Improved and will return home on Friday of this week.

NCO MEETS

Mrs. Courtney Valentine entertained members of the Northwest Child Study club at her Morgan Park home, this week.

Mrs. Jimmy LaForest presided at the session, during which $80. was appropriated to be used at schools No. 127 and 113 to buy shoes for needy children.

The members also planned a train trip to the Washington zoo for their kiddies.

Attending were:

Mesdames Lucille Cephas, Ellen Johns, Marian Myers, Vina Skinner, Rozella Clark, Jessica Taylor, Iona Collins and Mary Sprow.

PHARMACISTS ARE HOSTS

The Pharmacist graduates were hosts at the meeting of Howard university Alumni Association for the April meeting.

The meeting was held at the home of John C. Hagans, and the following were on the host committee: Mrs. Robert Davis, Carroll V. Lee, William A. Ross, and John C. Hagans. They were assisted in this role by Mrs. Hagans, the mother of Mr. Hagans.

Many important items of business came up for discussion at this session. The group heard a most encouraging report from the committee on the "Glass Menagerie," which was directed by Miss Anne M. Cooke, of Howard university. This play was given in the interest of the scholarship fund. Graduates of Frederick Douglass and Dunbar high schools will benefit from this performance. The Guarantors for this affair (those who gave cash donations to insure the success of this production) were:

The next meeting will be held the first Friday in May. This will be the last meeting for this fiscal year. At this meeting the lawyers group will serve as host. The reports in connection with the activities of the fiscal year will be given, such as the auditing report, the nomination committee's report, etc.

The members are now in the process of arranging to attend the alumni dinner which is an annual affair, and is held on the campus of Howard university during the commencement activities. Recently, a very large group from Baltimore has gone over to this gathering of alumni from all over the country. The group plans to make its presentation of $400 to the scholarship fund at this dinner in Washington.

The present officers of the Baltimore chapter are:

Mrs. Mary C. Frazier, president; Ernest Gambrill and John R. Hargrove, vice presidents; Mrs. Lillian Rustin and Miss Maize Barbour, secretaries; Roy S. Bond, treasurer; and Dr. Miles W. Connor, chaplain, Mrs. Mamie C. Woodford is business manager.

Charles W. Woodford and Miss Gwendolyn Biddle, members, have been sick, but both are now recuperating.

CARE CLINIC

Kappa chapter of Iota Phi Lambda sorority, in celebration of National Iota Phi Lambda Business Week, held a Career Clinic on Saturday in the Auditorium of Enoch Pratt Library.

The theme was "From School — To Job" and the purpose of the clinic is to give an insight into careers in various occupational fields and encourage students to take advantage of all available educational opportunities which will qualify them for greater employment.

The moderator was Mrs. Irma V. Dixon of Valentine's Apparel Shop.

The various subjects were very ably handled by Miss Jessie Colston of the business department of Morgan State college; S. Edward Smith, sonnet manager of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers; Mr. Vivin G. Roy, counselor of the Maryland State Employment office; and Raymond V. Haysbert, general manager of Parks Sausage Company.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Crudup, instructor at Booker T. Washington Jr. High school, summarized the clinic.

Wives die preparing husbands' funerals

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. — Two housewives — one here and the other in Enfield, a few miles distant — died last week while funeral arrangements were being prepared for their husbands.

William Searles, 64, a South Carolinian employed by the railroad here for many years, died at his home after a brief illness.

While his body lay in a local funeral parlor, his wife, Mrs. Annie Searles, 45, was stricken fatally while in the downtown business district making arrangements for his funeral.

Her death came less than 24 hours after that of her husband.

Over in Enfield, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Harvey died under similar circumstances; their deaths taking place less than a day apart.

Roman Hines Buried

Funeral services were also held for Roman Hines, husband of Mrs. Lena Hines of Carolina ave., the Rev. F. I. Lowe, pastor, conducting the service Sunday in St. John AME Zion church.

Twin County Elks conducted fraternal rites and Daughter Elks served as honorary pallbearers. Mr. Hines was active in the Elk lodge and Mrs. Hines is an active daughter in the temple.

N.C. College accepts bids

Awards contracts for new building

DURHAM, N.C. — Plans for three new buildings at North Carolina college, costing nearly $12 million were announced here last week.

President Alfonso Elder, and William Jones, business manager, said bids in the amount of $476,927.50 were received for a new commerce building. An additional $70,000 will be used to equip the building.

Two other buildings for biology and education will be erected at a cost of some $1,200,000.

More Bids April 15

Bids will be received for the education building at North Carolina" College on Thursday, April 15, according to Dr. Elder.

The Wrenn Wilson Construction Co. submitted lowest bid for the new commerce building to get the general contract.

The R. A. Broughton Electric Co. was given the electrical installation contract. The Sanitary Plumbing and Heating Co's bid was accepted for the plumbing, heating and ventilating.

Westbrook Elevator Manufacturing Co., Danville, Va., was the only out-of-town bidder to get a contract, Raymond A. Weeks of Durham is architect for the commerce building.

AT N.C. TEACHERS' MEETING:

Predict court will end dual schools

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

RALEIGH, N.C. — Members of the North Carolina Teachers' Association heard two unqualified predictions on the doom of segregated schools during their 72nd annual convention here last week.

The first came from Congressman Adam C. Powell of New York in his enthusiastically received address before the department of elementary school Auditorium.

Ruling Expected in May

He predicted that a favorable 5-4 Supreme Court ruling in the pending integration cases would come the first Monday in May, with Chief Justice Earl Warren now "abstaining from voting because he did not sit in on the original arguments," breaking the present presumed 4-4 deadlock.

Dr. Lester B. Granger, executive director of the National Urban League, who addressed the general session Friday night in the Memorial Auditorium, also expressed confidence in a favorable court ruling.

