Construction under way on new housing project

With hundreds of neighborhood school children and adults who will be benefitted looking on, ground was broken Wednesday for the new $7,567,471 Lafayette Court homes in East Baltimore.

The shovels, which started construction work were handled by Thomas D'Alesandro Jr. and C. Cheston Carey, chairman of the Baltimore Housing Authority.

The 816 - unit housing project will be built in the area bounded roughly by Colvin, Orleans, Caroline and Fayette sts. Six of the 23 buildings will be elevator - serviced, eleven - story structures.

'Slums Un-American'

Mayor D'Alesandro pointed out that from a health, delinquency and economic standpoint "nothing is more un-American than a slum."

He cited the progress Baltimore has made in replacing slum areas, declaring, "That progress will continue as long as I hold the office I now occupy."

Mr. Carey who presided, commented on the significance of the event and introduced platform guests who represented Baltimore's three - pronged attack on slums — public housing, redevelopment and law enforcement.

In Precarious Position

John A. Kervick, director of the New York field office of the Public Housing Administration lamented the fact that the public housing program today is in such a "precarious position."

He declared that a long-range plan is needed for effective slum - clearance program, because the job cannot be done on the year - to year basis which Congress has decreed.

William S. Taylor, coordinator of the Eastside Community Council, cited the significant features of the new project and its effect on the community.

Crime Reduction

Foremost, he mentioned the reduction of delinquency, crime and disease which sub - standard living breed. He said:

"It means that now we are cleaning up the physical deterioration in our central part of the city which will soon be followed by social reorganization.

"It means that for the first time our low - income group will be able to reside in a skyscraper where they can breathe pure air and be in closer touch with God.

"It means that Baltimore at last is coming into its own as a big League city—not only by its doubledeck stadium, not only by its chance to get the St. Louis Browns baseball team, not only by having the rejuvenated Colts football team, but by its leadership in the field of housing."

Another Milestone

Oliver C. Winston, director of the housing authority pointed out that ground - breaking for the new project "marks one more milestone in what we've been trying to do for a great many years."

Devotionals were handled by the Rev. H. Octavius Graham, pastor of Knox Presbyterian church and Father Joseph McKee, pastor, St. Francis Xavier Catholic church.

Several classes of nearby School No. 139 at Central ave. and Lexington st. were brought outside to watch the exercises. Others looked on from classroom windows.

Principal On Hand

On hand for the ceremony were George E. Simms, principal and classes accompanied by teachers, Miss Eunice Boyce, Mrs. Lillian Ross, Mrs. Clarice Tilghman, Mrs. Inez Johnson, and Irving W. Lockerman.

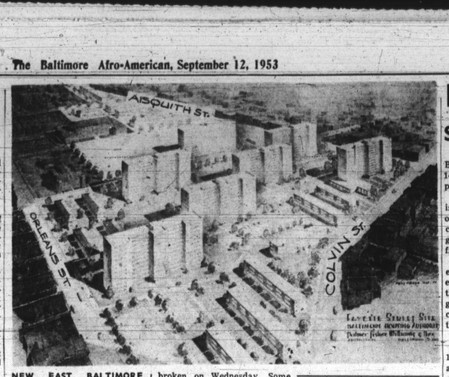
Other attendants at the ceremony included John L. Berry, the Rev. Samuel Carter, Theodore Brown, senior supervisor, Clements Nixon, director, Chick Webb Center;

Edgar M. Ewing, Housing Authority assistant to the director of management; and project management officials including Frank Veney, shop manager; Otho Pinkett, Van Story Branch, R. Clarke Davis, Benjamin Brown, Bernard Mason, Warren Weaver and Charles Anderson.

Ernest L. Peacock attending Army School

FORT LEE, Va. — Pvt. Ernest L. Peacock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Peacock, Baltimore, Md., 2907 Denham circle, is now attending the Clothing and Textile Repair Course offered here by the Quartermaster School.

