Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H.® Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

AVERTS PANIC — The alertness of Simon Merritt, pictured above, prevented a possible tragedy on the second night of the AFRO Cooking School recently. When he heard the sirens of eight fire engines approaching the Coliseum where the Cooking School was held, he promptly closed the doors to prevent the 2,500 persons inside from hearing them and becoming panicky. The fire call was a false alarm.

'Blessed are they who die in the Lord'

By GARFIELD HINTON

An island of silence amid the hustle and bustle of speeding automobiles, the happy laughter of children at play, and the weekend drunken brawls of passers-by, is one of Baltimore's oldest cemeteries.

Calvary Catholic Cemetery, hummed in by the rectangle formed by Druid Hill Ave., N. Paca and St. Mary Sts., and now across from Smith's Hotel, was started not long after St. Mary's Theological seminary was founded in 1791, and was consecrated by the celebrated Archbishop Carroll.

According to Father J. Carroll McHugh, S.S., rector of St. Mary's Seminary, about 1867, following the Civil War, the cemetery was relocated from near Franklin St. to Druid Hill Ave. to make room for a larger seminary.

Although there has been no burial there since 1928, it is maintained as sort of a shrine, where priests and seminarians or students sometimes go for a quiet hour of prayer.

Calvary Cemetery is on a rectangular plot of land about 100 by 75 ft. "We used to be one mile from the city," Father McHugh recalled. "Now look at us.

"One of your problems is batties," the Rector said with a smile on his face, "especially Saturday and Sunday mornings. They buy them and drink them on that side and throw them away on this side."

He was referring to the wanton manner in which people throw alcoholic and pop bottles over the red-brick wall surrounding the seminary into the cemetery.

Actually, there are only 35 actual graves in Calvary. However, there are about 20 stone slabs stapled against one side of the brick wall, that were placed there following the Civil War.

These slabs, the tombstones of priests buried in the early 1800's, have worn epitaphs chiseled in Latin. French priests were buried there. However, there is one exception.

One of the 35 black iron crosses marks the grave of Sister Henrietta Blackstone, a colored lady, who according to Father McHugh, "worked there many years as a cook and housekeeper."

Little is known about Sister Blackstone except that she was well thought of, and died in 1901 at the age of 94.

Another of the graves is that of the Rev. James H. N. Joiberi, who lived from 1777 to 1843.

Father Joubert had been a tax collector in Haiti, but fled when the uprisings occurred under Toussaint L. Ouverture in the late 1700s.

In America he entered St. Mary's Seminary, where he became a priest. Father Joubert, in company with four colored sisters presumably from Haiti, founded St. Frances Academy, a high school for colored girls, about 1828.

According to Sister Mary of Good Counsel, principal of St. Frances Academy, 501 E. Chase St., the Oblate Sisters of Providence Community now has 225 girls in school there.

On Nov. 5, 1943, the hundreth anniversary of the death of Father Joubert, the Sisters from St. Frances Academy took groups of girls to Calvary, where they placed flowers on his grave.

On the grounds of the small select cemetery that was once a country churchyard, boxwoods and evergreens grow copiously. Here and there are a few wild strawberries.

Just outside the graveyard are huge shade trees providing shade for both the living and the dead. There is also a playground for the seminarians.

A swinging iron gate at Calvary's entrance has painted on it, "Beati Qui In Domino Moriuntur." "Blessed Are They That Die In The Lord."

SOMETHING NEW—Supervising the beautification program underway at Mt. Auburn Cemetery, the Rev. Edward G. Carroll looks on as Roland Hall operates a new $5,000 grave digger purchased in April by Sharp Street Memorial Methodist Church as a part of its new program of perpetual care.

In observance of Memorial Day, local banks, schools, libraries and city and state agencies will be closed on Wednesday. No mail deliveries will be made by the Post Office.
