some other Dad—man, in other words."

Mr. Dupree added, "Certainly we refused to sign when they wouldn't give us a copy of the form to study. If you sign something like that, people can add anything they want to over your signature."

'Liable To Be Suspected'

The family is of the Baptist faith. But they said, "We don't belong to anything now. Even if you go to church, you're liable to be suspected of something."

The Dupree children are Dave, 14; Lenora, 3; Hamilton, 22 months; and Mitchell, 2 months. Mrs. Dupree, who says he is a machine operator and construction worker, has been unemployed since October.

The wife declared that "We don't have moving expenses. Nor do we have the cost of private real estate, which means that we will be kicked out without any place to go."

She said that they hope Mr. Dupree will find a job before the moving deadline and the family will move if forced to do so, but "they do not want to move under any stigma.

Letters of Complaint

Airing her complaints against the Housing Authority over a period of years, Mrs. Dupree has written letters to former President Truman, Governor McKeldin, the American Federation of Labor, and the Public Housing Administration.

The Duprees pay $26 a month for their three-room apartment. They have been notified that under a rent adjustment system for welfare department clients, their rent will be increased to $33 a troops in the native villages.

At the same time we preach to them that our brand of democracy is the best medicine that a sick world can take.

True the United States has spent millions of dollars for the people of Okinawa. Uncle Sam is building the natives better schools. He is imparting upon them Christianity from every nook and corner. The United States has given them a radio station and materials to use it. We have given them jazz and the jitterbug.

Mirror Americans

We are turning their mud patties into playgrounds and their grass huts into universities. The native women are spending hundreds of dollars in beauty shops trying to curl their hair and thousands more trying to dress like Americans.

But the natives are still colored. They would be placed on the back of buses in Georgia; regimented in the colored section in Alabama and directed to "separate but equal" facilities in South Carolina.

They are too colored to pass for white and too free to accept Constitution, you can belong to an organization if you want to. We didn't see any reason for signing away that right."

Mr. Veney told the couple that unless they signed the pledge they would be evicted and their names would be turned over to the FBI.

The couple then went to see Franklin Hochreiter, director of tenant activities, and was granted an audience on April 8. Mr. Hochreiter explained the loyalty pledge requirement and set the eviction date.

Their rent was accepted at this time, the Duprees said, but because it was now two days late, they were charged an additional $1.25 for court costs.

'Men Make Inquiries'

A year ago the Duprees were visited three times by two men who, the Duprees said, first identified themselves as policemen, but later said they were from the office of Attorney-General Edward D. E. Rollins.

They gave their names as Brockington and Gouch, the couple said. They spent 90 minutes questioning the couple, particularly about Mr. Dupree's job.

The men returned on two other occasions. The family was out the second time, and the third time, Mr. Dupree refused to let them in. Mr. Dupree wrote a letter of complaint to Governor McKeldin.

Mr. Dupree is a native Maryland, having been born in Aiken, near Havre de Grace.

Mrs. Dupree was born in Appomatox, Va., but has lived in Baltimore since 1939.

She said that during the war she attended the Waesche St. war production training school and worked at Eastern Aircraft and Fort Meade.

On Friday morning, funeral arrangements for the dead girl were incomplete, according to Anderson Evans, her husband or, 51, of the 1400 block of R St., NW, and LaMorris Strong of room B-432 of the Dunbar Hotel.

Mr. Manor was questioned after he arrived on the scene. He who came to Baltimore from his home in Brooklyn, N.Y. He said he and Mrs. Evans had been separated ten years. They have a son, Earl Evans, an Army veteran, who also lives in Brooklyn with his wife and their four-year-old daughter, Earline.

Another acquaintance told the AFRO that Mrs. Evans has a grown son, now serving in the Army, and that the son and his wife have a tiny daughter. The dead girl is said to be separated from her husband who is believed to be in New York.

Mrs. Evans was registered in room B-408, an inside room of the Dunbar. However, her twisted torso was found on the soft lawn in the front of the 15th Street entrance of the building.

Two men were questioned in connection with the victim's death. They were released immediately police said because the death was apparently a suicide.

They were John Wesley Manidentified the body.

Mr. Manor described himself as Mrs. Evan's boyfriend and said she registered May 9 at the hotel. The clerk on duty, Walter Hampden, confirmed this registration date.

people in Georgia are opposed to integrating public schools."

One of three Dixie governors interviewed during the first official southwide conference on the Supreme Court's de-segregation ruling, Talmadge reiterated an earlier statement that Georgia would "abolish its public schools if necessary" to dodge the court's ruling.

