HE HAD HIS DAY:

MacPeachie ties up court 5 hours in assault case

McConnell (Mac) Peachie, 39 had his day in criminal court this week, even though he wound up 25 additional years to serve in the state penitentiary.

Convicted on dope and breaking the jaw of a penitentiary guard while serving the first lap of a earlier 10 year-term for violating the narcotics law. Mac seemed to do everything to "get even" with the lawmakers, Wednesday. It took five hours to dispose of his case and as a result eight trials had to be postponed to a later date.

Scheduled for trial in the morning, he raved and ranted during the hearing of another case. "It's murder! It's murder!" he shouted, jumping up and down, waving his hands in the air.

Raved and Rants

"I don't want to go back to the penitentiary, they'll kill me there," he yelled as five guards subdued him and dragged him back to the lockup downstairs.

Judge Joseph L. Carter determined to dispose of the case that day, temporarily postponed the trial until the afternoon.

Under ordinary circumstances Mac would have been tried in the morning and on his way back to the pen by 11 a.m. But Wednesday, he had lunch in the lockup and was back in court at 1:30 p.m.

Demand To See Lawyer

Just as trial was about to get underway, Mac, now handcuffed, jumped up and demanded to discuss the case with his attorney R. Palmer Ingram, who had been appointed by the court.

After 30 minutes of private consultation, Mac claimed he did not want Ingram to represent him, giving no reason, and requested another private consultation with Michael Freedman, attorney, who had just entered the court room on another case.

Twenty minutes later Mac returned with a smile on his face. Still handcuffed and dressed in his prison clothes of blue denim jacket, shirt and trousers, he sat quietly beside Mr. Freedman as Joseph Huber, penitentiary guard, related how Mac had slugged him in the face, breaking his jaw.

Jaw Still Wired

His jaw still wired, Huber testified through closed teeth. Mac, a tubercular patient, had been confined in the disturbance cell because of misconduct in the hospital ward, Huber said.

"On Oct. 12, three officers took him to give him a bath and as he was coming out of the room, he swung at me," the guard testified.

Taking the witness stand, the handcuffed Mac gave 45 minutes of uninterrupted testimony, telling how "the warden and the guards are trying to run him crazy."

He accused the guard of attempting to poison him, shooting a lim with a gas gun, withholding his mail, forcing him to sleep on concrete bunks and floors and trying to kill him by keeping him on a starch diet.

"Glad I Did It"

He broke into tears as he closed, saying, "Sure I hit Huber. I'm glad I did it and I'll do it again."

Mac had been sentenced to the pen for 10 years in March, 1953 in connection with a dope raid on Madison ave. In June, he was convicted again for obtaining dope from outside contacts. Sentence in this case was postponed until Wednesday.

In disposing of the two cases, Judge Carter gave him 10 years for the assault and 15 years for the narcotics violation.

Mac sneered as he heard the sentence. He had had his day.

Bishop Nichols preaches sermon on Thanksgiving

PRINCETON — A precedent was established here last week when the Rt. Rev. D. Ward Nichols, bishop of the First Episcopal District of the AME church, was guest speaker for the annual Thanksgiving Day service in the Princeton University Chapel.

Heretofore, the annual Thanksgiving sermon was delivered by an outstanding white clergyman.

Bishop Nichols preached on the theme, "A Thankful Heart" before 3,000 students, faculty members, pastors of various denominations and prominent local leaders and citizens.

Presented By Dean

He was introduced by the Rt. Rev. Donald B. Aldrich, dean. The offering was given to Princeton Hospital.

The pastors, choirs and members of the following local churches participated in the service:

First Presbyterian, Mt. Pisgah AME Trinity church, Witherspoon Street Presbyterian, Princeton Methodist, Second Presbyterian and First Baptist.

Bishop's Party

Bishop Nichols was accompanied to Princeton by:

His wife, Mrs. Kay Bailey Nichols; his daughter, Miss Souix Nichols, and the Rev. C. B. Crawford, all of New York City.

Also the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. M. M. Ward of Jersey City; the Rev. and Mrs. L. Matchett of Cranford, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson of Princeton.

