a.m. and 1:30 p.m., 7:30 p.m. and 1:30 a.m.

"Raingauges"

To speed up the operation, a number of "raingauges" are in operation on the roof along with a ceilometer. All are operated by remote control from inside the building.

The ceilometer projects a light into the clouds which results in the registration of its height on a chart.

The "raingauges" register the amount of rain in inches by catching a few drops at a time in a bucket concern.

Records Data

When a certain portion of the bucket is filled, the instrument automatically trips itself and records the data on a chart below.

In essence, forecasting the weather begins by discovering how the temperature, moisture, and air circulation change, and what processes cause them to change.

When all observations are entered and the weather map is completed, the staff has a picture showing the weather over the United States and other areas of the continent.

Complex Picture

With these facts at hand, the weathermen study the momentary pictures of the ever-changing weather situation, examine previous maps to see what changes and movements have taken place, and then visualize what the complex picture will be.

One of the methods used by the Baltimore weather office to estimate high and low pressure systems, is to measure how far the system travels in 24 hours.

Having done this, they can forecast that it will move the same number of miles in the next 24 hours.

Rainy Areas Shaded

Areas over which precipitation has been observed within six hours are shaded on weather maps. A series of solid black lines called "isobars" connect points reporting identical barometric pressure readings.

The isobars are labeled in inches of mercury and in smaller more convenient units of pressure called "millibars."

To supplement the local weather bureau, there are 11 forecast centers in this country. As an average, each one covers an area big enough to hold more than 20 million people.

Local Staff

The Baltimore weather staff is comprised mostly of army veterans and person who acquired the know-how while working on their jobs.

On the other hand, Mr. Alkire points out that when he joined the staff, 25 years ago, there were no specific requirements with the exception of a high school education.

Now, he says, standards have been raised to the extent that it's all but impossible to get on without being a college graduate.

Taught In Six Schools

Courses in meterology are taught in at least six different colleges and universities.

Although the weather bureau is loaded with scientific instruments, none is kept more busy than the office telephone.

A mechanical weather telephone system known as the "Iron Man" is available to the public, but, a majority still insist on calling the bureau directly to find out "how cold it will be tonight."

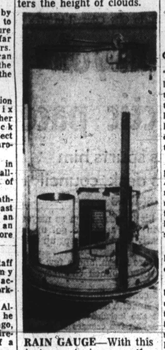
10,000 Phone Calls

In Washington, the first year, the iron man was put in operation a total of 10,000 telephone calls were recorded each 24 hours.

The mechanical weather telephone system operates in this manner: The bureau sends the weather report including the local forecast to the telephone company.

There an operator records the information on a magnetic tape on the mechanical system. More than 200 individual phones can use the system at the same time.

SUN RECORDER — By projecting a beam of light skyward, this machine atop Friendship Airport tells weathermen whether or not the sun is shining outside without them having to look. It also registers the height of clouds.



RAIN GAUGE—With this instrument in operation outside their third floor headquarters at the Airport, the U.S. Weather Bureau registers the amount of rain that falls in the Baltimore area.

friends. I was not asked to go down there and I was not taken down there.

"He went down about twice a week and spent the weekends there. But I have never been to the place.

"Because of the constant quarreling, I was ordered out of the room and I moved into my daughter's bedroom. I remained there until the birth of my child," she testified.

Overtures Rebuffed

She said that during this separation, "I made several overtures to him, but he told me he no longer wanted to carry on a personal relationship."

The estrangement was also supported by testimony of the housekeeper, Mrs. Hattie Warwick. She began working in the Gilkes household in November, 1951.

She said "When I started to work there, I found difficulties in the home. They were quarreling and fussing all the time. I didn't know whether to work or not."

The Gilkeses had two marriage ceremonies. They were married by a justice of the peace in Savannah, Ga. on Nov. 7, 1941. The following day they had a religious ceremony in Charleston, S.C.

CONSTIPATED?
Then read this letter from Audrey L. Robinson of Washington, D. C.
"I used to suffer a lot from constipation. Never seemed to get the kind of relief I wanted—every laxative I took was either too harsh or too slow.
"Then I heard about Sal Hepatica's gentle, speedy action from a friend. And let me tell you, Sal Hepatica is really wonderful. Why, mine's an evening when I've felt that logy, constipated feeling, I've taken Sal Hepatica a half hour before dinner and been my old self again by bedtime!
"And Sal Hepatica gives gentle relief—even though it is speedy. It really does the trick!"
Yes, take sparkling Sal Hepatica before breakfast, and feel fine again . . . usually within an hour. Or take it in the evening ½ hour before supper and feel fine again by bedtime. Sweetens sour stomach, too! So, keep Sal Hepatica handy in your medicine chest.

