Cherry Hill P-TA plans for next year

Library assistants honored for outstanding services

The coordinating committee of the Cherry Hill Junior High School PTA met recently to set up a tentative program of PTA activities for the next school year.

Parents present were: Mesdames Louise Mahack, president of the PTA; Hazel Lewis; Bertha Harris, Ida Swanson; Amanda Brooks.

Faculty members present were:

Mrs. Alfreda J. Pinkney, vice-principal of the school; Miss Lili Sturgis, secretary of the PTA; Mrs. Lucille Williams, treasurer; Mrs. Lois Wright, chairman of the music department; Mrs. Rita Coles, elementary teacher.

* * *

THE GROUP decided on "Developing Community Pride" as the PTA theme for the coming school year. Future PTA meetings will feature a forum and a qualified guest speaker to help unfold the selected theme.

Additional activities planned are a bazaar, a parent-teacher talent show, an evening of fun with entertainment and bake sales. It is hoped that the Arena Players may be sponsored in an evening of drama.

The library assistants of the Cherry Hill Junior High School had a closing luncheon on Tuesday, June 7, in the school cafeteria. Certificates were awarded to those library assistants who have served faithfully and well during the year.

Receiving certificates were:

Art festival given at 137

Elementary School No. 137 recently presented a "Fine Arts Festival" under the sponsorship of Miss Carmella J. Cox, teacher of music.

Fifty - five boys and girls, members of a glee club, presented a musical revue under the direction of Beverly Grier. Dances were also performed under the supervision of Miss Gertrude Bryant.

Under the direction of the teacher, Bernard Byrd, the art department staged a display in the library. This display consisted of original and abstract paintings, drawings, illustrations, posters, fashion designs, ceramics, wood sculpture and charcoal paintings.

* * *

THE EXHIBIT also included works done by the industrial art department of Lester Nicholas.

Musical talent from School No. 145, under the direction of Mrs. Vera Carrington, presented musical selections. Miss Joyce Lowman was the director of a choral speaking group, while Mrs. Mattie W. Ashton directed a dance group from Booker T. Washington Junior High.

The festival was climaxed with a concert directed by George Maxey and featuring talent from six schools.

Essay theme tells of visit to school

As a part of the articulation program between elementary and junior high schools, the graduating class from School No. 142 visited School No. 137 on Thursday.

Upon their return to School No. 142 the pupils discussed, and later, wrote their impressions. John E. Brandon wrote the following:

"Some people say "First impressions are not always right." But, I am sure that School No. 137 will always be as peaceful as it was when we made our visit.

"I was most impressed by seeing an old friend of mine. His name is Mr. Murray, the principal of 137. He was the principal of my former school No. 142.

* * *

"I DON'T know if he remembers me but I shall never forget him. The students at the school did not seem excited at our visit to their school.

"At 137 where I hope to reside next year, I am sure the students will have many opportunities in which they can show their skill. Some people like shop. School No. 137 has a wonderful shop.

Some people like art. I am sure they will learn a lot from their art teacher. On the whole, I think 137 is a wonderful school with many educational and enjoyable opportunities."