AFRO VISITORS — Mrs. Rosa Wallace of 2131 Division st., Baltimore, and the Rev. W. R. Martin of Greenville, S.C., were visitors at the AFRO - AMERICAN plant Wednesday. They were taken on a tour by Miss Bessie Rodgers of the personnel department. The Rev. Mr. Martin is visiting his sister, Mrs. Bernice Garling-ton, 2131 Division st. He is pastor of five churches, in Greenville, and moderator of the Union churches of Greenwood County and treasurer. He delivered an address on Nov. 22 at Trinity Baptist church, 1601 Druid Hill ave.

Link dope sales to two suspects

Two nervous young suspects charged with the illegal possession of heroin were ordered held in $3,000 bail apiece on Tuesday by Magistrate E. Everett Lane in Northwestern police court.

Police identified Joseph Armstrong, 23 of the 1200 block Pennsylvania ave., and Adrian J. Reid, 22, of the 1500 block Leslie st., as the alleged operators of a narcotic dispensing business.

The men were arrested Monday afternoon in the apartment occupied by Armstrong in the Pennsylvania ave. house, located almost directly across the street from Northwestern police station.

Broke Into Apartment

Sgt. Joseph Carroll of the narcotics squad testified that he and another officer broke into the apartment in time to witness Armstrong throw a package containing loose heroin behind the bed, while Reid threw 103 herion capsules under the bed.

Police placed the value of the drug at $900.

Armstrong pleaded guilty to the charge while Reid entered a not guilty plea with the explanation that the drug was not to be sold, but was to be used by himself and Armstrong.

Reid said he had intended to save the drug so he and Armstrong would be assured of having a steady supply, without making contact with narcotics "pushers."

Both defendants appeared nervous as they stood before Magistrate Lane and at one point in the brief hearing, Armstrong rested his head on the bar in front of the magistrate in a weary fashion.

Sgt. Carroll testified that the two men had been under suspicion for several weeks, but that police waited until they were sure the suspects actually had heroin in their possession before they made the arrests.

3 men wounded by shotgun blasts

MECHANICSVILLE, Md. — Two St. Marys county wholesalers who had a bunch burglars would attempt to pilfer their ware house, fired shotgun volleys which wounded three Baltimore men, here, Thursday.

A fourth man is being sought by county and state police.

Under police guard at St. Marys Hospital are:

William M. Holt, 33, 3000 block Lanvale st., shotgun wounds of the leg;

Joseph R. Holt, 42, same address as his brother, shotgun wounds of the head; and William A. Delly, 22, 200 block Myrtle ave., shotgun wounds of back and legs.

Burglarized Twice

The wholesalers, Herbert Wise and Samuel Burch, had been victimized by burglars twice in November. On November 22, nearly $4,000 worth of candy, cigarettes, and nylon hose was taken. On November 30, an additional quanity of cigarettes and hose, valued at $636, was taken.

After the second burglary Wise and Burch agreed to set up a 24-hour watch in the warehouse. Shortly after 2:30 a.m., Mr. Wise, who was on watch, saw four men steal into the building.

Quietly wakening his partner, the wholesaler shouted at the intruders, and the men started towards the door.

As the four men started to run from the warehouse, the two wholesalers let loose with blasts from their 12-gauge shotguns. One of the men fell to the floor, while the others made good their escape in a 1947 Buick.

In "Serious" Condition

The man who fell to the floor, wounded, was identified as William Holt. His condition is termed "serious." A short time later, State police, searching the area, found a Buick sedan with the driver, Joseph Holt bleeding on the front seat.

After quizzing the latest suspect, police went to a house here and found William Delly, who was bleeding from back and leg wounds.

Haynes says writers 'smear' darker races

Pro-slavery historians have "smeared" the contributions the darker peoples have made to civilization, Dr. George E. Haynes, noted authority on Africa, told Morgan State college students on Wednesday morning.

Speaking at the weekly assembly program, the City College of New York professor asserted that "the immigrants brought their culture to America" and claimed that Africans have developed civilizations which have preceded those of other races.

Doctor Haynes disputed world renowned historian Arnold Toynbee's claim that the darker races have produced no civilizations to date.

