Summer sessions held in evenings

All academic courses will be offered in the evening during the 1954 summer session of Morgan State college.

Marking a new trend in the summer period, the regular offerings will be scheduled between the hours of 4 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., according to William W. Proctor, director.

Teacher training courses, however, will be held in the morning. Registration for the summer session will begin on June 8.

MALVAN—SCHEY TRUCKS—CADILLAC HEARSE, LIMOUSINE AND FLORAL CAR
Saved from auction block in last-minute deal.

Funeral home saved from U.S. auction

WASHINGTON

A last - minute settlement stopped the government auction of four Cadillac vehicles, two trucks, caskets and furnishings of the Malvan-Schey Funeral Home, Inc. for 98,000 Tuesday morning as spectators and potential buyers waited.

The sale of the property to cover the amount in employee withholding taxes owed the Internal Revenue Bureau was scheduled for 10 a.m.

It was prevented when Aulden Schey, a member of the firm for 22 years, sold out and the new owners put up the tax money, according to Albert Brick, attorney for Malvan-Schey, Inc.

Quigley New Owner

M. T. Malvan, senior member of the firm, told the AFRO Thursday that Raymond Quigley of 1611 Webster st., had bought a half-interest in the establishment.

Mr. Quigley, who is in the trucking busine s, confirmed the report of the purchase.

Although the taxes were paid Tuesday morning, Dewey Carr, attorney for Mr. Quigley, told the AFRO the deal was not completed until Wednesday evening when an additional payment was made to Mr. Schey.

To Retain Name

The amount paid Mr. Schey for his half interest was not revealed but the figure was reported to be over $7,000.

The new owners denied that Jerry Darden of the Darden Funeral Home, 308 H st., nw, had an interest in the firm as had been previously reported.

Mr. Malvan said the funeral home would still be known as Malvan-Schey Inc.

4 Cadillacs Listed

Government representatives sent on Tuesday congratulated the new owners on their success in saving the company.

Cadillacs Listed

The two 1950 Cadillac limousines, a Cadillac hearse, a Cadillac floral car, two Ford trucks and the complete furnishings of the home, including an organ and caskets, were almost on the auction block when Internal Revenue Collection Agent Jack Masilon held up the sale to permit final negotiations.

The property had been seized March 18 by Internal Revenue agents after continuous failure of the company to pay the taxes withheld from employees salaries since July, 1952.

Given 10 Minutes Grace

Mr. Masilon told reporters that he allowed Mr. Brick 10 minutes to go to the bank with government agents to put up the entire cash amount to redeem the property.

At 10:45 a.m. Internal Revenue Agent-Irving W. Bell, who was to conduct the piece-by-piece sale of the cars and stock announced the auction was off—in accordance with government policy of allowing tax payers to redeem property before it is auctioned.

If the automobiles and furnishings had been auctioned, the company would not have been able to redeem them at the low sale price, agents said. Observers estimated that the Cadillacs alone were worth at least $3,000 each.

Mr. Schey told the AFRO he wished the funeral home "all the luck in the world."

Special efforts toward God should be made during Lent

By THE REV. BARTHOLEMEW F. HINES, S.S.J.
ST. Peter Claver Church

After the redemption, man was restored in Christ, but not to the Garden of Paradise. His condition as "recreated" is not the same as that which he enjoyed when first created.

Grace returns, but it does not bring with it the privileges which followed it in the first days of creation. The nature of man is not changed essentially, but it is seriously wounded.

Those wonderful gifts which strengthened it weakness in the Garden of Paradise have been taken away. It is now more difficult for man to live a good life.

"The loss of preternatural gifts was followed by the appearance in the soul of a three-fold inclination to sin. "For all that is in the world," says St. John, "is the concupiscence of the flesh, the concupiscence of the eyes, and the pride of life."

Roots of Sin Remain

Even when the guilt of original sin has been washed away by Baptism, there three poisonous roots of sin remain deeply planted in human nature.

Man, even when he has been reanimated to the Divine Presence, retains a fatal tendency to tear himself away from God, his true happiness and turn towards creatures that tempt him by what appears to be happiness.

Our nature, regenerated by Baptism, is wounded. Though it is possible to make our way towards God, its progress is slow and painful. Lent is the time to make a special effort in the progress towards God.

Carney to be electrocuted

'Confessed' slayer of 2 found guilty

FLORENCE, S.C. — Raymond Carney, 38, an escaped convict who "confessed" murdering a young farmer and his 15-year-old date, was sentenced last week to be electrocuted on May 7 at the state penitentiary.

Carney was tried for the murder of the farmer. He was not tried for the slaying of the school girl whose body was found in a shallow grave, he.

The convicted man said he committed the murders during a robbery of the couple last Dec. 6.

Eight witnesses were called by the prosecution. The trial lasted for six hours. The jury deliberated for about one and one-half hours.

Carney was captured by hunters in a woods near Johnsonville Dec. 19, ending the biggest manhunt in the history of South Carolina.

AIR TECHNICIAN—Airman 3/c James C. Mason, jr. 100 block 33rd st. ne, is being trained as an Air Force technician at Warren Air Force Base in Wyoming.

Lottery suspects in $2,500 bail

Two men who talked too much are now awaiting trial on a numbers charge.

In Southwestern police court, Wednesday, Magistrate Howard Aaron held Hilliard Cromer, 45, 100 block N. Payson st., and Jack Johnson, 39, 1600 block W. Fayette st., in $2,500 bail.

Sgt. Maurice Gorman and Patrolman Charles Gross told Magistrate Aaron they were cruising the neighborhood near Cromer's home, in plain clothes and an unmarked police car, Tuesday.

Checking The Area

Cromer and Johnson were sitting on the front steps. The policemen were checking the area for lottery suspects, and parked their car nearby to watch the two men.

Cromer was holding what looked like a tape, so Patrolman Gross testified, he got out of the car and walked toward the men.

The policeman said that the two men were talking about a hit. When he asked the men whether they had a "hit, they showed him some numbers slips, Gross testified.

The policeman identified himself and placed them under arrest. Both Cromer and Johnson pleaded not guilty.
