—Moving time

put through the windows."

— o O o —

"BRAWN IS still the backbone of the business," commented William T. Geipe, 4003 Belair Rd.

Noting the slight increase of movers during this time of the year, he said that many families seem to be going to the suburbs.

This was the contention of other large companies, while smaller businesses found their customers to be moving all over the city, North, East, South and West.

Douglas Pahl of Allied Van Lines, 2106 Maryland Ave., pointed out that new developments in the outlying areas of the city were attracting many people.

An agent at AAA Moving and Storage Co., 1406 Division St., can recall the time people had to move by horse and wagon. "Motor transportation now cuts the working hours in half," he said.

"Today it takes only six or seven hours to move a family from one two-story house to another, while in earlier times it took anywhere from 12 to 14 hours to do the job," he said.

— o O o —

ROBERT S. HILL, 1903 W. Saratoga St., who has been in the business 18 years, is certain tenants move in the fall so that "they can be settled by winter."

Most of his customers are seeking residence in the upper Northwest section of the city which is rapidly being vacated by families moving to the suburbs, he noted.

A few companies find that "every day is moving day" for them.

W. A. Smith, proprietor, Baltimore's Modern Movers, 2043 Orleans St., insists "there is no such thing as a moving season."

"October is no better than any other month, except January and February, because it is too cold," he said. "And the people are moving all over the city."

W. M. Dunham, 1947 Pennsylvania Ave., who has operated his business 31 years, feels "the same way. There was a time when people moved especially around Oct. 1, but now they'll move any time they can find another place to live," he explained.

— o O o —

MORGAN MEEKINS, 2820 E. Monument St., said tenants will move on Christmas Eve if they can find a house.

And T. T. Smith of Smith Transfer, 1138 Pennsylvania Ave., said that business has been rather slow for him at this time.

As for companies which transport families out of the state, they find the summer months the busiest time and the West Coast the popular spot.

The reason behind this was explained by an official of the American Red Ball Transit Co., 102 E. York:

"People do not like to interrupt their children's schooling, so they move during the months of July and August," the official said.

"Most of them are going to the West Coast because of new developments out that way. The Air Force has built a school in Denver, Col., and the government has set up many new agencies in the Southwest section of the country."

So there you have it. Unless you are going out of the state, the AFRO poll shows that Oct. 1 is still moving day for the majority of Baltimoreans.

on the corners near the school. We have stationed teachers at the entrances to keep them out of the school and we will do everything in our power to see that the gangs are broken up."

Mr. Sorrell said that one of the difficulties in catching gangs the gangs range in age from members lies in their technique of stationing "lookouts" to warn them of the approach of teachers and other adults.

HE SAID THE members of 15 to 20 and they single out the younger pupils to terrorize.

"It is my impression that these persons should not be permitted to congregate near the school," he added.

In his letter to Capt. Horton, "Many young men saunter into the neighborhood to frisk, assault and frighten many of our pupils. We need and ask for your assistance in eradicating this lawlessness. Could not a radio car be somewhere at hand in case of trouble."

IN PROMISING to give police protection to the school, Capt. Horton pointed out that other schools in the Northwest area are bothered with the same problem and that it has been his policy to break up such gangs as quickly as possible.

During the last school semester, when the building was still occupied by Douglass High School, teachers and pupils reported that gangs of hoodlums were congregating about the school, annoying pupils and stealing items from lockers.

These complaints were later reduced when school officials clamped tighter security restrictions on the school.

Mr. Stein told the group: "I'm sorry. I know how you people feel but I have done everything legal."

The committee consisted of attorney; James Holliman, Mrs. Elsie Yarbourgh, and a Mr. Spicer.

The boycott was put into operation on Monday. Each day since then a member of the club has been posted on the corner to ask people not to patronize the establishment.

Judge Cullen's decision reversing a verdict of the Board in the case was announced a week ago. The Liquor Board on July 22 had denied the permit because the area was saturated with bars.

Mr. Stein filed his appeal before the Baltimore City Court. He had requested that he be given a permit held by Mrs. Lucille W. Clark who owned a bar in the 1700 block N. Bond St.

The transfer was requested because the adjacent property had been purchased by Robert E. Williams for the purpose of building a funeral home.

The move was protested by the Eastside Community Committee and 216 home-owners. At the hearing, 65 persons, represented by Mr. Allen, voted against the transfer.

