law-meeting two weeks hence.

Mr. Sondheim said of the board's action: "I have full confidence that the citizens of Baltimore will accept this ruling in the spirit of tolerance and fair play."

"Climate Is Excellent"

Dr. Sherwood said: "The climate is excellent."

Dr. Harris said: "I expected such a decision from a board that is made up of men of the caliber of the school commissioners who have always been sympathetic and fair-minded.

"I am certain the entire school system will follow the lead of the school board and make the system one of the best in the country."

Mrs. Lillie Jackson, president of the NAACP, contacted at her office, said she is pleased that the school board respects the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States."

Carver Plans Changed

Mr. Sondheim also announced that the printing plant scheduled for the new Carver Vocational School, now under construction at Freastman and Bentalou Sts., would be abandoned because the end of segregation means it may attend the Mergenthaler Printing School.

Interested citizens in attendance at the meeting included: Mrs. Juanita J. Mitchell, secretary of the NAACP's Legal Redress Committee and an attorney; Mrs. Frank Sykes, East Baltimore civic leader, who represents the Council of Parent-Teacher Associations; the Rev. John Tilley chairman of the Baltimore Fellowship; and Mrs. Mae Gellman, executive director of the Fellowship.

"Wonderful", said Mrs. Mitchell as she left the corridor of the Administration building. "Now we see the beginning of progress", Mrs. Sykes said.

Here are members of the Baltimore School Board who voted unanimously to open city schools in September on an integrated basis:

Walter Sondheim Jr., vice president of Hochschild, Kohn and Company, president of the board; Dr. Bernard Harris, physician; John N. Curlett, vice president of McCormick and Company; Dr. Elizabeth Morrow, Notre Dame College; Mrs. William J. Hynes, housewife and wife of a physician.

Also, John R. Sherwood, president, Sherwood Brothers Oil Company; Dr. Roger Howell, dean of the University of Maryland Law School; Dr. Bentley Glass, professor of biology, Johns Hopkins University; and R. Samuel Jett, attorney.

Willie will get $1,859 back

William (Little Willie) Adams will be reimbursed for the $1,859.09 he spent in his successful three-year court fight against a numbers conspiracy conviction.

At an open meeting, Wednesday, the Board of Estimates approved a court order to pay Adams.

The order for the reimbursement was signed last week by Judge E. Paul Mason, of the Baltimore Supreme Bench at request of Mr. Adams' attorneys, Joseph H. Rogan and J. Francis Ford.

This is the first time that such an order has been granted in compliance with a new law passed last year which requests the city to pay court costs where the defendant has been acquitted in the higher court.

Mr. Adams won his case when the state recently dropped charges after the U. S. Supreme Court had reversed the decision by the Court of Appeals.

Holmes had 15 capsules in his possession. Positive identification of the powder in the capsules is being held up pending completion of a routine test.

Second Arrest

For Honest, the Memorial Day arrest, marked the second time he has been nabbed by the undercover man. The first time came in April when Honest was arrested during a crackdown on the drug racket, spearheaded by Agent D.

In searching Honest's home, police came up with several guns but no narcotics. Honest was booked on a deadly weapons charge but was released on Criminal Court when his attorney argued the man had been arrested illegally.

He said the agents had found the guns while searching for narcotics as authorized by a search warrant, and hence the evidence could not be used against Honest.

Honest Released

The attorney won his point and Honest was released But on Monday, Agent D and Honest met again, and this time Honest was booked on a narcotics charge.

The handsome Agent D has become a source of fear to persons who deal in illegal drugs. They realize that through his contacts with men believed to be near the top in the racket, he has gained information that might destroy them.

Coupled with the recent series of arrests by the local narcotics squad, the drug peddlers are worried that they may be "next on the list."

The racket however continues to appeal to a number of persons interested in making a hefty profit, either because of greed or because they have the drug habit and the only way they can make enough money to "keep their habit up" is to sell the narcotics to other persons.

The most popular drug among the addicts is heroin, which is inserted into the bloodstream by a hypodermic needle. Usually the drug is placed in a spoon and melted over a flame.

The liquid is then drawn into the needle and inserted into the arm, the leg, or any portion of the body that the addict chooses. Some veteran addicts have taken so many injections that their body is covered with scars — even to the soles of their feet.

The principal attraction in the dope racket is the high profit to be made in selling to addicts. With capsules selling for $1 apiece and with addicts needing anywhere from 10 to 25 a day, profits are enormous.

Citizens hail school ruling

Mrs. Bessie Caplan, 4815 Laurel: "My husband and I are pleased. It is rather difficult to visualize, but we're certainly pleased with the decision."