Asked if he felt that Georgia schools could be integrated "over a period of time," Talmadge said that "under no circumstances would colored and white children attend public schools together" in the Peach State.

Junking Plans Made

He added that his state would "take unilateral action regardless of what other states do.

"Georgia," he concluded, "has not perfected specific details but is developing stand-by plans" which would involve junking the public school and substituting private ones.

The most elusive chief executive was South Carolina's James F. Byrnes.

Asked for a statement on the ruling, the short, white-haired governor puffed on a cigar and drawled:

"I have made no comment on the subject since the Supreme Court ruling and I don't think I'll make any today."

Arrives By Plane

The second governor to arrive, Byrnes made the trip from Columbia, S.C., by plane and unaccompanied by other state officials.

Locquacious Governor Robert F. Kennon of Louisiana said his state has "no intention of integrating the races."

He said Louisiana plans have not been changed, and that he is "convinced" that most of the colored and white people there want the present dual system to continue.

He continued: "We don't like this decision, we didn't like the Truman civil rights program and we will never go for it. The Supreme Court's decision is a child of the Truman civil rights program."

"We recently added sixteen million dollars to teachers' salaries. Colored teachers begin at $2,800 with a bachelor's degree, the same as the whites," Gov. Kennon concluded.

Survey shows tight race in primaries

A Sidney Hollander research survey shows that 31 of the Democrats will vote for either Byrd or Mahoney, if they are nominated in the Democratic primary.

If Byrd is nominated, the survey indicates that 31 of the Democrat voters will vote for McKeldin and 18 are undecided.

If Mahoney is nominated, 32 of the Democrats will vote for McKeldin and 17 are undecided.

Professional and white collar workers chose Byrd 5 to 3.

Skilled Workers

Skilled and unskilled workers were for Mahoney 5 to 3.

Of the Democrats who support Mahoney, 70 are now inclined to vote for him in the general election, if he is nominated, while 78 of the Democrats who plan to vote for Dr. Byrd say they will vote for him, if he is their party's choice to oppose Mr. Keldin.

—Park Board

ately asked the board, "Is this wise, to bypass this matter after the School Board has already made its decision?

"While it is not possible to reach an ultimate decision today since two of the seven members are absent, we could probably send the matter to Mr. Biddison (City Solicitor) for advice," he explained.

Already Submitted

Mr. Maxwell answered the minister, saying, "The matter has already been submitted to Biddison. I think we would be out of order to discuss the issue today because of the pending court case."

He was referring to the court hearings to be held in the NAACP cases against Mr. Smallwood and Clifton Park.

(Advised of the Park Board action, Mrs. Lillie Jackson, president of the Baltimore NAACP, said: "All right, we'll go ahead with our court suit.")

Gerald Wise, another member of the board, said, "I would prefer not to see it come up now.

"We have had a warning from the Supreme Court, but it also provides that there be a waiting period because it recognizes the fact that a quick decision will have repercussions in some communities.

Editor's note: The Supreme Court in its second segregation ruling, May 24, outlawed segregation in public housing, city golf courses, municipal parks, city-owned junior colleges, and undergraduate study at state universities. There was no proviso for a decree such as was provided in the May 17th decision.)

Throw Out Segregation

He pointed out that when the Supreme Court makes a definite decision "all the courts will have to throw out segregation laws."

"We have no segregation policies that hold much water in our play areas now," he added, citing the tennis courts and golf courses. "There's only the swimming pools where segregation is still in force."

At his suggestion of bringing the issue up before a full board meeting, the Rev. Mr. Waters replied, "If we wait too long, the board will be placed in an unfavorable light.

"I think we should take action now so that in the future we will not be subject to public pressure."

George Shriver, board member, agreed with Mr. Wise that the matter should come up before the entire board.

Mr. Wise then made a motion to see if the board wanted to discuss the matter at the meeting. He stipulated, however, that four of the five members present would have to vote "Yes" in order for the motion to carry. The Rev. Mr. Waters seconded the motion.

Votes Against Motion

Mr. Wise joined with Mr. Shriver and James Gurgis, temporary chairman, to defeat the motion.

Mr. Gurgis, who was substituting for James C. Anderson, president of the board, who is out of town, quickly explained to the minister:

"I don't like to be put in this position, Doctor, please understand this. We'll be better off in a major decision like this, to follow the guidance of Mr. Anderson."

Minister's Reply

The minister answered Mr. Gurgis by making a motion to hold a meeting of the entire board as soon as possible to discuss the matter. The motion was passed unanimously.

Other persons present at the meeting were:

Mrs. William Ryasanek Sr., board member; Joseph King, secretary, Department Recreation and Parks; H. S. Callowhill, superintendent of Recreation and Charles A. Hook, superintendent of Parks.

