Careless workman causes Mt. Winans burglary scare

A workman who carelessly left a ladder leaning against a Mt. Winans school caused a burglary scare in that area, Tuesday night.

Radio patrolmen in car No. 7 were cruising past School No. 156, Harman and Puget sts., when they spied the ladder leaning against a wall.

Thinking a burglar had used the ladder to gain entrance to the new $600,000 school, Patrolmen Thomas J. Neenan and Joseph Murphy climbed the ladder to the roof.

When the policemen found a skylight leading to a supply room was open, Patrolmen Neenan stood guard while Patrolman Murphy called for assistance.

When police found nobody in the building after a search, Mrs. Lillian Martin, first grade teacher, who lives in Mt. Winans at 21 Puget st., was brought to the school to determine whether anything had been stolen.

Mrs. Martin was not able to find anything missing. Mrs. Blanche Powell, school principal, soon arrived at the scene and after a thorough search declared nothing had been touched.

Police continued their investigation, however, and after questioning workmen putting finishing touches on the school learned that one of the men had left the ladder against the building after washing some bricks.

Elk ruler sets up 5-point plan

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — In an exclusive interview Grand Exalted Ruler Robert H. Johnson of the Improved Benevolent Protective Order Elks of the World last week revealed that the fraternal organzation is concentrating upon a "five point" program designed to improve greatly the social, health and economic status of the race.

Having gained more than 7,000 members in the past year, the Elk hierarchy is pressing for memberships on the youth as well as adult level.

Emphasis is being placed now upon the calibre of persons inducted into the lodge.

Rural Health is claiming attention from Elkdom, since far too many colored doctors crowd the metropolitan areas and fail to serve rural communities. The plan calls for the establishment of mobile units for x-ray, dental and clinical health purposes in co-operation with local and state health departments.
