Army says it's 'helpless' about school

WASHINGTON

Pentagon spokesmen said Monday that the Defense Department is "helpless" to do anything about the situation which has colored school pupils from Fort Belvoir, Va. attending the jim-crow Drew Smith Elementary school at Gum Springs, Va., in Fairfax County.

A Fort Belvoir spokesman told the AFRO on Tuesday that Fairfax County school officials made arrangements last summer for the pupils to attend the school at Gum Springs.

Meanwhile, it was reported, children of white service men at Fort Belvoir have not only the well-equipped building which they formerly attended, but a brand-new building as well.

Target Date In 1955

The jim-crow school, Pentagon spokesmen said, is operated by the Virginia State Board of Education and it is off limits to Fort Belvoir installation. Miss Alice A. Williams is instruction supervisor of the school. Last week the school received several gifts from the commanding general of Fort Belvoir, Maj. Gen. L. Scott.

However, the Pentagon said that target date for the complete ending of all segregated facilities on all defense installations, regardless of by whom they are operated, is Sept. 1955. In conjunction with the U.S. Office of Education, the Defense Department is making plans for this date.

The ultimatum has already been given, the Pentagon said, and boards of education, regardless of where they are, must conform to the new program as of Sept., 1955. But for now, there is nothing to be done about the Gum Springs situation, they say.

At the White House a spokesman in Press Secretary James Hagerty's office said that it was understood that the target date had had to be set because of "problems of school management and construction," but that this does not preclude completing integration before that time if it is possible.

X-rays provided for 13,000 pupils

Christmas Seals are helping make possible free chest X-rays for 13,000 students in 17 public schools during the fall months.

As part of the year-round tuberculosis detection program conducted by the city health department with the assistance of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, points from the following schools will be X-rayed:

Douglass high school, Coppin State Teachers college, Dunbar high school, Carver vocational school, Schools No. 452, 131, 122, 106, 121, 129, 130, 451, 130A, 107, 138, and 137.

The 1953 Christmas seal sale will begin on Monday, Nov. 16th and continue through Christmas Day to raise funds for the year-round tuberculosis control program.

This includes: education and information about TB, medical research, tuberculosis detection, and rehabilitation services to tuberculosis patients is convalescing at his home, 3784 Hayes st., ne, this week.