Judge Cullen, in reversing the board, said the board made contradictory statements in its finding. He stated that it had ruled that Mrs. Clark could continue operating if she desired.

At the same time, he concluded, the board had advised Mr. Stein that he could not take over the permit under a lower classification to sell package goods on a six-day-a-week basis.

Judge Cullen termed the board's refusal "unreasonable and arbitrary."

The president of the Neighborhood Club told the AFRO Monday: "We are determined to fight this thing to the end.

"It is the desire of the home-owners in this community to provide our children with the best environment possible," he said.

a member of the trustees' teachers committee.

"Dr. Hill's last official act was his open letter falsely charging me with permanently withholding contributions for the university, raised in the First Episcopal District," Bishop Nichols said.

He admitted that these funds were held up temporarily until the university got rid of an undesirable teacher and when that was done, the contribution, amounting to $8,000 was ordered sent to Wilberforce.

THE BISHOP said, that under Dr. Hill's presidency, "enrollment dropped from 600 to 200 students. This year's freshman class is only 65. Parents are not sending their children to Wilberforce because it is not accredited as a standard college."

"Indebtedness has jumped from $30,000 to $100,000, despite the fact that AME Church contributions of over $200,000 were sent to the university, which last year enrolled fewer than 200 students.

"President Hill has failed miserably enrolled fewer than 200 erably as a president. He has been uneconomical, wasteful and unintelligent as to things financial, and inefficient as an executive, although he is a brilliant scholar."

IN THE PAST six years, Bishop Nichols said, the First District sent Wilberforce $227,000. In the 4 years before he took office only $57,000 was sent Wilberforce from the First District.

"Under Dr. Hill," he added, "Wilberforce is morally, spiritually and financially bankrupt and new leadership is required."

— o O o —

BISHOP NICHOLS did not say whom the trustees have in mind for a new president.

Reports are current here that President Hill will be offered a pasterate in a midwestern church.

He was widely mentioned some time ago as a candidate for the Governor's position in the Virgin Islands, but the appointment did not come through.

Each candidate on the Coalition Ticket has something to offer the others. Each feels dependant upon the other. Each is confident that as a team all of us can win.

"Normally," continued Mr. Cole, "each party ticket for the legislature in the 4th District is made up of six candidates for the House of Delegates.

"The City Committee has agreed to put up only five Republican candidates so that we can accept Mr. Hatchett who is a Democrat as the sixth man.

"We shall campaign for him and he for us," said Mr. Cole.

— o O o —

"IT IS A significant change in political thinking in Baltimore," he continued, "when we openly join together, cross party lines and declare our intent to upset the political machine in the 4th District which has been a stumbling block to progress.

"Attempts will be made by the Pollack faction to lure our members to his side," said Mr. Cole.

"Mr. Pollack knows his power or has waned in the district and he can be beaten.

"The Coalition ticket is opposed by the Pollack ticket.

"If there is a solid vote for our entire Coalition ticket, without exception, none of Pollack's men can be elected.

"The time has come," Mr. Cole concluded, "when we must open the door to the legislative halls of Annapolis. Each voter should remember that his vote is the key."

of November.

Miss Williams, has three other children, a girl, 4; a boy, 3; and a boy, 1, all of them born out of wedlock.

When she appeared before Judge Murray on charges of neglect of the three children, the jurist continued the hearing until next week.

During last week's hearing, testimony by Lt. E. L. Story indicated that the two-year-old Harris child, Jerome, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital Sept. 15 following an operation to remove a blood clot from the brain.

HOSPITAL authorities, police testified, summoned police when they larned the boy had been admitted to the hospital in an unconscious state and his body was "a mass of bruises from the sole of his feet to the top of his head."

Lt. Story testified the mother told police the child was injured when he fell from a high chair.

A preliminary report from the Baltimore City Medical Examiner was offered in court. It said:

"We are making a study of brain tissue to decide whether death was caused by blows that are evident. The child had the worst beating I have ever seen. The child was covered with bruises from the top of his head to the sole of his feet.

"The entire body was black and blue. From his shoulders to his waist was a solid mass of bruises. There were old scars, probably from previous beatings. This was the worst beating I have ever seen."

— o O o —

THE Medical Examiner's office emphasized that final cause of death could not be determined until study of brain tissue is completed. It is expected this study will be ready next week.

