Housing Agency doing big business

The City Housing Rent Commission released this week some surprising figures showing it has been doing a land office business since taking over local rent controls. The organization has been in operation since August 1, when federal controls expired.

Consistent with expectations the biggest task of the Commission office is the handling of landlords' petitions for rent increases.

A literal avalanche of petitions—more than 2800—has been received, and because an additional several hundred were carried over from the federal office, processing is running between five and six weeks behind.

Nearly 600 petitions are on file, waiting to be worked.

2,000 Rent Increases

On the other side of the ledger, however, are figures showing over 2,100 rent decreases approved and something less than 165 denied.

Reason for the unusually low number of denials, according to Commission Chairman John A. DeWicki, is the policy of discouraging landlords in filling requests until they can show definite cause for increases.

Among such reasons are major repairs and capital improvements, and addition of equipmentp or services to the property.

Further indication of work volume is the "appeal hearing" calendar which is filled through the fourth week of this month.

In such cases, landlords or tenants, appealing decisions made by the office, are heard before the three-man Rent Commission, consisting of Chairman DeWicki and associates Albert A. Levin and James W. Scheide.

Often times, as a result of the hearing, inspections of properties and dwellings are carried out by the Commission.

Beehive Of Activity

That the Commission office has been a beehive of activity is reflected in the total of 1,738 interviews and more than 2,100 telephone inquires in the month of October alone.

The local group is handling two-thirds of the work load formerly attended by the federal office, which covered all of Maryland and parts of Virginia.

Tenant's complaints, which often result in hearings, cover a wide variety of subjects. More than 300 written complaints have already been received and investigated.

Evictions cases and decontrol approvals are just about equal, approximately 125 of each having been handled.

120-Day Notice

Some reasons for eviction accepted by the Commission are owner self-occupancy, or major renovations. Non-payment of rent and other violations of tenancy are handled in People's Court. In all Commission evictions, 120-day notice to vacate is required.

With the housing shortage showing little improvement, prospects of the Commission office's work load decreasing aren't very bright.

Anyone living within the city limits desiring counsel on rent problems is invited to seek aid located on the second floor of the former People's Court Building, Market Place.

Man, wife ignored city code, housing court says

Charged with violating a city code by failing to take precautionary steps against the possibility of fire in their home in the 1200 block Washington st., Mr and Mrs. Dennis Baycoat were ordered to appear for a hearing in Housing Court Tuesday.

Before Magistrate Helen Brown both pleaded not guilty to a charge by Fight Blight authorities, that there had been undue delay on their part in necessary repairs in their home.

According to the Housing authority group, the Baycoat's were told three months ago a certain amount of plaster work would have to be done in their house.

In addition they were told that a number of windows would have to be replaced, putty placed in others, and at least two doors repaired.

Failed To Answer Notice

After partially complying with the request a Fight Blight investigator reported, the couple failed to answer two notices which requested that they appear before authorities for an explanation.

The explanation was called for, he stated, because repair work on the house had stopped completely, and authorities were never given a second opportunity to conduct a thorough investigation of the premises.

Neither the husband nor the wife bothered to show up at the Pilot House office to complete arrangements for financial assistance he declared.

Mrs. Baycoat stated that she never received any letters from the agency, and had already done all that she possibly could in the way of cooperation.

The court ordered the Baycoat's to attend a conference scheduled by the bureau for Thursday.

Legionnaires set Legion Week

Local Legionnaires announced today the period of Nov. 11 to Nov. 26, will be observed here as "American Legion Weeks."

Commander James A. Hubbard of the Robert H. Brooks Post No. 165 of Baltimore, Maryland said:

"Starting on Armistice Day and ending on Thanksgiving Day, our Post will emphasize in every way the contribution made by the American Legion to the community, state and nation.

"It will be part of a nation-wide observance shared in by 17,250 American Legion Posts."

Community Drive

An important phase of "AL WEEKS" will be a community drive for new and renewal memberships in the local American Legion Post according to Commander Hubbard.

"Knock on every door for '54' is the slogan of our membership teams," the commander said. "We will invite all honorable discharged veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict to join the American Legion."

Prominent Legionnaires will speak before local civic and luncheon groups during "AL WEEKS."