Pvt. Peacock graduated from Frederick Douglass high school and entered the service in May, 1953.



NEW EAST BALTIMORE HOMES — This is the architect's drawing of the 7,567,471 Lafayette Courts housing project for which ground was broken on Wednesday. Some of the buildings will be eleven story structures with elevator service.

School sessions settle down for 50,000 pupils

The public schools opened on Tuesday with colored pupils somewhat exceeding the 50,000 number anticipated.

With late registrations coming in daily and local transfers being effected for various reasons, individual school figures are not yet available.

But it is a known fact that more than 50,000 pupils are enrolled, representing an increase of about 3,000 more than last year.

Superintendent Busy

Dr. Houston R. Jackson, assistant superintendent of schools had a long, busy day on Tuesday making visits to new buildings and schools where overcrowding adjustments posed a problem.

He began work at 8:10 a.m. and was in his office until after 6 p.m.

During the day he checked at School No. 144 where the enrollment of over 900 pupils threatened to be a major problem; School 144 annex which now houses the fifth and sixth grade pupils of School 144; the new kindergarten classrooms at the Coppin Teachers College grounds; new School No. 148, and the music units at Douglass High School.

School 148 Of Concern

As it developed, the main concern must be with supplying sufficient teachers for School No. 148 (formerly white school No. 43 on Aisquith st. and Westwood ave.

A heavy load of more than 1,200 pupils have enrolled there, Dr. Jackson pointed out, this being nearly 200 more than was anticipated.

On the other hand, because of shifting populations, the teacher-pupil ratio in some other schools has fallen short of expectations.

Classes In Full Swing

A spot check of various schools on Tuesday found classes in full swing at those buildings which have no overcrowdedness problems.

This was the case at the five-classroom School No. 144 A, which has relieved School No. 144 of its fifth and sixth grades.

Mrs. Ida N. Nicholas arrived at the school at 7:45 a.m. to find pupils anxiously awaiting admission to the new building.

Adjustment Problem

The same situation faced Mrs. Marion C. Johnson, principal of School No. 144, Mosher st. and Wheeler ave., when she arrived at 7:20 a.m., but here was an adjustment problem id. accommodating more than 900 pupils in a building intended for about 400.

However, with comparatively few protests from parents whose children have to travel farther to the new 144 annex, the adjustment was effected so that only classes instead of 18 will have to attend School No. 144 on shifts.

Off To Good Start

Classes got off to a good start also at Fannie Barbour School No. 161, Saratoga and Schroeder sts. where G. A. Wright is principal.

The building was intended for about 850 pupils and although there are more than 1,000 enrolled, no part-time sessions are necessary because the population is shifting constantly to the "new areas."

In the classroom of Mrs. Consuella Mapp, 2nd-graders were reviewing their summer experiences.

The 6th class of Mrs. Gwendolyn Seaborne was having an arithmetic lesson.

New Features Exciting

At Josiah Diggs School No. 162, Barre and Warner sts. the children were excited about first-day use of their new cafeteria, gymnasium, library and auditorium.

When the school was opened last April, these features were not yet completed. Mrs. Vivian Bundy, principal, estimated the enrollment at about 980 pupils comfortably settled in their 23 classrooms and two kindergartens.

Credit for effecting smooth service operation of the new cafeteria on the first day was given to Edward C. Robinson and Milton Stanley, teachers, who held an indoctrination session with each of the classes on Tuesday morning.

Dunbar Gets 4,000

At Dunbar High School Mrs. Vivian Cook, principal; Mrs. Mildred Seaborne and Milton Branson, vice-principals anticipated an enrollment of about 4,000 pupils.

Dunbar's overcrowdedness was relieved this term by complete use of facilities at School No. 101 which heretofore housed some elementary classes.

New buildings which saw pupil service for the first time on Tuesday included the Booker T. Washington junior high school annex which has a gymnasium, auditorium and 18 classrooms.