Criticisms Voiced

Both talks drew some adverse criticism.

Some of Congressman Powell's listeners, in corridor comments, voiced disapproval of his suggestion that public school integration should be accomplished over a three-year period.

Dr. Granger was criticized for his positive declaration that colored Americans are not ready for integration.

Rep. Powell, speaking on "The Responsibility of Colored People in Educational Progress," opened his talk by recounting his own work on the House Committee on Education.

He said he first and only victory that has been won in the field of Federal civil rights legislation was the amendment to the school lunch program banning discrimination in the distribution of funds.

Hobby Dispute Cited

He traced the development of the program for integration of schools on Army posts, giving details of a controversy with Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Oveta Culp Hobby over her opposition to the program.

Mrs. Hobby, the Congressman declared, has shown some signs of conversion in her recent talk at Howard University and her reversal of attitudes on H. U. appropriations.

The anticipated Supreme Court ruling, he said, would be the most important since the Civil War, and would come as a shock to both races, the cushioning of which can best be accomplished by mixing only preschool and primary children the year, the next four grades during the second year, and the others the third.

Teachers Cautioned

Rep. Powell admonished the teachers to get themselves to a new philosophy of life by the time they return to school next fall.

With the integration of schools, he declared, will come economic and political equality, and colored Americans "will no longer be members of a downtrodden yardstick by which the world will measure American democracy."

He said that America, which he termed a "nation of hypocrites," must also make a spiritual change, "since the program of integration cannot succeed without full and complete backing of religious people."

If the American people had been moral, he said, we would not need laws to bring about the equality which God had decreed.

"Not Ready," Says Granger

Dr. Granger pictured the anticipated court ruling as one which would immediately abolish school segregation, but serve as a wedge to force public opinion to adjust the issue to a point at which would be determined by the spirit in which the decision is received.

Although colored and white Americans have lived "living improperly" since 1619, and it now appears that the former have reached the point they have been striving for, he said, they definitely are not ready for integration.

Cited as proof were the "clownish behavior and the pet ways of colored youngsters, their rejection of the cultural side of American life, and the high incidence of delinquency."

Correction of these problems, the Urban League executive said, will require an "interlocking directorate of educators, parents and civic leaders."

Equality Defined

The educational equality theme was first struck at the general session on Thursday night when Dr. L. E. McCauley, Shaw University trustee, in his welcome address, said that the "only way to be equal is to be able to get what the other man gets when and where he gets it."

Lt. Gov. Luther H. Hodges, who is chairman of the State Board of Education, was principal speaker at this session. He said North Carolina's marked progress since 1900 has been due in a large measure to its determination to provide education for all boys and girls.

He urged the teachers to "keep the child at the center of your attention," and chided parents for neglecting their own responsibility and leaving too much of the load on an already overburdened group of teachers.

Blake Retires

C. L. Blake, principal of West Charlotte high school and retiring president of the association, gave his annual address on Thursday night.

A. and T. students donate 312 pints of blood in 2-day drive

GREENSBORO, N.C.—More than 300 pints were contributed in the two - day blood donor program concluded at A and T. college March 30-31.

According to Capt. Walter R. Harley, chairman of the campus drive, the response fell below the original quota set for the college. His committee had expected to get a total of 366 pints in the two-day effort but were able to procure only 312.

Captain Harley stated that many students who are minors volunteered to give blood, but had to be turned back because they had not procured the consent of their parents.

Man gets life term in shotgun slaying

GOLDSBORO, N.C. — Jolly James Leach, Wilson colored man, was sentenced to life imprisonment in Superior Court here last week after pleading guilty to first degree murder in the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Lessie Mae Selles, of near Mt. Olive, last January.

It was the first time that the law passed by the last State General Assembly allowing such a plea has been invoked in this county.

The plea to save Mr. Leach from death in the gas chamber was entered by his attorney, Hugh Dorsett.

Mr. Leach was accused of shooting Mrs. Sellers to death as she lay in bed with her daughter. Police said jealousy prompted the crime.

Hilyard Robinson, architect, keynotes career conference at A. and T. College

GREENSBORO, N.C. — "With the technical know - how which America has, about the only thing we really need today is a good, broad basic education so that we might better understand the deepest human relations."

That statement was made by Hilyard R. Robinson, keynote speaker at the A and T career conference.

"We are short on this," he continued, "and we must get a better appreciation of the important field of human relations, both at home and abroad, if we hope to maintain world leadership."

Mr. Robinson, a member of the District of Columbia Planning Commission who has studied and travelled extensively in Europe, told an overflow audience that hard work is still the prerequisite to success in any field.

Three Important Factors

He urged that students today hold in proper perspective the three important factors which influence the selection of careers. They were listed as, interest, guidance and goals or purpose.

Following the general assembly a series of group meetings were held by each of the five schools at the college. Among visiting consultants were:

Urban League leader 'Twin City 'Man of Year'

NEW YORK—Samuel D. Harvey, executive secretary of the Winston-Salem Urban League for the past two years, was recently chosen the 1953 "Man of the Year."

The award is presented annually by the Winston-Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce. Mayor Marshall Kurfees presented Mr. Harvey with the certificate of merit and lapel pin of recognition and said:

"He has made great contributions toward the progress and development of our community. He has greatly advanced the effort to establish better relationships between the citizens of Winston-Salem and has done it quietly and with dignity."

Principal Speaker

The Rev. John Drake, pastor of St. Augustine's Episcopal church, was principal speaker at the award ceremonies held at Winston-Salem Teachers college.

Of Harvey, the Rev. Mr. Drake said: "Out of hundreds of people we see daily, there are some who stand out—not so much for what they say or do—but for what they are.

"So it is with the man honored here today. He has been valued for what he is."