Biddison Deserves Credit

Furman Templeton, executive secretary, Baltimore Urban League: "As a citizen, father and social worker, I am greatful to and congratulate the Board of School Commissioners for deciding to desegregate the Baltimore School system as of September.

"My thanks also go to City Solicitor Thomas Biddison for handing down the opinion that permitted the school board to adopt this new policy.

"I have no fear as to the manner in which the school population will adjust to integrated schools. I can only hope and urge that all adults, whether they be white or colored, parent or teacher, accept desegregation calmly and sensibly. If each of us makes the necessary adjustment, the entire change will be completely successful."

Mrs. Edna Haupteman, 2205 Montebello Terrace: "I think they should be separated. They (colored children) should be given just as good an education but I think they should be kept separate.

Mrs. Contetta McMullen, 1015 Stoll Place, husband a Baltimore Transit Co., employee: "I have no comment until after I have read the full school board ruling."

Mrs. Arthur J. Hayes, 605 Stamford Road, husband a funeral director: "We're not surprised; we've been expecting it for sometime. Our daughter graduated from high school in February and is preparing to enter Baltimore Junior College. We're not as concerned about it as some people with younger children."

Harry A. Cole, assistant to the Attorney General and a Republican candidate for State Senate from the Fourth District, said: "This decision marks the first great step in the eradication of segregation as a pattern of life in Baltimore. It forecasts the beginning of many changes of attitude.

"There will be no excuse now for segregation in hotels, parks, beaches etc."

Harry E. Merrifield Jr., of 524 N. East Ave., "I don't think much of the idea. If people want to go to their own schools they should be allowed to do so. There are sufficient schools in the city."

"Expected It"

Mrs. Leonard Winskur, 2206 Windsor Ave.: "It doesn't make any difference; I have a boy in school. It's one of those things. I expected it. It did not come as a shock. My husband and I feel that the colored man is equal. My husband is a shopkeeper downtown."

Miss Patricia Wilhelm, registered nurse 3706 Nortonia Rd.: "It's a long story. The only way you can elevate any group of people is to give them a good education. And the only way to give them a good education is to elevate them."

"Grand"

Mrs. Doris Streets, 2117 Pulaski St.: "I think it's a grand idea."

Mrs. Nathan Feldman of 5405 Gist Ave.: "I am in favor of it. In view of the crowded situation it would ease the problem."

Jimmy B. Dittes of 1205 Greenmount Highway: "If the schools are mixed, it will ultimately lead to inter-marriage. I am, therefore, against inter-marriage. I am, therefore, opposed to integrated schools."

Mrs. Mary Szkola, 3401 Esther Pl.: "I'm sorry I cannot make any comment on it at this time."

Mrs. Benny De Dominicus, 1420 N. Luzerne Ave.: "I don't think they should be put together like that. My husband, who is a contractor, feels the same way."

Josiah Henry, attorney: "The board's action is a credit to school administration, the commissioners and to the city."

The Rev. Timothy Beddie, pastor, Shiloh Baptist Church and president, United Missionary Baptist Convention: "A glorious victory conforming with American democratic ideals. Not any more than all the people deserve."

"I Don't Like It"

Mrs. Sam J. DiAngelo, 300 N. Mt. Olive La.: "I don't like it. I have children going to school and I don't think I want them to mix. They have pretty good schools now, why mix?" Mr. DiAngelo is a freight conductor.

Mrs. Albert Oliver, 2803 Washington Blvd.: "I don't know. I have no children, but I don't think the idea is very good."

Mrs. Loretta R. Winkler, 2916 E. Pratt St.: "I think it's terrible. I have two children of school age, one in junior high and the other in elementary school. My husband, a machinist and I both think it's terrible."

Mrs. Verney Schmidt, furrier, 4203 Ray Mar Ave.: "No comment."

Mrs. Catherine Wehner, 3139 Kenyon Ave., husband an employe of Burns Detective Agency: "I don't think it is right. Segregation has worked all along, why start something new now?"

Father White, secretary to Archbishop Francis Keough: "The Archbishop never comments on political or civic matters. There is no segregation in the Catholic Church. That is the answer."

"Heartily Agrees"

Dr. Perry Austin of California, a resident physician in City Hospitals: "My wife and I have been following the segregation cases. I heartily agree with the school board's decision. I basically abhor segregation."

The Rev. Simon Williamson, pastor, Faith Baptist Church: "I am so good, I can't say anything except, "Thank God."

Robert Watts, attorney, "Best thing ever happened in Baltimore. It's terrific and it will work out too."

Rabbi Miller Pleased

Rabbi Miller, Beth Jacob Synagogue, 5713 Park Heights: "I am delighted with the school board action. It is very much in order and I, personally, am very pleased with it. As national chairman of the Social Actions Commission of the Rabbinical Council of America, I have just issued a statement expressing this same view."

