O FOR A HEART TO PRAISE MY GOD

O for a heart to praise my God, A heart from sin set free;
A heart that's sprinkled with the blood So freely shed for me.
O for a heart submissive, meek, My great Redeemer's throne,
Where only Christ is heard to speak, Where Jesus reigns alone.
Thy temper, gracious Lord, impart; Come quickly from above;
O write Thy name upon my heart! Thy new, best name of love.

WORDS To Live By

Holy Bible

REV. R. T. NEWBOLD
Pastor, Grace Presbyterian Church

A woman remained calm and confident as she rested on her hospital bed awaiting an operation.

You say "maybe she did because the operation was not serious." This was not the case! The operation was serious, in fact all are..

No doubt she realized this, yet there was an inner calm which no one could fail to detect.

ANOTHER WOMAN spoke on the telephone saying that her husband had died. She happened other relatives. Now she is left alone, it appears. Yet she was not hysterical.

Of course she was sad. But again, she left the impression that even in the face of a crisis she was calm.

How could she be so? Why was the lady awaiting the operation—so confident? Both had something to hold on to.

Everyone needs something to hold on to. For the child this something is found in the warmth, affection, and attention of his parents. Whatever his problems may be he can turn to them.

Some adults try to find this something in relatives, friends, and things.

Many, however, have been rudely awakened to the fact that, as comforting and loyal as relatives often are, as consoling and helpful as friends try to be, when problems close in upon them and problems confront them, they need something more.

THE INDIVIDUAL who has stolen money from the office does not commit suicide because he is a thief. Rather, he does this because as the embarrassment and condemnation confront him he realizes he does not have something to hold on to.

The bereaved relative "goes to pieces" not because the loved one is separated from him, but because as he thinks of his loneliness he knows he does not have that something which will enable him to conquer it.

So then it should be obvious that man needs something to hold on to. He needs it at all times, but especially is this apparent when he is in the midst of a crisis.

Most of the people with whom the Master had dealings were those in the midst of crises: a widow whose son had died, a centurion whose daughter was dying, an adultress upon whom others had no compassion, men who were sick in body and sicker yet in mind, women who were physically appealing to others and morally unacceptable to themselves.

IN EACH instance, either by direct word or inference, Jesus helped them to realize the reason for their difficulty was their lack of faith in God.

Harry Emerson Fosdick rightly reminds us that: "When faith in God goes, man the sufferer, loses his securest refuge."

One may, in turning this statement around, quickly add: as long as one has faith in God, he has a refuge which is secure.

confident. This is the reason

This is why the woman awaiting the operation was the woman who had just lost her husband was not hysterical. Their faith was in God and thus they were delivered from despair and from the stoical endurance of their fate.

Do you need something to hold on to? You will possess it in proportion to your faith in God. "But," you ask, "What is faith?" Dr. Moffatt gives the answer: "Now faith means we are confident of what we hope for convinced of what we do not see."*

Is your child clever?

The funny, clever and surprising things children often say will win cash prizes totaling $535 in Pet Milk's big "Bright Saying" Contest which began this week.

The makers of Pet Evaporated Milk and Instant Pet Nonfat Dry Milk will award 10 prizes—all to residents of this area—for the best "Bright Sayings" submitted.

The first prize will be $300; second prize—$100; third prize—$50; fourth prize—$25; and fifth to tenth prizes—$10 each.

FROM THE "Bright Sayings" sent in, prominent local judges will select the 10 sayings which they believe to best qualify as clever, cute, or funny.

These 10 sayings will be printed in the AFRO-AMERICAN as well as in posters in many local grocery stores.

Then readers will vote for their favorites and prizes will be awarded according to this popular vote.

This contest is limited to sayings of children 10 years old or younger. There is no limit to the number of sayings which may be submitted by any one entrant.

EACH ENTRY should be written on a separate piece of paper along with the child's name and age and the parent's name and address. Entries are to be mailed to AFRO-AMERICAN as directed in the Pet Milk advertisement in this issue.

The names of judges, instructions for voting and other news about the "Bright Saying" contest will appear in later issues of the AFRO-AMERICAN.