Other New Buildings

Also the new prefabricated School No. 146, Preston and Edgewood sts., with 13 classrooms; the eight-room Mt. Winans school; and the two-room prefabricated annex to School No. 120, Pennsylvania ave. and Robert st.

Relief in other situations is being afforded by use of facilities at Grace Mission Baptist Church, Knox Presbyterian Church, the old Merganthaler school building, now School No. 147; and the former Clara Barton building at Fairmount and Jackson sts.

Some 210 women school corner traffic guards were out in full force.

Accountants and instructors wanted

The U.S. Civil Service commission has announced examinations for accountant positions paying $3,410 a year in the General Accounting office in Washington and large cities throughout the country.

The commission also asked for guided missile, radio, wire, radar and photography instructors to fill posts in the Signal Corps center and Fort Monmouth in New Jersey.

Applications for the accountant examination will be accepted until Oct. 29. Applications for the instructor positions will be accepted until further notice.

Further information may be obtained from Charles S. Fleming at the Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners, Post Office, or from the U.S. Civil Service commission, Washington, 25, D.C.

Druggists slate first-aid drive

Stressing the need for preparation to meet emergencies that may arise in the home or on the road, the Maryland Pharmaceutical association and 700 member drug stores in Maryland have designated the week of Sept. 28 through Oct. 5 as "Emergencies Don't Wait" week.

The drug stores of Maryland will act as recruiting stations where individuals can enroll for first-aid training courses. Cooperating with the program are the Red Cross chapters of Maryland and Civil Defense.

"No one knows when an accident will occur—and any kind of accident causes a real emergency," Otto W. Muehlhause, president of the state pharmaceutical association, points out. "That is why we are urging everyone to have proper first aid materials at home and in their automobiles."

"But," he added, "even more important, we think that at least one member of every family should know how to administer proper first-aid when the emergency arises."

Neighborhood Courses

Each drug store in the state will have a supply of blanks so people can register for the first-aid training. Courses will be offered in the neighborhood where people enroll, and will be given at a time most convenient to the majority of registrants.

Governor McKeldin and Mayor D'Alesandro have issued proclamations urging citizens to cooperate with this program and learn first-aid methods.

Pupils increase at school for the blind

The Maryland School for the Blind will open on Monday, Sept. 14th, with an enrollment of 175 pupils.

This school, like many others, is beginning to feel the increase of pupil population. The increase in blindness is causing great concern to workers in the field of special education.

Ordinarily one might expect eight to ten children in the kindergarten. However, this year there will be seventeen. This group is an indication of the increase in blindness throughout the state.

Offers Full Course

The school is beginning its 101st year of service. It offers a full course of study from kindergarten through high school, following closely the curriculum of the pub elisc h atsipoolsuphse the public schools as the pupils in the eleventh and twelfth grade attend the public high schools of the city.

The five students who graduated last year are continuing their education by going on to college. Francis M. Andrews is superintendent of the school.

Badly burned young girl faces surgery

Children playing with matches in near-tragic mishap

A 4-year-old girl was turned into a human torch Wednesday morning while playing with a small playmate armed with a box of matches.

The child, Grace Day of the 700 block N. Fulton ave., was playing in the back yard at her home with her 5-year-old brother, Harold, and a neighboring boy who had the matches when her clothing were reportedly set on fire.

Harold dashed into the house to warn his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Day, and Grace ran in behind him, her dress a blaze. Grace collapsed in the hallway and her mother beat out the flames, burning her own hands.

The child was taken in an ambulance to Franklin Square hospital where she was treated for first and second degree burns of the body and released for lack of bed space, relatives said.

Hospital Delay

Further attempts to get the child admitted to a city hospital apparently became entangled in administrative red tape until Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Day was successful in getting Grace into Provident hospital with the aid of Dr. G. Franklin Phillips.

Meanwhile, the child, her entire body swathed in bandages with the exception of her face and right arm and leg, was due to receive surgery Friday.