"NOT MINE"—Mrs. Mary Coleman alleges this is not her signature on a $650 home improvement contract. See accompanying story.

—Charges fraud

Mrs. Coleman received a card from the company telling her that her monthly payment's would be $20 per month.

Upon inquiry she alleges she was told by the company that it could not arrange financing at $1.25 per week but for $20 a month.

$325 Debt

Also, that she had agreed to pay directly to the company the sum of $20 every month for the indebtedness of $325.

The Coleman petition further states that she never discussed the mortgage contract with the company, and that the signature on the contract is not hers.

Mrs. Coleman charges that, if her signature is on the alleged mortgage "it was obtained by fraud, trickery, undue influence and unconscionable means" and she is therefore in no way indebted to the company for the $650 bill.

Mrs. Coleman declares that she is willing to pay the company the sum of $325 at the rate of $20 per month.

She asked the court to declare the mortgage contract null and void.

Company Denies Charges

Alvin Greenfield, vice president of the company told the AFRO on Friday that the facts as stated in Mrs. Coleman's suit are in error. "So far as we know," he said, "both of Mrs. Coleman's signatures are genuine."

Albert G. Aaron, attorney for the firm, said on Friday:

"Our dealings with people in need of home improvements need of home improvements have always been fair and equitable. When a case comes before us such as this, which is the first we have had, we try to look at all the circumstances and see where one of our agents may have gone astray in attempting to complete a contract.

"In this particular case, there are two contracts and a mortgage all bearing the same signature. It is obvious that there was re-negotiation for a second contract because of two facts:

Company Would Act

"First, the company has check stubs and receipted bills showing actual cost of the job was above the $325 contract price.

"Secondly, the mortgage actually bears the signature of Mrs. Coleman.

"If this is a case where there is fraud or forgery as Mrs. Coleman alleges, the company itself will personally demand investigation."

freedom and democracy.

Present Laws O.K.

Admitting that one freedom lacking in the country is equal opportunity in jobs, the opponents still contended that the present laws were sufficient.

Why start experimenting and tampering with the fundamental laws, they asked. Why change now?

They pointed out that the Civil War could have been avoided had the country "been a little more patient and had waited a little longer" in regards to slavery conditions at that time.

Councilman Jacob Edelman, fourth district, member of the Legislative and Executive appointment committee of the council, conducting the meeting, summed up the arguments by saying:

"(The opponents feel) it's no one's business to legislate to interfere or place limitations on people."

Same Old Argument

He explained that this was the same argument used in efforts to prohibit child labor and to regulate women's working hours.

"Yet, these laws were passed for the general welfare of the community," he added.

The opponents agreed, but refused to back down from their viewpoint.

Councilman Anthony Di Domenico, chairman of the committee, said his group would carefully analyze the arguments of both sides before turning in its report to the council.

He expects the report to be ready by May 17.

Speaking for the proponents were:

Francis Filby, Larken Birmingham, Edward Johns, all of the local AFL; Miss Audrey Smith, Charles Della, Michael Musto, state CIO; The Rev. John Tilley, NAACP.

Harry Kastner, Jewish War Veterans; Miss Doris Shamleffer, Women's International League; Miss Lillian Kloppel, United Church Women; Patrick Zembower, CIO; Leon Sachs, Baltimore Jewish Council and Robert Koffman, individual.

Opponents included William Morris, Brotherhood of Trainmen and Engineers; Harry Klinefelter, insurance broker and Dr. Elmer Leon, history professor-emeritus, Goucher College.

Sollers Point Homes In Dundalk

—Sollers Homes

Lloyd Taylor of the Public Housing Authority staff said the 200 Turner Station units would be demolished.

At least 125 tenants in the Sollers project have been assured of homes. Families from the Turner Station project are being given first preference in the selection of homes in the Sollers area.

Lyons Homes

It was also announced Wednesday that 300 brick homes in the adjoining Ernest Lyons Area would be sold to their occupants by the government.

Negotiations to avoid a housing shortage since the government ordered the closing down of the 600 units have been going on for months.