Lauds Ancient Cultures

"Toynbee, I feel, could have found the truth," Doctor Haynes declared as he emphasized that civilizations flourished in Africa in ancient times.

He lauded the culture of ancient Timbuctu and said that ancient African civilizations learned the art of smelting and the manufacturing of iron.

Doctor Haynes also disputed the theory that "the African is lazy."

"Africans work and if they don't they starve," he said. He said there is "no such thing as 'the African'." Africans differ in language, color, customs and in many other ways, he added, predicting that a new Africa is in the making.

Doctor Haynes was the first of his race to receive the PH.D. degree from Columbia university.

2 Couples, police expose home improvement fraud

Two couples, who were victims of a home improvement racket last year, and police investigating the case, told Judge Herman M. Moser in criminal court, this week, how a white, free - lance salesman extorted over $500 from them.

According to the couples, and the police, George Gorney had identified himself as a representative of a heating company and had sold them appliances at half the amount they were asked to pay and had forged the name of one of the purchasers on a FHA loan completion slip.

In one case, Gorney approached Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Wright, 131 N. Wolfe st., telling them he represented the Suburban Plumbing and Heating co., at 231 S. Calhoun st.

Forged Name On Slip

The couple agreed to buy a furnace, it was testified, for $389. When they refused to sign the loan completion slip, at the time of the agreement, they charged that Gorney forged their name on the paper.

The job was never finished, Mr. Wright said, but he was told to begin payments because the slip had been signed.

He notified the police department and upon investigation, by Officer Dennis Mello, plain-clothesman of the state attorneys office, it was discovered that the furnace was actually a 20-gallon hot water heater valued at only $130.

Later in the year, Gorney identified himself to Mr. and Mrs. John Isaac, 116 W. 22nd st., as a salesman for another heating company, it was testified.

He talk-e him into buying an oil, warm-air furnace for $980, officer Mello said, but later refunded the price to $383 after he learned the bank would not warrant a loan on the original price.

Brings More Papers

The Isaacs signed the contract, and after the installation was completed, Gorney returned with more papers to be signed, Mr. Isaacs said.

Police revealed that Gorney had sought a $300 loan from a finance company, and had approached the Isaacs with the idea that they were getting the money for that amount.

As a result, the Isaacs, forgetting about the $383 contract, mortgaged their furniture for the new loan, police said but later, found out that they were paying on $883.

Judge Convicts Man

Judge Moser found Gorney guilty of false pretenses and forgery, but withheld sentence pending a report from the probation department.

In disscussing the case with the AFRO, Officer Mello pointed out that persons seeking home improvements should never sign a FHA completion, loan slip until after the job is completed, nor should they sign any contract without reading the fine print first.

Liquor Board closes tavern

Because inspectors found dirty glasses in the tavern, the beer and wine license of the Little Mayflower, 900 block Madison ave., was indefinitely suspended by the Liquor Board, Tuesday.

The proprietor, Albert Bost, was told that the suspension might be lifted if liquor inspectors find on another inspection, that conditions have improved.

Charges which caused the suspension alleged that Mr. Bost was not washing food and drink containers properly; and was operating an establishment which disturbed the health and safety of the community.

The board also heard a petition from the owner of the Club Ambassador, 1900 block E. Fayette st., asking permission to change from white to colored trade. The Club Ambassador is authorized to sell beer, wine, and liquor and also holds an amusement permit.

The Liquor Board, comprised of Frank J. Hanson, chairman, and Krvin Kovens and James Gary, liquor commissioners, took the petition under advisement.

Police continue search for third man in robbery

Although his two "partners" were given jail terms Monday for breaking into a parked car a week ago and taking suitcases full of clothing belonging to two men, a youthful looking man known only as "Fig" is being sought by Eastern District police.

When last seen, "Fig," who broke away from an officer escorting him to a police call box, was wearing a pair of shoes and a topcoat belonging to one of the robbery victims.

The two other men, Rocksell Counts, 26, of the first block North Bond st., and Malachi Kitt, 26, of the 1600 block E. Pratt st., were each sentenced to three months in jail Monday by Magistrate John A. Janetzke in Eastern police court.

