Political Talk Here and There.

Under the above heading the Baltimore City News said last Saturday evening:

"Shocking? Well, that's hardly the word.

"Year in and year out that old Democratic county 'machine' claimed the city's support and got it. The idea that it was under any obligations to the city for the favor conferred has long since been dissipated. Indeed, it has become the custom to complain about it. Carrying the 'bad city politicians' was such a load that the 'good county politicians' almost had their backs broken.

"Now it's all over and done with. The 'bad city politicians' have quit them. They are out in the open for Blair Lee as their choice for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination and the Montgomery man has given no sign of acute distress over the circumstances.

"The 'good county politicians' should, it seems, be happy. Unless violent expressions of dissatisfaction can be accepted as an evidence of joy, they are not. They bitterly complain and they threaten.

"What can be done to please them?

"Was the Mayor too sudden?

"Congressman Linthicum saw him. 'See what Senator Smith will do for you,' was the trend of the Mayor's advice. Linthicum did, and the result of the interview was politically disagreeable.

"'Biff,' and it was over. Thirty minutes later the city was back of Lee.

"That's not the way politics usually moves. Senator Smith's friends think that the Mayor should at least have given him a chance to tell the Mayor a thing or two. But he didn't.

"When dealing with the Mayor the politicians must learn to accept a prompt reply. It's a way he has that seems to take well here in Baltimore. In fact, 15 minutes is all the Mayor really needs in picking a Gubernatorial candidate. He could select a Presidential one in 30.

"If Lee wins, what then?

"Well, in announcing his candidacy the Montgomery man said he would strive to unite his party. That can only mean fair play for everyone, with no old scores to settle.

"But, Senator Smith? Well, he is still in the Senate, and safe there for six years. As a political leader he will, no doubt, suffer. But that's what always happens. Few are so fortunate as to keep on being the 'boss' until the end of their days."

RING-LIKE INCONSISTENCY.

Funny things happen in politics; for instance, the Kent News, of Chestertown, appeals to the people of that county to support Comptroller Harrington for Governor, because he is a home man. In the same issue it favors the selection of Hugh M. McMullen, of Cumberland, for Comptroller, as against W. B. Copper, of Chestertown, a fellow-townsman. Mr. Copper's long experience in financial matters would make him a most desirable man for the position; one who can bring actual, practical experience to the office.—Cambridge Record.
