For his evangelical message Bishop Reid used the theme, "Christianity is the passport," declaring that faith and love of Christ are the passports which should identify all Christian and open all doors of day-to-day living.
Thursday night's evangelical service is to be followed today, (Friday) by a one-day conference during which Bishop Reid will explain the denomination's new budgetary setup.

—Coed testimony
up to see what Pratt was doing, we went along.
Q — What happened after that?
A—Sterling said, 'there's a policeman up there.' I ran through the bushes.
Q—Did you hear a scream?
A—When Pratt got out of the car.
Q—Could you see the dormitory?
A—Yes.
A—What was the situation up there when you got back to the dormitory?
A—There was lots of commotion.
• • •
UNDER QUESTIONING by the state's attorney, Thomas gave these answers:
Q—When was talking about the intercourse down at the bushes?
A—Pratt said Lee was suppose to be having a relationship with the girl.
Q—Is this your statement?
A—Yes.
Q—Did you sign it?
A—Yes.
Q—Was it given voluntarily?
A—Yes.
Q—In your statement you said she started to cry. Why?
A—She was trying to get out of the car through the window. The fellows held her and she started swinging.
Q—What attracted the police to the scene?
A—Her screaming. Nobody knew the police were coming until she screamed.
• • •
Q—WHO TOLD her, 'there's the police?'
A—Sterling Parker told her, 'there's the policeman up there.'
Q—Did Kenneth Parker get into the back seat with the girl?
A—I don't know.
Q—Why did you run?
A—Because no one was supposed to be down there.
Q — Didn't you know the guards are chasing parked cars from around there all the time?
A—No sir.
AT THE conclusion of his testimony Thomas left the stand and Bobby Lee and Officer Ballard were recalled.
Lee was questioned less than three minutes by the state's attorney.
Officer Ballard was asked:
Q—Is it common knowledge on the campus that a person found in a car (at night) will be expelled?
A—They might be expelled or they might not be expelled. That's up to the council.
Both sides then rested their cases.

essence Judge Cullen told the men that they were officers of the court and that he had learned a recording device was being used in the courtroom.
Judge Cullen was reported to have said that he did not know who brought the machine into the courtroom now, but that he wanted their help in seeing that it was removed.
Without fanfare the device was removed, still unseen and still unnoticed.
LATER, JUDGE Cullen made the statement in open court in which he said that: "The use of any photographic equipment or recording device would hereafter be regarded as an attempt to obstruct justice and would be treated accordingly."
Judge Cullen admitted that the device had not attracted attention and had not even been noticed by himself or other court officials.
"It don't think that a witness should be subjected to having his voice possibly broadcast to the public outside the courtroom, just as I believe the witness should not be subjected to having his picture taken and spread before the public," he said later.
Meanwhile, the daily reporter in a conversation with an AFRO reporter denied having informed Judge Cullen that the device was being used. He said:
"I asked him whether it was legal or not."
A Federal Court in Baltimore, large scale tape recorders have been used by official court stenographers to record testimony and thus supplement their with shorthand reports.

Testimony excerpts in coed attack trial

Below is direct testimony from the two-day trial of William Merrill Pratt, one of the five Morgan State College students charged with assaulting and raping an 18-year-old Pittsburgh coed.

Four of the youths asked for jury trials. Pratt was tried before Judge James K. Cullen on Tuesday and Wednesday in Youth Court and found not guilty of rape.

The judge found him guilty of assault and will impose sentence on Tuesday.

Representing the state was Assistant State's Attorney Francis Meagher. Milton Allen and W. Emerson Brown Jr. represented Pratt. Stephan S. Thomas and Sterling Parker, Roland Walker represented Alan E. Jones, and Lewellyn Woolford represented Kenneth W. Parker.

PRECEDING THE court trial for Pratt, all witnesses were asked to retire to another room.

Among those who left the court room were the arresting officers from the Northeastern District, Pratt's mother, father and the girl's mother and sister.