Lyric drops ban on Miss Anderson

Singer to appear in concert for Fellowship House

The management of the Lyric Theatre decided Thursday afternoon to permit sponsors of a concert featuring Miss Marian Anderson to rent the theatre for an engagement January 8, 1954.

The action ended a controversy which spread nationwide in September after the theatre refused to book Miss Anderson under the sponsorship of the Baltimore Fellowship House.

The Lyric's policy has been to bar colored artists from appearing on its stage although audiences attending shows there are unsegregated.

Three - Page Statement

In a three-page statement issued Thursday by Frederick R. Huber, manager of the Lyric Theatre, the management stated that it would "in this instance . . . adopt a more flexible policy."

The noted contralto will appear, the management declared, "in deference to the earnest requests which it has received from some of its stockholders and patrons."

Neither Mr. Huber nor R. E. Lee Marshall, counsel for the theatre; would say whether the "flexible policy" adopted in the case of Miss Anderson would become a permanent one.

"It's all in the statement," said Mr. Huber when an AFRO reporter attempted to question him on the matter.

"The statement speaks for itself," said Mr. Marshall.

Avoid "Racial Tensions"

The statement emphasizes that the "restriction of the stage of the Lyric to white artists and white casts is in line with the policy of the management to screen the theatre against productions which would, or might, give rise to racial tensions."

"Whether or not this policy can be abandoned in favor of an unrestricted rental policy is, at least, a doubtful question at the moment," it continued.

According to the Lyric management, "the evidence is inconclusive that such a change would promote a spirit of interracial unity or result in good to anyone concerned — the

Fellowship House 'gratified' over Lyric's policy move

Dr. John L. Tilley, chairman of the board of managers of the Baltimore Fellowship House and pastor of the New Metropolitan Baptist church, and Mrs. Mae Gellman, Fellowship executive director, issued the following statement on the relaxation of the Lyric Theatre racial policy:

"We, the representatives of Fellowship, are gratified on learning that the Board of Managers of the Lyric Theatre has reconsidered our request to present Marian Anderson at the Lyric Theatre on Jan. 8, 1954.

"The Lyric Board of Managers has made a forward step in making available to the Baltimore community the best in cultural experiences in keeping with the high musical standards and tradition of the Lyric Theatre."

Medic accuses ex-manager

Police can't find Miss Rose Davis

Dr. Evan A. Gilkes, 70 N. Gilmor st., was back in court, this week, detouring, however, from the rocky road of marital troubles to a side street of business ills.

The physician took out a summons in Northwestern police station, Tuesday, against Miss Rose M. Davis, until recently manager of the Dr. Gilkes Gilkes beauty enterprises.

Dr. Gilkes charges that his erstwhile top employee backed a truck up to two of his Houses of Beauty and loaded it with equipment from his shops.

Shops Minus Operators

He did not charge in the summons that Miss Davis also took staff members of the two swank shops with her, but patrons present for appointments, Monday, found both the Pennsylvania ave. and Edmondson ave. beauty shops without operators. A check on Thursday, however, found the shops open, with new operators.

Magistrate E. Everett Lane, of Northwestern station, has scheduled a hearing in the case for Nov. 16, if by that time Miss Davis is located.

Officers seeking to serve the summons on Tuesday found her apartment in the Gilkes - owned building at 1316 Edmondson ave. without its tenant.

Friendship Ends

The Gilkes - Davis friendship and business partnership, according to friends, ended suddenly Friday night, when the physician made a surprise visit to her apartment.

This week's disturbance followed rapidly upon the heels of the divorce suit filed by Mrs. Emma Gilkes of the N. Gilmor st. address, who has charged

Court of Appeals to get taxi case

Race prejudice among jurors will be aired next month

The effect of race prejudice among jurors trying a criminal case dealing with colored and white principals will be aired in the Maryland Court of Appeals next month.

The airing will take place as defense lawyers appeal the $25 fines imposed on the two social workers involved in the Christmas Day taxicab disturbance at the Pennsylvania railroad station.

Principals in the case are Mrs. Ellen Williams, clerk in the Veterans Administration office in Washington; and Miss Elizabeth V. Jones, social worker in the welfare department in Washington.

Hails Taxi Driver

Arriving in Baltimore to have Christmas dinner with their families, the women were arrested for disturbing the peace at the station when they refused to get out of a taxi whose driver did not want to transport them to their homes.

