Three Md. counties push integration

The past week has seen progress toward integration in three Maryland counties.

In Anne Arundel County, school officials announced plans to desegregate the first three grades in September with other grades to follow sometime in the future.

The board of education had already adopted a recommendation that desegregation be started this fall, but it was not until this week that David S. Jenkins, superintendent, presented the details of the plan.

Anne Arundel school officials expected that it might take as long as last years for complete desegregation to come to the county.

HOWARD COUNTY also decided this week to begin integration in September in the first five grades.

However, the Howard County Board of Education, voted to retain the segregated bus arrangement.

Officials of both of these counties said that the new policy will permit children, regardless of race, to attend the nearest school or to continue in the school he is now attending, subject to the availability of facilities.

MEANWHILE, in Talbot County, some of 37 children have applied for transfers to schools which now have all white enrollments. The applications will be considered early in June after all preschool registration is completed, it was announced.

"Applications for transfer will be considered on an individual basis only," the board said, in its announcement on desegregation, and the final decision of approval or disapproval will rest in the hands of the board of education."

Magistrate's observation a prophecy

"I'm letting you off easy because you're not Henry Ford."

This prophetic statement was made in Housing Court Tuesday afternoon by Magistrate Marshall Levin before finding a young man guilty of permitting trash and debris to scatter into the street from a truck he was driving.

The foresightedness of the remark came into focus when Magistrate Levin fined Richard Mason, 1206 block of Myrtle Ave., $1 and costs.

"I don't have any money," said Mr. Mason. "I rushed here from work and I don't have the money."

• • •

"WHAT WOULD have happened if I had fined you $25?" inquired the magistrate with a bit of whimsy in his voice.

Magistrate Levin knocked off the costs and Mr. Mason's financial difficulty was straightened out by Harold Baker, 1300 block of Patapsco St., himself fined $5 and costs for failure to have a refuse container in his yard.

Mr. Baker loaned Mr. Mason a dollar.

Open House at Provident

Provident Hospital begins the celebration of National Hospital Week with an "Open House," Sunday, May 6, from 1 to 4 p.m.

The public is asked to visit Provident at Open House, also during the week and learn about its many services and how it protects you, your family and your community.

During the past year, Provident provided 43,587 days of patient care to the community. There were 4,791 babies born on the maternity service last year.

Nearly 15,000 people were served in the emergency and 1,000 treated in the clinic.
