FALL SEEDING WILL IMPROVE HAY CROP.

Is Recommended To Farmers Desiring a Good Stand Of Grass Next Year.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Owing to the dry spring and owing to the severe heaving and thawing late last winter and the dry season early in the spring, many farmers find that they have a very poor stand of both timothy and clover in their wheat stubble. The question in many cases is how to provide for a profitable hay crop next season. Under such conditions the best way to provide for a hay crop next spring is to plow the wheat stubble down and prepare a very firm, finely pulverized seedbed. This, of course, will involve extra labor but the increased yield and quality of hay next year will more than pay for the extra labor. A full crop will be ready for cutting next June or early July, which will be the same time as if the stand seeded in the wheat had been successful.

FALL SEEDING PAYS.

The best time of seeding in Western Maryland, except the mountainous sections, will be from August 1st to September 1st, the best time being between August 15th and September 1st. On the Eastern Shore and in Southern Maryland the seeding may be done between August 15th and October 1st, or perhaps even a little later in the extreme southern water-front portions. The most favorable time is from August 15th to September 25th.

Owing to the danger of winter-killing, clover should not be seeded in the mountainous section later than September 1st; in Western Maryland, not later than September 15th; and on the Eastern Shore and in Southern Maryland, not later than October 1st.

Timothy alone is seeded, 15 pounds or more per acre should be used. When sowing with redtop, 12 pounds of timothy and 3 or 4 pounds of redtop. When seeding with red clover, 10 pounds of timothy and 6 to 8 pounds of red clover is sufficient. If red clover has not been succeeding well, 4 to 6 pounds of alsike clover to the acre should be substituted for the red clover.

SEASONABLE HINTS FOR THE FLOWER GARDEN.

B. W. ANSPON,
Maryland Agricultural College.

At this season of the year one finds many insects infesting the flower garden. The rose is frequently attacked by the rose slug, a small green worm which chews holes in the leaves. To control this pest spray the plants thoroughly with arsenate of lead at the rate of one ounce to two gallons of water.

Plant lice of various kinds are frequently found on a number of plants. These are sucking insects that infest the young shoots of many flowers. On nasturtiums and chrysanthemums they may be found on the young shoots. On these plants the black forms are found. On sweet peas and roses we find the green forms. A red form is generally found on the golden glow. To control these insects spray the plants infested with a nicotine solution, of which there are many brands on the market. A very simple remedy that has given good results is a soap solution. This can be made by dissolving a quarter pound of laundry soap in a gallon of water. This solution can be used in connection with the nicotine extract, acting as a sticker for the latter.

Go over he flower borders and remove all faded flowers since these left go to seed and will impair the flowering of the plants. Where one wishes to save the seed of certain plants select only the best flowers and allow them to go to seed. In cutting the blown flowers on roses cut the shoot back to within two to three buds or eyes from the main stalk.

Plants that have made a strong growth and need support should be staked. Sow seed of pansy now.

Many of the quick germinating hardy perennials may be sown now. Among this class are larkspurs, calumbines, hollyhocks, sweet williams, foxglove, etc. These will make a good growth by fall so that they can be transplanted into the cold frame. The following year they will be ready to bloom.

Select a sheltered spot in the flower garden and thoroughly prepare it for the seed bed. Sow the seed in drills and when large enough transplant to the cold frame.

Write to the seedsmen now for their fall bulb catalogues. Select your bulbs and place order early for bulbs for fall planting.

The sensible thing for each farmer to do is to practice a rotation of crops, including leguminous crops, raise mules, horses, hogs, poultry and other live stock, and grow plenty of fruits and vegetables. Under these advanced methods the soil will rapidly increase in fertility, the money obtained for cash crops will be kept at home, it will not be necessary to borrow money, or buy on credit, and we can then hold our wheat, potatoes, tobacco, corn and other crops until we are ready to sell.—G. H. Alford, Farmers' Co-Operative Demonstration Work.

WINTER OATS RECOMMENDED FOR MANY SECTIONS.