In Criminal Court on June 10, Miss Jones was found not guilty of disturbing the peace, but was fined $25 and costs for assault on a woman matron at the Pine st. station where she was taken from the railroad station.

Her case was heard on March 9 by Judge James K. Cullen sitting without a jury. But he had withheld his verdict pending the outcome of the case against Mrs. Williams who had asked for a jury trial.

Jury Misconduct Cited

On March 30-31, Mrs. Williams was tried by a jury which found her guilty of assaulting an officer and of disturbing the peace. The Supreme Bench later upheld the assault conviction, but ordered a new trial of the peace - disturbance case.

The state then withdrew the latter charge, leaving only the assault conviction for which Mrs. Williams too was fined $25.

In the meantime, Carl J. Muth, one of the jurors who had convicted Mrs. Williams gave her lawyers an affidavit declaring that he was coerced into voting against her by prejudiced fellow jurors who called him a "n - - - - r lover."

Questions Raised

In arguing the case before the Court of Appeals, Mrs. Juanita J. Mitchell and W. A. C. Hughes Jr., defense attorneys, will raise the following questions:

1. Can a charge of assault upon an officer be sustained where the initial arrest on a charge of disturbing the peace

That's Arant's 1953 DeSoto which overturned. Pendleton, whose car was smashed in front, was charged with reckless driving.

George West, 'missing in Korea' named 1st lieutenant in absentia

In an action regarded as unprecedented here, an officer in the U.S. Army was promoted from second to first lieutenant, by order of the President, although no word has been heard from him by Army officials or his Baltimore family during the year he has been carried on the rolls as "missing in action."

He is Lt. E. George West of 814 Peach Orchard ln., Turner Station, who went into combat within a week after being sent to Korea, and who was reported as "missing" near Choom-ni, N. Korea, on Nov. 8, 1952.

Last week, E. George West Sr.'s family received word from the War Department that their son had been promoted to first lieutenant on Nov. 5, 1953, although he was still carried on their rolls as "Missing." The citation said that his status was "presumably alive" and that the promotion was made because of his "devotion to duty."

30,000 traffic ticket dodgers face arrest

More than 30,000 persons holding overdue traffic tickets, face arrest or suspension of their driving privileges.

This decision followed a high-level meeting of traffic and police authorities, Wednesday morning.

Wednesday and Thursday traffic clerks were working overtime in an effort to process delinquent traffic tickets which had gathered dust in the files over a two-year period.

Present at Wednesday's meeting, presided over by Attorney General Edward D. Rollins, was Police Commissioner Beverly Ober, Chief Traffic Court Magistrate Stanley Scherr, Major Dana Rudy, deputy commissioner of motor vehicles, and Henry A. Barnes, Baltimore traffic director.

AFRO theatrical editor improves

AFRO theatrical editor E. B. Rea, confined at Provident Hospital since November 6, was reported slightly improved by members of his family on Thursday.

Mr. Rea was stricken with a cold on Oct. 29, and was required to remain away from the office. During his week's stay at his home, however, his condition worsened and hospitalization was advised by his physician.

Equipment from Dixon estate sold at auction

On orders from the Orphans Court of Baltimore, more than $6,000 worth of beauty shop equipment from the estate of the late Mrs. Blanche V. Dixon was sold at a public auction Tuesday.

Former owner of the La Blanche Beauty Shop in the 1500 block Pennsylvania ave., Mrs. Dixon died last August at her home in the 2200 block Bryant ave.

More than 30 persons were on hand to bid for the more than 45 pieces of equipment which included three permanent waving machines, five dryers, and nine booths.

Also, nine stools, eight armchairs, a six piece chrome set, three shoe cases, 12 tables and chairs, a safe, and 18 cabinets.

On Cash Basis

The auction was conducted on a cash basis by the A. J. Billig co. The administrator for the Dixon estate was the law firm of Wolfe and Wolfe.

A native of Baltimore, Mrs. Dixon at one time owned shops on Druid Hill ave., Harlem ave. and two on Pennsylvania ave. She was the divorced wife of William B. Dixon local real estate dealer.

Daughter of the Howard Finks, Mrs. Dixon had retired from active work before her death although the shops remained open under her supervision.

For more than 20 years she was recognized as one of the city's leading businesswomen.