Mrs. Day, formerly on relief and now a waitress, attempted Wednesday to arrange for financial assistance through the Department of Public Welfare, but was told she would have to wait until Monday, she said.

The family moved into their Fulton ave. home Saturday from the 600 block of N. Carey st.

Mother of 6 collects $200

Top Dilly winner thrilled by luck

"My luck is changing for the better now," exclaimed Mrs. Helen Serisis, mother of six youngsters, as she cashed in a $200 AFRO Dilly Dollar this week.

She was referring to the recent family tragedy in which she lost two sisters at the same time. One was killed in an auto accident upon leaving the funeral bier of another.

Mrs. Serisis, who lives at 466 Cummings ct. in the McCulloh Homes was among 17 AFRO readers who redeemed Dillies this week.

The Rev. W. N. Edwards, veteran AME minister, was a $100 winner.

Thrilled By Fortune

Separated from her husband, Mrs. Serisis was thrilled by her good fortune in finding $200 Dilly No. S 85 473 421 G since she intends to buy clothing for the children.

The youngsters are Richard, 14; Mary Agnes, 11; James, 10; Frances, 6; Sharon Lee, 4, and Jacqueline, 2.

The mother said "My 14-year-old son was cooking when I started checking my bills against the AFRO list. When I found out how much this one was worth, I shouted 'I've got it, I've got it!'

School sabotage Investigated

Police are investigating the sabotage which occurred at Booker T. Washington Junior High school Wednesday night.

According to reports, an unknown person entered the school's new auditorium, cut a large piece out of the stage curtain and walked off with the microphone.

John Cotton, principal, told the AFRO, Thursday, that he had no idea how the entry was made as there were no broken windows and the locks on the doors had not been tampered with.

Carolyn Fauntleroy, 11, 1900 block Harlem ave., pupil at the school, told the AFRO that the hole in the curtain measured at least two yards square.

The cost of the damages had not been estimated at press time.

Barmaid's death remains mystery

New theory says killer may have been woman

By LOUIE ROBINSON

The killer of Emily Friday may have been a man, a woman, or one accompanied by the other.

The possibility that it may have been a woman is strong.

The probable motive was passion—perhaps jealousy — but almost certainly passion in some form.

These are the latest theories of investigators in the death of the 34-year-old barmaid whose life was squeezed from her body early on the morning of Sept. 9.

She met death between 1:30 and 2:30 a.m., within an hour after she left work at the corner of Lafayette and Pennsylvania aves. and started for her home in the 1100 block of Lafayette ave.

She died from strangulation at the hands of an assailant who apparently accosted her on the sidewalk near her home, half dragged her to a rear yard, and there choked her to death.

The killer—or an accomplice—returned to the scene minutes later, stripped most of the clothing

Dr. Harrison Bryant is pastor of Bethel AME church.

The Rev. J. Archibald Carey, Chicago alderman and U.S. delegate to the United Nations, will be the principal speaker at an NAACP membership meeting, Sunday, Sept. 27, at 3 p.m., at Bethel AME church, Lanvale st. and Druid Hill ave.

Mr. Carey, a dynamic speaker, is widely known throughout the country as an orator and as an AME minister. During the presidential campaign he spoke in many cities on behalf of President Eisenhower.

The NAACP meeting will also be addressed by Miss Mildred Bond, the NAACP field secretary, who is directing the Baltimore membership drive this year.

Music for the affair will be supplied by the Town Choir under the direction of William Wright.

To See Plaque

In addition the plaque dedicated to the memory of Bishop Sampson Brooks and John H. Murphy Sr. will be open to public view in the church vestibule.

Bishop Brooks was the Bethel pastor who freed the church of a $55,000 debt and Mr. Murphy was instrumental in getting the minister to Baltimore.

The plaques were presented to the church earlier this year by the Sampson Brooks Sunshine Circle and the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers.
