'Hold fast to good' advice of follower of Jehovah

"Try all things and hold fast to that which is good."

This, in a nutshell, is the philosophy of Jesse Drake, a Jehovah's Witness, who has been a Baptist, a Methodist and a believer in Mohammed.

During his spare time, Mr. Drake stands in the Bel Air market section, dispensing literature and information about the Witnesses. Though he will let you have a book for a small sum, he is quick to explain that he is "not a salesman, but a minister."

At it 26 Years

Mr. Drake has been doing this work since 1927. He says his religion "announces God's Kingdom" and that he joined the sect after being invited to attend a meeting.

"We constitute the Christ," Mr Drake says. "Christ followed in his father's footsteps and told the world: 'I came to do my Father's work.'"

A native of Dillon, S.C., Mr. Drake said that he was unable to write when he joined the Jehovah's Witness sect, but has since learned how. He has worked for private families in Baltimore, and is now employed by a N. Charles st. publishing firm.

Methodist church guilds to observe communion

The Rachael Taylor Wesleyan Service Guild of Metropolitan Methodist church will observe world - wide communion Sunday by a joint communion service with the E. S. Williams Guild.

The two guilds will have as their special guest the Isradell B. Williams Wesleyan Service Guild of Sharp St. Memorial Methodist church.

The service opens guild activities for "Guild Month." Among the events planned by the Rachel Taylor Guild are:

A visit to the N. M. Carroll Home for the Aged; a hymn-ology and dramatization on Oct. 25 at 8 p.m. "avorite hymns from the Methodist hymnal will be discussed, and dramatic skits depicting significant events in their lives will be presented by guilders.

The group will participate in the church school harvest festival and will pay floral tribute to Mrs. Rachel Taylor.

Mrs. Genevieve Carrington is president of the Rachael Taylor Guild. Mrs. Margaret Nicholson is president of the E. S. Williams Guild, and Mrs. Sarah Rayne of the Iradell B. Williams Guild.

SINGING IN THE CHAPEL:

Marshall to headline in brotherhood's recital

NEW YORK — A number of leading artists are lined up to appear in the seventh annual concert sponsored by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, St. Martin and St. Luke Episcopal churches on Sunday, Oct. 25, at Hunter college.

Among the stars to appear are:

William Marshall, outstanding young reader, is scheduled to appear and give dramatic selections from Shakespeare's "Othello."

He began his career in 1944 as a singer with the Billy Rose extravaganza, "Carmen Jones." Seven years later he played the role of "The Lawd" in the revival of Marc Connelly's "Green Pastures."

Seen On Broadway

From 1945-1950 he appeared in "Jeb," "Call Me Mister," "Lost In the Stars" and "Peter Pan."

For a time he appeared as proxy for Boris Karloff by playing "Captain Hook" opposite Jean Arthur's "Peter."

He recently created the character of the Haitian patriot, King Dick in the movie version of "Lydia Bailey," and has just completed the role of Glycon, the giant, in the movie "The Gladiator," co-starred with Victor Mature and Susan Hayward.

Concert Pianist

Irene Inniss Bailey, pianist, well known on the New York concert stage, is slated to render "The Dancers in the Patio" and "Polonaise No. 12."

She made a successful appearance in a recital given at Times Hall of which a music critic wrote, "Miss Bailey has nearly all the endowments of the true artist, feeling, imagination, musical understanding, a sense of beauty and reverent approach."

In private life she is married to Ben Bailey, a prominent figure in Harlem.

Miss Flowers Listed

Martha Flowers Anderson, soprano, who will sing the Aria and Finale from Stravinky's "The Rake's Progress," is no stranger to Broadway and Harlem audiences.

She is a winner of the coveted Marion Anderson award and a last year recipient of a John Hay Whitney Fellowship.

She made her Broadway debut in 1952 when she played a leading role in the Virgil Thompson-Gertrude Stein opera, "Four Saints in Three Acts." She later went with the company to Paris.

Native Of Virginia

A native of Richmond, Va., and graduate of Fisk university, Nashville, Tenn., Miss Flowers recently returned from the Aspen Institute and Musical Festival, Aspen, Colo.

Roy Williams, trumpeter, will present Delibes' "Fizziccati—Ballet Sylvia" and Marshall's "I Hear You Calling Me" during the performance.

Luther Saxon, tenor will render Lalo's "Aubade-Serenade from Le Roi D'Y." He made his Broadway debut in the original production of "Carmen Jones," sang at Town Hall and is currently touring with the De Paur Infantry Chorus as tenor soloist.

Musical director will be William L. King, organist at St. Martin's church.

Mr. King was at one time accompanist to Marion Anderson and he will lead the combined choirs in their renditions of Bach's "O Rejoice, Ye Christians, Loudly" and O'Hara's "One World."

Albert Branch, carillonneur and assistant organist at St. Martin's, will play the organ accompaniments.

Mr. Branch recently received nation-wide praise for his organ accompaniments during the Harlem production of "Tapestry of the Rose," given in honor of Queen Elizabeth's coronation.

Boy, 14, trips up burglary suspect

An alert, 14-year-old youngster was credited Tuesday with leading police to the arrest of a burglary suspect.

The youngster, James Hebb of the 1500 block W. Fremont ave., testified in Northwestern police court that he saw James Harris 20, also of the 1500 block, remove a television set from the home of a neighbor and get into a cab.

James took down the number of the taxi and told his sister. The information was relayed to Detective Sgt. James Butler and Detectives Lloyd Johnson and John Colligny, who found the cab driver and thus traced Harris.

Detective Johnson told Magistrate E. Everett Lane that Harris had admitted taking the TV set and turning it over to another man for $15. The set was not recovered however.

Harris was ordered held for action of the grand jury in $1,000 bail.