The Rev. Bruce McDonald, pastor Westminster Presbyterian Church, Fayette and Greene ian Church, Fayette and Greene Streets: "I have no comment that I could restrict to just the one act. As a long time president of the Urban League, I have always felt that we should work all together in the common interest of mankind. When we become the one Christian world that we were meant to be, there will be no need to offer opinions on isolated acts such as this."

Rev. Ross Sees Problems

The Rev. Edwin Ross, pastor, Howard Park Methodist Church: "I heartily support the board's action. There are some problems which may take a little time to work out, but these will be solved in due course.

"I think the chief problem will be not with the children, but with the parents. Young people can make the adjustments; it lies the older people a little longer. We must try to be patient with those whose prejudices are so deep seated. That is the Christian way of tolerance."

The Rev. H. Kearney Jones, pastor, St. James Protestant Episcopal Church: "I have no comment to make other than that I am in favor of the action of both the Supreme Court and the local school board. I am opposed to segregation."

were found on an inner stairway leading to the second floor of the house.

Investigation showed that Miss Foreman was shot once in the back of the head and Stewart near the right eye.

Police found both dead when they arrived.

Starred in Ball Game

Captain Winkelman said Stewart had been on foot patrol duty in the Broad St. area until midnight.

Earlier on Wednesday night, he was granted time off to play shortstop on the Elizabeth police department softball team against their victory over Linden, 16-5.

Patrolman Stewart made two hits and scored a run.

Police Chief Frank Brennan said Patrolman Stewart and Miss Foreman had gone to his room after he had completed his tour of duty.

He opined that, since she left her sister and sister-in-law's room, Miss Foreman had fled after an argument.

The police chief surmised further that Stewart, undressed, apparently seized his revolver from its holster on a chair and followed Miss Foreman, who had raced down three steps when the officer fired, killing her instantly.

Took His Life

The officer then fired one bullet between his eyes. His body fell across the hallway.

The shot aroused the owners of the house, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Beamer, who found the body when the policeman's head struck their apartment door.

Stewart's service revolver, containing two spent shells, was found two steps below Miss Foreman's body.

Ex-Star Athlete

A graduate of Thomas Jefferson High School, he starred there in football, basketball and baseball.

He played professional baseball with the Newark Giants and the Baltimore Elite Giants.

He enlisted in the Marines during World War II and was discharged in 1946.

Woman tells of two convictions for killing during assault hearing

Miss Lorrane Louise Madden of the 400 block George St., who admitted she had served time in jail for the killing of two men, was sentenced to a year in prison on Sunday.

In a hearing at Northwestern police court, the 27-year-old woman pleaded guilty to stabbing Preston Johnson of the George St. address, in the chest during an argument over the use of money for household expenses.

Magistrate E. Everett Lane dismissed Mr. Johnson on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Miss Madden told the magistrate she had been convicted on homicide charges on two separate occasion. She identified one of the victims as her "husband."

'Graduates have responsibility of making freedom real,' Mrs. FDR

PRINCESS ANNE, Md.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Tuesday, told the graduating class of Maryland State College that Americans of this generation have the responsibility of making freedom real in all countries of the world.

"We have a world around us which has grown very small," the former "First Lady" said, "and conditions in other nations affect us quickly.

"It is literally true, today, that no man is an island, and we must recognize our roles in the struggle to show the world that our beliefs and democratic processes actually can function and can leave control in the hands of the people and thereby give them greater freedom and greater responsibility."

2,000 Hear Address

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke to an audience of some 2,000 persons. Thirty-two seniors at Maryland State were awarded degrees by Judge William P. Cole Jr., chairman of the board of regents of the University of Maryland, of which the Princess Anne institution is a branch.

Dr. Thomas B. Symons, acting president of the university awarded certificates to graduates of the trades courses; and Col. Joseph R. Ambrose, head of the university Air Force ROTC program, awarded commissions as second lieutenants in the Air Force Reserve to two members of the graduating class.

In her first appearance in the lower Del Marva region, Mrs. Roosevelt concerned herself with the problems of living in nations of the Middle and Far East.

Using India as her prime example, she pointed out that the United States and its individual citizens must be prepared to make sacrifices in the national economy to provide what she called "the basic freedom to eat if communism is not to succeed in the struggle for domination of larger areas of the world."

Urges Foreign Service

She urged the graduates of the college and other young people to consider service in other countries as technical consultants in programs of economic improvement and as exemplars of democracy.

"The hope of equality, the hope of freedom, the hope of justice is a great thing to bring to peoples in areas all over the world.

"And that is what the United States, today, is challenged to do—not to promise as the Soviet Union does—but to perform," she asserted.