'DID IT ALL FOR LOVE':

Mother's suitor held for kidnapping girl 13

WASHINGTON

The alleged kidnaping of a 13-year-old Bundy Elementary school pupil by her mother's suitor, was charged to "love" by the defendant's attorney in Municipal Court, Wednesday.

"He loved her like he'd love his own child," Eugene J. Schubert, attorney for Haywood Ruffin, pleaded before Judge Edward A. Beard in an effort to have bond for the defendant reduced.

Mr. Ruffin, 31, a dry-wall finisher, of the 300 block Seaton pl., nw, was arrested Tuesday night in the abduction of little Patricia A. Hammond, Monday night from the 1800 block Fourth st., nw, where she lived with an aunt. He was held under $10,000 bond and the case continued until Friday (today).

Supported Child

Although the defendant did not testify, his attorney asserted that Mr. Ruffin had been supporting the child, Patricia.

"He had been giving her food, clothing, and taking her to the movies. He always treated her as if she were his own," Mr. Schubert asserted.

According to the attorney, Mr. Ruffin had lived with the child's mother, Mrs. Mary Hammond, for some time, until the mother

'Baby X' search enters 23rd day

An "extensive investigation" into the disappearance of "Baby X," the four-week-old infant reported stolen from his 13-year-old mother 23 days ago continues, Baltimore police announced Friday.

Named "Baby X" because the name of the teenage mother cannot be published, the baby boy was taken from his mother's home in the 500 block Gilmor st., on Oct. 22.

Since his disappearance, no trace has been found of the baby nor the attractive woman who took him while posing as a social worker.

At one time it was stated that the search for the infant had spread to at least two states. Police, however, declined Friday to say whether or not the FBI had been called in on the case.

$5,771 in fines paid at NW court in Oct.

In their quarterly report to the city treasurer this week, the Northwestern District police court reported $5,771 was collected in fines between Oct. 5-31.

The total, the report stated, topped all previous records. Within the same period 254 cases were heard by presiding Magistrate E. Everett Lane.

Ernest H. Hays, choirmaster, dies

Funeral services for Ernest H. Hays, former acting director of music at Hampton Institute in Virginia, will be held at Sharp Street Memorial church Saturday at 1 p.m.

The son of the late Rev. and Mrs. Daniel S. Hays, former pastor of Sharp Street, Mr. Hays died Nov. 9 at the Fort Howard Veterans Hospital.

Mr. Hays was appointed to the staff at Hampton in 1923 and retired in 1950. While there, he contributed to the career of concert singer Dorothy Maynor. At Hampton he served as organist, assistant choirmaster, and head choirmaster.

He received his early professional training at the New England Conservatory of Music and was awarded his bachelor of music degree at Boston university.

Mr. Hays received his music supervisor's certificate from Boston U, and gained admittance to the American Guild of Organists.

He also studied at Eastman School of Music, Harvard, New York university, and Westminster College.

He was a member of the National Conference of Music Educators, the National Association of Music Teachers, the National Guild of Piano Teachers, and the Tidewater Musicians Guild.

Mr. Hays is survived by two brothers, William S. and Dr. Clarence A. Hays; two sisters, Miss Ella G. Hays and Mrs. Fannie H. Hall; and four nephews, Charles, John, William, and Daniel Hays. Interment will be in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Grand masters in 9 states take action

Ban placed on high potentate who ousted women

Grand masters from nine states, in session at Tulsa, Oklahoma last month agreed to direct their members to have no further participation in the national affairs of the Shrine Order. (Ancient Egyptian Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine).

Grand Master Willard W. Allen of Maryland, now en route home from Hot Springs, Arkansas, told the AFRO he had attended the conference of grand masters and had signed the order for the state of Maryland on October 30.

First announcement to this effect came in Oklahoma where Amos T. Hall is grand master of the Prince Hall Grand Lodge of the state.

Action of the grand masters followed quickly upon a communication sent out by Ramond E. Jackson, imperial potentate of the Shrine, on October 19, ordering the Shriners, make organization to have no further contact with the Daughters of Isis (the female branch of the Shrine organization).

The order advised the Shrine (the men) that the women's branch had been ordered to cease all operations.

Dispute between the male and female branches of the Shrine arose over assessment of taxes and the right of the women to handle their own finances.

Signed By Allen

Action of the nine grand masters, forbidding the Masons in their several states from having anything to do with the National Shrine, followed.

Grand Master Allen said "Our Shrine women are members of