Robbery Victim's Investigated

They were convicted on testimony given by Frank Torpey and Martin Lockwood of the 1200 block Bolton st. Torpey and Lockwood, who did their own sleuthing, found Counts and Kitt wearing some of their clothing.

According to their testimony, their car was broken into last Wednesday while parked in the 100 block South High st. When they returned they said they found a wing window broken on the door, and the suitcases missing.

Within 20 minutes after starting a search of their own in the area, the two men said they ran up on one of the men wearing Lockwood's shoes and Torpey's trousers.

Trailed Suspect

One of the men followed the suspect while the other went to police. They lost the man, however, when he disappeared into an alley way. They thought that he had entered a tavern.

Later in the day, while continuing their search, the robbery victims saw two men "strolling down Broadway and E. Fayette sts.," wearing their stolen clothing. Torpey and Lockwood again called police who arrived in time to arrest Counts and "Fig."

Malachi Kitt was arrested the following day at his home. Police found a part of the stolen articles hidden in the weave of a house at Fayette and Broadway.

Seek new trial in numbers case

Arguing that the court did not have enough evidence to convict William Davis, alias Willie Diggs, of the 1400 block Madison ave., for possession of lottery material, Ernest Perkins, defense counsel, plans to file motion for a new trial.

In criminal court, this week police admitted they took Davis into custody on Sept. 10, prior to locating the evidence, but added that they found a paper bag of old numbers slips, tucked under the front seat of his car after a second investigation prior to booking him at Northwestern.

Sgt. Joseph Hagerty, of the Northwest district, testified that he and Officer Wilbert Rose, apprehended Davis at Pennsylvania ave. and Mosher st. with a search and seizure warrant.

Search Car In Alley

Upon investigating the defendant's car, they found nothing, the sergeant said, but they took him to the police station and after searching the car in the alley behind the station house, they found the numbers slips.

Davis claimed he knew nothing about the material, explaining that the car belonged to his wife and he had taken it that day to have it washed, when police picked him up.

In finding Davis guilty, Judge Joseph L. Carter ruled that as long as the defendant was driving the car it belonged to him. "If I don't believe the state, then I must go on the theory that the evidence was placed there by the police," the judge said.

"I can see no reason why I shouldn't accept the state's evidence," he added.

Who Owns Slips???

Contending that there was not a question of who put the slips in the car, but rather one of who the slips belonged to Mr. Perkins said, "then what you are saying is that when a person leaves a car he is responsible for everything in the car.

"The state has not proved that Davis possessed the lottery material. After all, it is necessary that we fight for the rights of those who may be wrong in order to protect the rights of those who are right," he concluded.

Henson gets life in poison death

Convicted of first degree murder at his trial in May, Earl Henson, 48, of the 600 block Dover st., was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge James K. Cullen on Tuesday in criminal court.

Henson, who was charged with the poison murder of Frank Alexander, 14, was convicted after the state introduced a mass of circumstantial evidence linking him to a batch of poisoned

As a firm believer in the fact that the heavenly signs under which we are born affect every phase of our whole life, I visited many fortune tellers and astrologers, some of whom told me anything. I saw an advertisement where I could get a "complete reading of my life by the heavenly signs for only $2.00. "Doc" Anderson called this a General Guide of Important Matters covering Business, Investments, Marriage, Happiness, Health, Marriage, Luck, Etc. I would not take a fortune for the $2.00 reading I got through the mail, which made me successful and happy, and brought back the woman I love. It also told me the future and how to prepare for it.
If you are troubled and care to know what to expect in the future by the heavenly signs as I did, be sure to write R. C. Anderson, 302 West Gordon Avenue, Rossville, Ga., giving him the birth date and year you were born, and you will receive by return mail a reading of your life in 36 large pages for $2.00 cash and 7c in stamps or $2.00 C.O.D. plus postage and C.O.D. charges. If you care to see "Doc" R. C. Anderson in person, you may call for an appointment, SI-9719, Rossville, Ga., which is a suburb of Chattanooga, Tenn.
I am putting this in the paper because I am so very pleased with this wonderful reading and after seeing him in person. Now I can understand why he is so famous.