Besides Mr. Anderson, S. L. Hammerman, vice-president of the board, was also absent because he is out of town.

YMCA takes first step to integrate

The YMCA made its first move towards integration this week when the board approved the plan to appoint a commission to study the present segregated setup.

The suggestion was made at the Tuesday meeting by the Board President Seth Hartfield.

He explained that the commission would make recommendations towards integration, but that absolute action would not be taken until further notice from the Supreme Court.

How To Meet Problem

"The problem must be met with intelligence and sympathy and a real effort to see the other fellow's point of view," he told the members.

Mr. Hartfield is out of town, now, but is expected to appoint the commission early next week, the AFRO learned Thursday.

As for the YWCA, the organization is "still going along," according to Miss Carrie Mears, head of the local group.

Miss Mears had previously told the AFRO that the YW is working on "various things" regarding integration, but was not able to reveal any plans.

five feet, five inches tall, 122 pounds, with a scar over her right eye."

He said further that she had left home with approximately $80 in cash and that there was a possibility she had gone to Washington to the home of relatives.

Questioned about it by the AFRO following the return of Mrs. Heard, he explained:

"It was simply that my wife was in New York. That's where I found her. She was visiting a sister there."

Asked why she had not notified him that she was leaving their Bentalou St. home here, the player replied: "She thought I was on the road with the team and wouldn't be back until the Orioles return on the 15th."

While in the act of denying that there was anything unusual about Mrs. Heard's behavior in this instance, Jehosie also scoffed at reports that he and his wife had engaged in an altercation at the private home where they lived while here.

Persons in the community in which the Heards lived reported that a serious difference between the ball player and his mate took place in their home on the weekend of the visit of the New York Yankees here in mid-May.

They also said that it was the general belief in the neighborhood that the couple had received medical attention at Provident Hospital as a result of the disturbance.

Records in the emergency ward at the hospital reveal that six stitches were taken in the right leg of a man who strongly resembled Heard, but who gave his name as "Joseph Thomas, 29, 2120 Bentalou St., and his occupation as "laborer."

The official Red Book of the American League gives Heard's age as 29. There is no 2100 block of Bentalou St. The Heards lived in the 2000 block while here.

Treated at the same time, according to Provident records, was a woman who identified herself as the man's wife: "Hazel Thomas, 27," of the same Bentalou St. address.

The woman, the record shows was treated for cuts of the right ear lobe, right eyelid and scalp. It was considered a coincidence that the "missing person" report described Mrs. Heard as having a scar over her right eye.

When asked about the matter of the hospital case, the former Oriole pitcher told the AFRO he had not been treated on the day in question, and insisted that he "doesn't know anything about" the reported altercation with his wife which, if it said, led to the hospitalization.

Despite the denial. It was ascertained by the AFRO that on the night prior to the filing of the hospital report, the house in which the Heards lived ad been found in general disarray—broken furniture, blood smears, etc—as though considerable fighting had taken place.

On this same day, Heard did not report to Municipal Stadium for the afternoon doubleheader between his team and the Yankees. He later explained that he had suffered a stomach ailment and "didn't feel up to coming out."

Declared Ehlers: "We accepted his explanation at the time, believing that he was honest about the thing. I had never any suspicion on our part we would have had our trainer take a look at him."

He had been drafted by the club in the winter meetings after a 16-12 season with Portland last year.

Suspect in waitress' death seized in Philly

A suspect wanted in connection with a murder here on March 18 was arrested Sunday night in Philadelphia by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

James Langley Jr., the target of a nation-wide search, was nabbed by the FBI as he was walking along a street in South Philadelphia. He surrendered without a struggle and said he would waive extradition proceedings.

On Thursday the homicide squad announced that local detectives will be sent to Philadelphia this week to return Langley to Baltimore.

Langley has been charged with the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Hattie Davenport of the 1600 block W. Franklin St., a part time waitress and the mother of four children, with whome he had been friendly.

Mrs. Davenport was stabbed as she sat in an automobile parked near a tavern at Druid Hill Ave. and Orchard St. She had just finished work and had entered the automobile with two other employees when a man approached the car.

Asked if he had ever been in trouble before Manuel replied, "yes." The charge? "Once hit a man with a 12-ounce beer bottle."

City board hears eastside liquor case

Community group, applicant present population survey

A survey alleging that an increase in population between the 1100 and 1400 blocks N. Broadway warrants the issuance of a Class "A" liquor license to Martin H. Bondroff, was turned over to the Liquor Board Thursday.