When the Medical Examiner's findings are complete, they will be submitted to Baltimore County State's Attorney John E. Raine, who will decide whether criminal charges will be preferred in the child's death.

Argue Honeyman case before Supreme Court

A motion for a new trial will be argued Saturday, before the Supreme Bench for William C. Thomas, 32, who was convicted in May of first degree murder, criminal assault and burglary.

The victim in the case was Miss Della Honeyman, 67, who lived alone and operated a confectionery store in the 1500 of N. Gilmor St.

POWELL CHARGED that the Dorie Miller project had been included among a series of "windfall" cases because of a Republican-sponsored drive to destroy what little nonsegregation (that) has been started in housing."

("Windfalls," as used in connection with public housing, are the differences some builders have been able to pocket by obtaining a mortgage loan in excess of the cost of construction.)

Kent testified that one day in the fall of 1952 he saw Powell "in a beautiful Jaguar. I said, 'You have a beautiful car there.' And Mr. Powell said the car was beautiful, but he would like to have a Nash-Healey.

"I said, 'Why don't you get one?' and he said, 'I don't have the money.' And I said, 'How much will it cost?' and he said 'About $3,000.' And I offered to lend him the money."

Kent gave him a check and Powell got the car. That was in October, 1952. Powell gave Kent a note, payable on demand after three months.

A PHOTOGRAPH showing Powell posing near the sports car at the site of the Dorie Miller project, receiving the keys to the car, was put into evidence. Powell was surrounded by a group of workers from the project.

Although the loan to Powell was due on demand after January, 1953, Kent said the loan has not been paid back because "when I loaned it to him he was to pay it back when he was flush . . . and I expect to get it because he's an honorable man. I'd rather have him come to me and pay it rather than make a demand."

The loan called for 1 per cent a year interest, Kent said, and he received a $30 check from Powell last April. He denied that the check had any connection with the fact that President Eisenhower announced on April 10 the scandals in the FHA would be investigated.

— o O o —

ASKED TO comment on the testimony, Powell readily admitted that he had accepted the loan from Kent. He said it was a personal matter that "h a d nothing to do with the FHA."

Powell said the builder, a good friend of his, had solicited his aid a year ago in getting tenants for the Dorie Miller project, the first non-segregated housing in the city.

Powell emphasized that the loan was secured by an interest-bearing note, "payable on demand and upon which I have paid interest." He said he had never been for repayment, but expected to clear up the debt "very shortly."

— o O o —

POWELL ALSO said he still has the Jaguar car as well as the Nash-Healy sports roadster he bought with a part of the proceeds of the loan.

The New York Democrat denied any knowledge of how his secretaries came to be selected to manage the housing project.

"I not only had nothing to do with this but did not know of it until after the management with FHA had been drawn," he added.

Powell bitterly attacked the committee, of which Senator Homer E. Capehard (Rep., Ind.) is chairman. He said it should "spend more time investigating Jim Crowism' in public housing."

He also said someone should ask Capehart what money he has loaned, what money he has borrowed and under what conditions.

More to extortion charge, says mother

Hints of more to be told; worries about two children

Charged with extortion, soft-spoken Mrs. Mae McClellan shook her head sadly on Thursday morning as she looked out of the kitchen window at her two small daughters playing in the yard of her neat home in the 1900 block W. Fairmount Ave.

"I am only worried about my children. I have tried so hard to be a good mother to them and I don't know what will happen to them if I am sent to jail," she said.

Mrs. McClellan's worry stemmed from the fact that on Wednesday she had been ordered held in $1,000 bail for action of the grand jury on a charge of extorting $500 from a friend, Mrs. Emma Chapman of the 800 block of Edmondson Ave.

— o O o —

THE 37-year-old Mrs. McClellan was released when the bail was posted following a hearing in the Pine St. Police Court.

During the hearing, police testified that Mrs. McClellan obtained the money by convincing Mrs. Chapman that she (Mrs. Chapman) had been involved in a fatal accident.

Sgt. James Butler said that on May 31 Mrs. Chapman accidentally nudged the bumper of a car with her own automobile in East Baltimore. Unable to find the owner, Mrs. Chapman left the scene and later told Mrs. McClellan what had happened, Sergeant Butler said

IN EARLY July Mrs. Chapman received a letter which told her that the father-in-law of a "Mrs. Mary S" of the 1000 block St. Paul St., had been in the struck, and had died of shock.

