association of Machinists, AFL, and William H. Gray Jr., executive director of the Pennsylvania Race Relations commission, will discuss "The Challenge of Change in the Employment Outlook." This panel session will be presided over by Arthur C. Kaufmann, executive head of Gimbels.

A third panel will discuss "The Challenge of Change in Community Services." Presiding on the panel will be Dr. David M. Solomon, a member of the Armore Museum of Art, Goucher College, Great Books Foundation, Loyola College, Maryland Institute;

McCoy College, Morgan State College, Peabody Institute, Peale Museum, University of Baltimore, University of Maryland, and Wallers Art Gallery.

Mrs. Marion E. Hawes, co-ordinator of adult work at the Pratt library, is in charge of arrangements.

Post Office regulations for merchants amended

Postmaster Neal A. Sibley announced today that the Post Office department has amended regulations concerning the simplified form of address.

Heretofore applicable only to matter intended for distribution to rural, star route and post office box holders at post offices not having letter carrier service, the dept. has extended this same privilege to matter to be distributed to patrons of city and village letter carrier offices, in cities having post office box holders.

The Postmaster said this arrangement may be followed where it is desired to cover all letter carrier routes in Baltimore. Under this method it is not necessary to specifically addresses the mail by hand or typewriter but it must bear the printed address.

The articles must be mailed under permit in accordance with postal laws and regulations on by means of precancelled stamps and each package must be labeled by means of a facing slip as follows:

1. For distribution to rural or star-route box holders, Baltimore.

2. For distribution to post office box holders, Baltimore.

3. For distribution to patrons served by city letter carriers Baltimore, Md.

Upon inquiry the post office will furnish the total number of rural and star route box holders and post office box holders and the number of patrons or stops on each route served by letter carriers in the Baltimore delivery area.

It is expected that the new service will be widely used particularly by dealers of merchants in a neighborhood, or trade area who would be saved the expense and trouble of addressing each envelope separately by means of a typewriter or in handwriting.

Priest bears funeral for executed man

Unclaimed at the city morgue for five days, the body of Lott Glover who was hanged at the Maryland penitentiary last week, was buried Wednesday with funeral expenses borne by Father Joseph Ayd.

Glover was annointed in the preliminary Catholic ritual a week before his death and Father Ayd administered last rites during the hanging. The body was handled by the Fahey Funeral Home on Light st. and buried at Sacred Heart cemetery.

Job vacancies announced by personnel commissioner

Examinations for jobs paying salaries from $2,898 to $6,621 yearly have been announced by the Maryland Commissioner of Personnel.

Included in the wide range of occupations in which vacancies now exist or are expected to occur are:

Agencies plan Education week

Fifteen educational and cultural agencies will join forces to promote Baltimore's second annual Adult Education Week, Sept. 14 through 19.

The theme of the week is "Keep on Learning." Its purpose is to show persons whose formal school days have ended, how they may add to their store of knowledge through reading and study at home, or by attending group courses.

Most of the activities will center around the Pratt library.

Special Displays

Special displays are to be set up in the library's central hall; free booklets will be distributed, and a series of book talks will be given.

At specified afternoon and evening hours, educational counsellors will be on hand to discuss any individual problems which may be presented.

Visitors will have access to a wide variety of leaflets and catalogs announcing courses and lectures offered by local institutions during the coming scholastic year.

Other Sponsors

In addition to the Pratt Library, sponsors of the week are:

Bureau of Recreation, Department of Adult Education, Baltimore Museum of Art, Goucher College, Great Books Foundation, Loyola College, Maryland Institute;

McCoy College, Morgan State College, Peabody Institute, Peale Museum, University of Baltimore, University of Maryland, and Wallers Art Gallery.

Mrs. Marion E. Hawes, co-ordinator of adult work at the Pratt library, is in charge of arrangements.

Carson modeling unit changes name

The Carson School of Modeling at 1328 W. North ave., has changed its name to Carson Models Agency. Although the school will continue to teach the techniques of modeling and charm, it will operate more on an agency basis than on a school basis.

The director, Clarence Carter, says he feels that he can better assure enrollees work from an agency standpoint rather than from the unprofessional school basis, and that it gives the school a better opportunity to pick persons suited for this type of work.

Begins Sept. 14

The agency will be in full operation beginning Sept. 14, when registrations will be taken.

Interviews for children, teenagers and adults will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. daily and on Saturdays from 12 noon to 3 p.m. and 6 to 7:30 p.m.