SAYS ARGUMENT FAILS:

Cobb differs with VA on need for segregation

WASHINGTON (NNPA) — Dr. W. Montague Cobb, head of the anatomy department in the Howard University medical school, took sharp issue last week with the position of the Veterans' Administration that racial segregation of psychiatric patients is necessary for their medical well-being.

In a letter to H. V. Higley, administrator of veterans' affairs, Dr. Cobb declared that the same objection was put forward against integrating "mentally fit" young men in the military services and "the argument fails for the same reasons demonstrated by the actual success of integration in the Armed Forces."

Dr. Cobb had been asked by Clarence Mitchell, head of the Washington bureau of the NAACP, to comment on a letter Mr. Higley had sent him.

Mr. Higley had written Mr. Mitchell that the VA found any degree of segregation "unusual, uneconomical and undesirable" and hoped for the removal of all semblance of segregation in VA hospitals.

The VA Administrator added, however, that clashes and flare-ups which are detrimental to the well-being of patients and may even be dangerous to their persons."

The VA Administrator added, however, that segregation is an essential precaution "to avoid clashes and flare-ups which are detrimental to the well-being of patients and may even be dangerous to their persons."

Dr. Cobb pointed out that facilities for the care of mental patients in New York and Massachusetts, which have long been leaders in providing such care, are not segregated, although the patients consist not only of the so - called racial groups but many other cultural and ethnic groups.

St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington and Johns Kopkins in Baltimore—both in southern localities — have integrated group classes for mental patients, which are being successfully operated, he said.

'Integration Works'

"In short, the integrated mental hospital 'works,'" Dr. Cobb wrote Mr. Higley, adding:

"Where hostility is expressed in racial attitudes, treatment on an individual basis may be indicated, and this modern psychiatry is competent to afford.

"It must be recognized that administrative reluctance to abolish segregation in mental hospitals is due in large measure to anxiety over the possibility that something 'might' happen. Such anxiety is not peculiar to administrators of mental hospitals, nor is fear of racial disturbance its only cause.

"In a system of hospitals under authority, like that of the Veterans Administration, it is a simple matter to enunciate by directive a policy of non-segregation which will permit area and local administrators reasonable latitude for variation in their means of putting the policy into effect in adjustment to specific institutional circumstances," he added.

Rev. Harold Roland opens NCC services

DURHAM, N.C. — The Rev. Harold Roland, pastor of the Mount Gilead Baptist church of Durham, will open North Carolina college's October vesper services with a sermon in Duke auditorium, Oct. 4.

Howard fire out when firemen come

WASHINGTON

The Fire Department responded in heavy numbers to a single alarm fire at Howard University, Wednesday, only to find that the fire was out, and the excitement was over.

Four engine companies, two truck companies, one fire chief, and a rescue squad raced up to Howard to put out the single little alcohol lamp that exploded in room 206 of the gymnasium.

Ernest Goodman of the public relations department of Howard University, revealed that the lamp, when ignited, spouted a blue flame used for sterilizing medical supplies. The room was used as the University Health Service center.

No Damages

Both Mr. Goodman and Sgt. J. H. Robinson of the fire department reported that there had been no damages, and no injuries.

However, Mr. Goodman stated that the some medicine and gauze had been burned. He said that the blaze from the lamp had been smothered prior to the arrival of the fire department.

"The firemen were summoned as a precautionary measure," Mr. Goodman declared.

Humphrey urges probe of Army post school JC

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) last week made public a letter he had written to President Eisenhower recently urging an investigation of "patterns of segregation" in schools on military posts, with special emphasis on Fort Belvoir, Va., and Fort Hood, Texas.

In his letter, the Senator lamented the fact that the Department of Defense had postponed action on the President's decision aimed at ending racial segregation at all military posts where state funds are used.

Stating that he joined millions of Americans who hailed the Administration's anti - segregation policy when it was announced a few months ago, Senator Humphrey said the news that the Department of Defense would wait until 1955 to end segregation was highly disappointing.

Cites Fort Benning

The lawmaker pointed to Fort Benning, Ga., where interracial schools exist and stated there is no reason why this record cannot take place on every military post within the jurisdiction of the United States.

"It has come to my attention," he said, "that patterns of racial segregation are being strengthened at Fort Belvoir and Fort Hood with the co-operation of military officials at these posts.

"This calls for a complete investigation and I urge you (Mr. Eisenhower) to institute it so that your directive may be carried out."

Friends stage pistol battle

Two men who fussed aside their 20-year friendship in the heat of a gambling argument and engaged in a half-hearted pistol duel were fined and given suspended jail sentences in Northwestern police court Wednesday.

McKinley Richardson, 27, 1900 block Longwood st., and Charles Dixon, 30, 1200 block Myrtle ave., admitted that they argued earlier in the day over splitting gambling winnings, as was their custom.

Standing at the corner of Edmondson ave and Calhoun st., both men suddenly whipped out pistols and began firing as they darted behind opposite ends of an automobile. Richardson fired shots at the ground. Dixon didn't recall where he had aimed. Neither man was hit.

Their battle was halted by Officer Francis Miller, who was near the scene.

Neither man could tell Magistrate E. Everett Lane just who pulled a gun first or how many shots were fired.

Both were given 90-day suspended jail sentences and fined $100 and costs for carrying deadly weapons, and given suspended $50 for shooting at each other.

Florida couple held in numbers racket

LEESBURG, Fla. — Hazel (Honey) Rines and his wife, Daisy, are free under $1,000 bond each, having been arrested and charged with operating a numbers racket in the country.

Sheriff Willis McCall, who made the arrest, said he had seized grocery pads used to record the "numbers" and four cigar boxes containing a total of $115.22 in cash.