Invariably Outgrow Spring Oats and Often Thrive Better Than Wheat.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Oats require a comparatively dry and cool atmosphere for the best growth and development. The past season was comparatively cool and as a result spring oats made from fair to excellent crops in most all sections of the State. Such a season, however, in Southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore can not be expected much oftener than once in seven or eight years. In these sections of the State the climate in an average season is too hot and muggy along about wheat harvesting time for the best development of oats or any of the cereals. It is obvious therefore that in these sections a type of oats that would succeed fairly well every season must be one maturing before the weather turns hot and muggy. Winter oats will mature much earlier than spring oats, some varieties being ready to harvest before wheat. And it is for this reason that they almost invariably outyield spring oats. The difficulty thus far with the growing of winter oats has been the lack of understanding on the part of the farmer as to the best types and when and how to sow them.

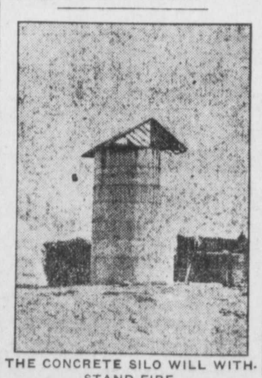

The difficulty of getting good seed has been another factor militating against the growing of this crop, farmers often getting more cheat than oats in the seed they buy, which has in many sections given the erroneous idea that oats will turn to cheat.

The best varieties for the Eastern Shore and Southern Maryland are Virginia Gray, also known as Turf, Virginia Turf and Winter Turf, and two varieties, distributed by the State Experiment Station, Culberson and "206". The Virginia Gray is commonly found on the market but Culberson and "206" can seldom be secured except through farmers who may be growing them. The Culberson and "206" mature 10 days or more before the Virginia Gray, and since early maturity is so important they usually outyield the Virginia Gray. On the other hand, the past season has demonstrated that the Virginia Gray is not quite as susceptible to winter-killing as the other two.

The kind of soil required and the place in the rotation should be the same as that for wheat. The fertilizer for winter oats is the same as for wheat, excepting that ordinarily it should be applied a little heavier, 3 to 4 hundred pounds per acre, and if sown on comparatively poor or sandy land the oats should be top dressed early in the spring, the last of March or the first of April, with 75 pounds of nitrate of soda and 150 pounds of acid rock per acre.

The time of seeding should ordinarily be about 2 weeks before the ideal time for beginning to seed wheat; in other words, they should be sown the last week in September or the first in October. The Virginia Gray, being a little later in maturing, is not so apt to joint in the fall as Culberson or the "206," and therefore may be sown much earlier; in fact, it may be sometimes sown the middle of September, but the Culberson and "206," if sown the middle of September, are almost certain to be killed. The rate of seeding should be from 1½ bushels to 2 bushels per acre, and the best implement for this is the wheat drill; in fact, winter oats will often come through the winter without winter-killing when sown with the wheat drill, where they would winter-kill if broadcasted and worked in with a cultivator or harrow.

On a soil producing 8 to 10 barrels per acre of corn, there should be no difficulty in growing 35 to 50 bushels of winter oats per acre by properly fertilizing. As yet there are no varieties which are hardy enough to make the growing of winter oats fairly certain anywhere north and west of a line running from Washington through Baltimore to Elkton.

THE CONCRETE SILO WILL WITHSTAND FIRE.

Last August, D. G. Harry, of Pylesville, built a concrete silo 12x30 feet. In September, the silo was filled. About the middle of November, his barn, together with his hay and wheat was destroyed by fire. The concrete silo withstood the fire. The contents were not damaged, except in small amounts where the wooden doors were burned out. A stave silo which stood around the corner of the barn was destroyed. The column of silage can be seen standing to the right of the concrete silo. Fortunately, most of this silage could be used.

The advantage of having 28 feet of silage left when all other roughage, except stover, had been destroyed, can be appreciated only by those who have found it necessary for one reason or another to feed through the winter with a shortage of rough feed.—G. E. Wolcott, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.