More than three plans were advanced for keeping the projects in existence but none was found to be worthwhile legally.

Asked To Move

According to Mr. Taylor, Turner Station tenants will either have to avail themselves of the accommodations at Sollers or will be asked to move.

Typical of those who were at a loss at first as to what they should do were Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Stokes of 234 Bittern Ct.

Before Thursday's announcement that homes were available for them the Stokeses were telling friends "We don't know what we are going to do.

"We have been living here for one year and five months," Mrs. Stokes declared, "still we have made no plans.

"There is no place to go and we are just being kept in suspense" she concluded.

'Just Waiting'

Mrs. Stokes' brother-in-law, Harry Stokes, 238 Curlew Ct., was of the opinion that "We have been told that houses will be found for us so I'm just waiting."

Charlie Harris, 243 Mallard Ct., said that if he couldn't find a place to move into he would take his three children and return to Virginia.

An employee at Bethlehem Steel, Mr. Harris said that he had been living in the Turner Station area for 11 years and would move almost anywhere except into the city.

Filed Applications

Boht the Stokeses and Mr. Harris said that they had already filed applications for homes in the Sollers Point project.

Mrs. Roxie Harrison, 233 Curlew Ct., admitted, "I don't know a thing about the situation. I'm just waiting for something to happen.

"I don't want to go into town if I can help it," she said, "because I have too many children." Mrs. Harrison is the mother of five.

"Long ago," she declared, "we filed an application at the Lyons Homes."

'Too Many Children'

Mrs. Roland Woodard, 243 Curlew Ct., mother of six said she did not want to move because, "I have too many children. We are just waiting."

Mrs. Jimmie Johnson, 236 Mallard Ct., said she had been notified that she would have to move but had done nothing about it.

"We can't plan anything," she said, "we are just waiting."

Mrs. Della Williams, 230 Mallard Ct., said she heard that they were going to tear down the Turner Station homes and build houses for white.

Just Waiting

"We are not moving," she said, "until someone tells us something. Guess I had better dust the house," she told reporters.

"No use in letting everything go to pot because we might move."

Mrs. Octavia Wedington, 232 Mallard Ct., said she had been living in Turner Station for two years and didn't want to move.

Mother of five, she stated that she had filed an application at the Lyons Home. "We are not making enough to buy a home," she said.

Mrs. Minnie Roe, 301 Teal Ct., said she had already made plans to move into Cherry Hill.

"We were told that we had to leave, so now we are just waiting for the final word."

Mr. and Mrs. Lacey Brown, 243 Bittern Ct., said they moved into the project in 1946 and would like to stay, "because we don't want to live in town."

The Brown's are the parents of six.

Mrs. Erma Smith, 300-A Bittern Ct., said, "We are just waiting to hear from someone in the main office.

"Frankly," she concluded, "I have no idea about what we will do."

IT'S ALL A MATTER OF TASTE
"GOOD TASTE ISN'T ALWAYS EXPENSIVE," says SELMA DAY
Noted Manhattan Interior Decorator
Here's something a lot of people say to me: "I'd so love to do my home in good taste, but I just can't afford it."
Well, you know, most interior decorators nowadays would say that the simplest items are in the best taste. You've probably seen those very plain, inexpensive simple tumblers. To my mind, they're much more tasteful than a great deal of ornate, expensive glassware.
I also like those tables that are simply a flush mahogany door placed across black metal sawhorses. They're very striking—and they cost less than thirty dollars!
And you can get chic pitchers and vases very inexpensively in a laboratory supply house . . . believe it or not! I buy little beakers and use them as cigarette urns. I think they're very smart—in very good taste—just like the Luckies I put in them.
I'd better explain about the Luckies. What I mean is that I love the way they taste. I smoke a good deal, so taste is really important to me. And Luckies just always taste better than the other brands. A whole lot better.
Good Taste in Cigarettes
Naturally, we're pleased that Miss Day smokes Luckies because they taste better. Luckies taste better to many millions of other smokers . . . and there are two good reasons why.
First, L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco . . . light, mild, good-tasting tobacco. Second, Luckies are made better to taste better . . . always round, firm and fully packed to draw freely and smoke evenly.
So, get better taste in your cigarette. Be Happy—Go Lucky. Remember, Luckies are made by The American Tobacco Company, America's leading manufacturer of cigarettes.