The letter suggested that the "Mary S" suggested that the affair might be settled for $2,000. Acting on the advice of Mrs. McClellan to settle for $500, Mrs. Chapman gave her the money to send to "Mary S," police said.

The affair was considered closed until Monday when Mrs. Chapman received another letter signed by "Mrs. Marie Skipwick" and asking for an additional $250. Once again Mrs. McClellan agreed to handle the transaction, police said.

— o O o —

MRS. CHAPMAN informed police of the letter and a check showed there had been no fatal accident in East Baltimore on May 31. A trap was set and when Mrs. McClellan appeared at Mrs. Chapman's home on Tuesday to collect the money (which was in marked bills) she was arrested, police said.

According to Sgt. Butler, the alleged extortion scheme was prompted by Mrs. McClellan's jealousy of her husband James, and his relationship with Mrs. Chapman.

On Thursday Mrs. McClellan was tense and nervous as she told of her friendship with Mrs. Chapman and how that friendship began to fail when she became suspicious of her husband and Mrs. Chapman were more than friends.

— o O o —

"I MET EMMA about five years ago when I was living in the 800 block of Edmondson Ave. She had a sign in her window that she did seamstress work and I took several dresses to her.

"We became friends and she often came to my house. I am sorry that this had to happen but the whole story behind it has not come out yet. I thought she was a friend.

"Ever since I got out of jail I have been drinking coffee and smoking cigarettes trying to get myself together. This is a terrible thing to happen but when the whole story comes out, perhaps people will understand."

Mrs. McClellan is the mother of two daughters, ages 3 and 4. She is a native of Jacksonville, Fla. Her husband is employed at a local brass factory.

NAACP to get 1,000 members

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—One thousand memberships were pledged here at the beginning of the NAACP's annual campaign.

Mt. Moriah AME Church was crowded to the doors at the annual kickoff meeting. Mrs. Lillie Jackson, president of the state association, was the principal speaker.

The Annapolis branch is collecting petitions urging the county board of education to plan in advance for integration in county schools so that it will be ready as soon as the Supreme Court hands down its final decision.

— o O o —

"THIS IS THE first meeting I've ever attended," Mrs. Jackson told her audience, "which filled both the first floor and the balcony.

"We need a larger place to hold these meetings," she observed.

George Hines, retired Howard University professor was authorized to collect similar petitions from other NAACP county branches.

Mrs. Hardesty is president of the Annapolis NAACP; Carter Stith, secretary; Mrs. Ethel Wilson, treasurer; Mr. Milton Thomas and Rev. John Chambers, co-chairmen, membership committee.

Annapolis NAACP hears state head

ANNAPOLIS — Mrs. Lillie Jackson, president of the state-wide branch of the NAACP, was the speaker at Mt. Moriah AME Church on Wednesday when the local branch opened its membership campaign.

Visiting lawyers answered questions about methods of bringing about integration in county schools.

On the previous Sunday, the speaker was Professor Waters Turpin of Morgan State College.

— o O o —

MANY COUNTY TEACHERS were in the audience and listened attentively as Mr. Turpin took his text from the 13th Chapter of Corrinthians, 11th verse: "When I was a child I spoke as a child, etc."

"The adults of our day," Mr. Turpin said, "must be mentally alert and mentally mature."

Mrs. Lula C. Hardesty is chairman of the local NAACP branch.

Alan Paton reports: The Negro in America Today
Is the Negro at last being taken into the American community? And how is he discharging his community responsibilities?
Alan Paton, whose "Cry, the Beloved Country" was read and discussed around the world, now examines America's handling of the problem.
Invited by Collier's to see all and tell all, the distinguished author, who wrote so movingly of South Africa's racial tensions, records his impressions of a trip that took him from Washington to the Deep South, to the West Coast and to the industrial cities of the North. He talked to ministers, teachers, Army officers, politicians and just plain people. And everywhere he went he looked, listened and recorded with the special insight that only a man of his character and South African background could supply.
How effective will the Supreme Court decision against segregation really prove? What is the position today of Governor Byrnes? Talmadge? What is the big difference between the attitudes of South Africa and the U. S. on racial problems?
It is appropriate that the new Collier's should publish this firsthand report by a man uniquely equipped to do the job. It is journalism in depth. Read THE NEGRO IN AMERICA TODAY by Alan Paton in the current Collier's. Get it on your newsstand now.