On behalf of homeowners in the Northeastern district who are against granting a beer, wine and liquor license to Marty's Delicatessen at 1301 N. Broadway two reports were offered in rebuttal.

The first prepared by Matthew Tabeck of the Statistical Section, Baltimore City, claimed that the population in the area had decreased.

No Increase Noted

The second as compiled by a representative of the Housing Bureau showed no evidence of an increase in recent years.

The board will study all the reports before making another decision.

Approximately 30 home owners were on hand to offer their protests against the application, however, none was called. They were represented by W. Emerson Brown Jr.

Three whites and two colored residents spoke in favor of granting the license.

Testimony

A. Fowkes, 1300 block N. Broadway testified that "there has been an increase in population in the community."

On cross examination by Attorney Brown, Mr. Fowkes was asked if he was a tenant in an apartment owned by Mr. Bondroff. He replied "yes."

Mrs. Jennie Horn, 1300 block Broadway st., also stated "more people have moved into the area." When asked if the community could stand another tavern she replied "I don't see why Marty can't have a place."

Neil Bolton of the 1200 block testified that he had lived in the community for seven years and had seen the population increase.

A rehearing in the case was ordered by Judge Herman Moser in May. It was returned to the Liquor Board due to "new evidence."

Evidence

The new evidence Thursday consisted of a report that was prepared by Marshall M. Meyer alleging the increase in population.

Its purpose was to determine the number of people in the area between 1950 and 1951.

The compilation of the results he said indicated that the population in area had increased. A total of 205 addresses were surveyed, he stated.

The community group's report in essence stated:

"That figures for 1951 covering a three-month period indicate that the dwelling unit density in the Broadway area, as well as the population density in the area shows no evidence of an increase in recent years."

Community Report

The report was submitted to the Board by William S. Taylor, co-ordinator, Eastside Community Committee.

Mr. Taylor's right to present the report was challenged by Attorney Eugene Schonfield who represented Mr. Bondroff.

A part-time magistrate, Mr. Schonfield told the board he would not accept the report on its face value because Mr. Taylor could not speak in an official capacity.

No Representative

Even though the report came from the city there was no one present to back it up, he declared.

Mr. Taylor then introduced credentials indicating that he was an employee of the city.

He then proceeded to read the report prepared for the group by the Housing Bureau. It showed a decrease in population.

Mr. Taylor's group claim the area is over saturated with liquor places now.

A Class "A" liquor license for Marty's was sought in 1950, 51 and 52. The applications were turned down each time by the Board.

According to the Liquor Board's map, there are nine places within a one block and a half radius of the applicant's store at 1301 N. Broadway, near Preston: Six sell whiskey.

To survey all Md. counties on court decision

A survey will be made of each individual county in Maryland this summer to learn how public school conditions will be affected by the Supreme Court's ban on school segregation.

Maryland's Attorney General Rollins will then use the information to prepare a legal brief which will be presented to the Supreme Court in October.

The decision to make the individual survey in each county was made Wednesday during a meeting of the State Department of Education's new committee on segregation.

Head of the committee is Dr. William Schmidt, superintendent of Prince Georges County schools.

Problems Will Vary

He said that the committee agreed that the problems of the different counties will vary.

In addition to committee members, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state school superintendent and W. Giles Parker, assistant attorney general, attended the meeting.

The State Board of Education has ruled that segregation in county schools will continue until the Supreme Court hands down final decrees in the segregation cases.

The Baltimore City School Board, however, has already voted to end segregation.

Bar patron solves 'knotty' problem with beer bottle

A heated "panel discussion" over the beauty of a section of knotty pine wailing in a neighborhood bar, cost John William Manuel, 1800 block Pennsylvania Ave., 90 days of freedom Saturday.

Manuel was given the jail term after he pleaded guilty to striking Vernon Counts, 600 block Ashburton St., with a 12-ounce beer bottle.

As a result of the blow, the victim had to have five stitches taken over his right eye. Manuel said he struck Counts because "he stuck his finger in my face while we were arguing about a knotty pine section behind the bar."

Achievement award to Miss Lineberger

Miss Nellie M. Lineberger, 1954 graduate of Morgan College, has been awarded The Wall Street Journal Student Achievement Award.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Laster of 2320 Calverton Heights Ave., Miss Lineberger was a major in business administration at the college.

Dr. W. O. Bryson Jr., head of the department, presented the award during a meeting of the Commerce Club. The award consists of a specially designed silver medal and a yr's subscription to The Wall Street Journal.

Miss Lineberger was selected by vote of the members of the department of economics and business for excellent scholarship. An honor graduate, she is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.
